

GOING PLACES with "Smootzi"

GOING PLACES is nothing new to the Kappa twins, Betty and Verna Ray. Traveling between their homes in McCook and Dea Moines seems to have given them a good start toward covering the campus this year. Seen here, there and everywhere are their shaggy black swagger coats. Very off the face are the twins' best bonnets, which are black and have lots of veil.

WE BREAK INTO PRINT! Our pictures are appearing in this Sunday's Journal and Star. They were taken by the Harold Cox studio, and we, the girls from Raymond Hall are more than pleased with ourselves as photographed. We suggest that you call B1988 for that very special portrait picture.

THIN WOOLENS WILL PROVIDE AFTERNOON'S DRESSY TOUCH

Be young!—Be gay!—Be collegiate! Dramatic gowns are taboo for that important date, or the sorority tea. Dame fashion's motherly eye will shine with approval if you young things appear in thin wooleens with a dressy touch for afternoon. It was once thought that wooleens belonged in the form of long-legged step-ins, or dresses strictly for school, but the manufacture of sheer, stylish wooleens has made economy possible for the coed who wanted to make an afternoon dress do as a school dress late in the winter, or as a "starter" next fall.

However, for those who still love to slip on a soft black velvet dress for afternoon, or for those who think wooleens remind them of school, there are crepes, rayons, silks, taffetas, and those "soft velvets."

a lot of it if you wish, a little shirring, seeds of plants, and your fondest enemy will gaze in your direction with an admiring eye. Don't forget Tail-on zippers. In smart contrasting colors they can make over a drab dress, and their flatness keeps bulky plackets smooth. Be sure to keep the hemline short and don't forget to cover the knees with silk stockings at the same time.

You can choose most any color you wish if you do so with good taste. However, an unusual combination of color often catches the "best beloved's" eye sooner than an ordinary one, and black goes anywhere!

UNIVERSITY MEN RECOGNIZED AS NATION'S BEST DRESSERS

Fashion authorities now recognize University men as one of the best dressed groups in the nation. Conventionalism in dress is now the rule on most campuses rather than the oft-ribbed attire of much stained "cords" topped by a worn and initialed leather jacket. So the Nebraska campus will probably see much of the styles enumerated below.

Leaders will make but few changes in their wardrobe of suits and topcoats for the coming year, but the variations which have appeared are interesting in their increased comfort. Colors still take a front seat in suitings but "loud" combinations are out. Rough fabrics and soft materials are out-selling by far the harder twists for campus wear.

Taking each point up separately, stylings are much plainer this year. No longer do outrageously pleated and shirred backs prevail, sport coats excepted. Plain backs, with an innovation from the British Isles, the British blade, are coming into their own. The British blade is an over supply of cloth in the vicinity of the shoulder blades, hanging almost like a side pleat and allowing greater freedom of movement of the shoulders.

Bottom Button Buttoned. Single breasted suit coats are coming up rapidly on the perennial d. b. A three button model with side vents, the aforementioned British blade and a notched lapel rolling to the top button seems to be most often shown. This can be worn with the middle button buttoned, the two lower buttons buttoned or the bottom button buttoned, but never all three buttons buttoned.

Colors and materials are available in a large number of good-looking combinations. Blue and brown is, according to Esquire and a number of other authorities, the newest combination. Along with these two colors, green and gray are popular. Large checks, and we mean LARGE two and three inch squares, overplaids, Glenarch plaids, chalk and pencil stripes, herringbone tweeds, tweeds with dashes of bright color and the staple plain colors are all seen with the tweeds given a slight edge.

Topcoats Follow Suit Trend. Topcoats follow the trend of suits in greater simplicity. There will be few shirred or pleated backs, and belts, even half way around, will be few. Another of these innovations from England is to be most often shown. This can be worn with the middle button buttoned, the two lower buttons buttoned or the bottom button buttoned, but never all three buttons buttoned.

CORRECTION

The following is a correction of the story concerning NYA employment which appeared in Tuesday's Daily Nebraskan.

In a news story concerning NYA employment, published in Tuesday's Nebraskan, the statement is made that no aid is available for graduate students. This statement is not true, for it is possible for any proportion of the University to be made available to graduate students so long as the average allotment per student (graduate and undergraduate) does not exceed $15 per month. What the news story should have said is that no funds were ear-marked especially for graduate students.

a sports topcoat extending to a little below the knee.

On the whole, this year looks like a good one for men's fashions. Style, comfort, color—what more is there to want? Prices may be a bit higher but blame that on increasing cost of labor and materials and try to bear it.
