

KANSAS HOPES STAND ON RABBITS' FEET

The rabbit foot market of Kansas is booming! Dusty State citizens talk fast and furiously to themselves during these late days trying to convince themselves that they will take the Huskers Saturday. But when they run out of conversation to themselves they have to lean on a pacifier. That's where the rabbit's foot come in.

They take these hare hoppers and stroke them, believing all the while that the cuddling of these amputated members will bring them victory. But why shouldn't they cling to something as nonsensical as rabbit's feet; what better could they cling to?

Kansas figure the situation this way. If the Huskers were tied by the Sooners, 0-0, and the Jays defeated the Oklahomans 14-6, even though it was a last five sec-fuke, then they should win tomorrow. They also figure that because they've kept up their morale and have treated the word jim like leprosy, that it shouldn't figure Saturday.

Then later they stop and think. Nebraska has topped Minnesota, Indiana, Iowa State and Missouri. We let this stand by itself and offer no comment. The Jays have a crippled lineup, and the Huskers, intact.

The Jay coaching staff intends to lean on an improved passing attack, if anything, for they have read about the big bad wolf, better known as the Nebraska line. Biffer's men are calm and confident as the game approaches.

Having hit the score prediction of every home game within 40 points and 2 ax handles, we predict with confidence a 7 point Husker win tomorrow. Oh, we know that this sounds inconsistent with what the pillar has said before, but you must also remember that the Huskers are a bunch of conservatives and feel that they don't look well in big numbers. They aren't selfish, all they want is more tails than their foes.

Kansans Primed to Break Ancient Cornhusker Jinx

Major Jones May Be Forced to Abandon Substitute Lineup Plan.

Coach Lawrence "Biff" Jones put his Nebraska cornhuskers through a light workout centered around pass defense and offense yesterday to round out a week's preparation for the Homecoming Day battle with the Jayhawks of Kansas University tomorrow.

The Huskers will take a light signal workout tonight as their final drill before the Saturday game generally recognized as the crucial contest in the Big Six conference this year.

After a couple of early week practices which were toned down by the absence of several regulars, the Husker's morale was boosted a couple of notches Thursday and Friday as Lowell English, Mary Plock, Elmer Dohrmann and Lloyd Grimm returned to practice sessions. Plock donned his togs Tuesday night after nearly a week's absence from the gridiron. Lowell English was in pass scrimmage last night in full attire while Dohrmann and Grimm worked out in sweatsuits which they have been wearing all this week.

The first varsity lineup last night was Amen and Grimm, ends; Shurey and Doyle, tackles; Mehring and English guards; Brock, center; Howell, quarterback; Dodd and Andrews, halfbacks; and Callihan fullback.

Only one change was indicated in this lineup yesterday, Elmer Dohrmann is slated to start the game against the Jayhawks in place of Grimm at end.

Due to a lengthy casualty list, although none of the injuries are serious. Coach Biff Jones will probably use his reserve strength first chance tonight to exhibit what they can do with the Major Jones' countenance a la caricature. All up and down fraternally row the Biffer and his sturdy eleven will extensively against the conference-leading Kansans. With the Pittsburgh game coming up next week-end, the Biffer will be anxious to keep his first team strength on the sidelines as much as possible.

The Major may be thwarted in his attempt to keep regulars on the bench for the Jayhawks, despite their spotty record, will be a tough opponent and have been pointing for the Huskers strongly. Hopes for a perfect starting lineup dropped at Kansas university early this week when it was learned that Dick Amerine, soph halfback, who has been the Kansans' biggest scoring threat this year, and Fred Bosilevac, tackle, might not be in the starting lineup. Other doubtfuls are George Stapleton, guard, who may be replaced by Moreland; Mason, quarterback, is liable to be on the bench in favor of Weirick.

Nebraska will go into the game as the favorites by virtue of four wins and one tie. It has defeated Minnesota, Iowa State, Missouri and Indiana and deadlocked with Oklahoma. Kansas comes to Lincoln with only two wins at expense of Iowa State and Oklahoma. It has been subdued by Michigan State and Wichita.

Another Kansas-Nebraska duel is slated for Saturday when the schools' two hands will duel between halves. Kansas is the top notcher by virtue of its win over the Cornhusker band last year. The Nebraska outfit is rated as runner up.

Reports from Kansas say that that school will be represented by some 1500 rooters who will arrive here at 11:30 Saturday on the Kansas special.

Proceeding the game, the traditional honoring of the university dead will be a feature, both school bands participating in the ceremony.

Probable starting lineups:
Nebraska
Amen
Shurey
Mehring
Brock
English
Doyle
Howell
Dodd
Andrews
Callihan
Kansas

be glorified in effigy.

Remember that rally Nebraska attempted a week ago. The one where cars were supposed to be decorated, but where they showed up two strong and those that did had less decorations than an old maid's beak.

Well, the moral to the story is this: The University of Washington had a rally last week that included 52 elaborately decorated floats. A cash prize of $90 was given for the best one.

Kansas is pointing for Nebraska just as have all other Husker foes since Minnesota. Special trains and buses will bring one of the largest migrations to Nebraska that ever left Lawrence. The band, that very classy Big Six champion band, pep organizations, students and townspeople will come.

Scribe Predicts Narrow Husker Win Over Jays

Nebraska's little get-together with the Kansas Jayhawks, which will go a long way toward determining this year's Big Six champion's identity holds the spotlight locally on a day in which several teams' unbeaten records are threatened. The Jays are coming all inspired-like, but inspired or not, they don't look strong enough to whip the Huskers, who will probably go thru this tilt as they have the others—scoring just enough to win, and maybe a little more.

Oklahoma will whip Iowa State in the other intra-conference mix. Kansas State shouldn't have such a hard time with Elmer Holm's Washburn eleven, and Missouri looks better than St. Louis even tho Mahsey is on the shelf with injuries.

Pitt Over Notre Dame. In the leading game of the day from a national standpoint, Notre Dame will give Pitt a battle, but the Panthers should remain unbeaten—until next weekend (ahem).

Alabama will continue undefeated by whipping Tulane; Tennessee looks too good for Auggun's In-and-outers; Arkansas will beat an improving Rice aggregation; Army will atop Harvard; Baylor will give Texas another beating; Boston college will take Western Maryland; Yale is too good for Brown; California will beat Washington, but the Huskies, with Craver back, won't be a setup; Duquesne will beat Carnegie Tech; Texas Christian's passes will subdue Centenary; Michigan will beat Chicago's hapless Maroons.

Navy Picked Over Columbia. Georgia Tech will whip Clemson; Holy Cross is too good for Colgate; Colorado will "Whizz" past Utah; Navy gets a weak

Calling 'Em By Morris Lipp

November's opening football Saturday finds only seven teams undefeated and untied that command attention beyond the limited area of their own cheering sections. They are, reading from left to right and from Berkeley, Calif., to Easton, Pa.: California, Santa Clara, Colorado, Montana, Baylor, Alabama and Lafayette.

That's quite a sweep of the nation to find only seven teams with perfect records. This column looks for the list to be narrowed down to five as Montana and Lafayette aren't expected to clear Gonzaga and Rutgers respectively. The remainder will come thru with victories.

Here's this column's predictions for tomorrow:
NEBRASKA-KANSAS. O v e r anxious and hopped up Jayhawkers will have their feathers plucked by a good 13 points.

PITT-NOTRE DAME: This will be the nation's best game. It's a tough one to call as anything may happen, but a flip of the coin says Pitt will edge out a win.

IOWA-MINNESOTA: The Golden Gophers will regain some of their sheen by whitewashing the Hawkeyes.

KANSAS STATE-WASHBURN: This one looks like an Aggie victory.

OKLAHOMA-IOWA STATE: On Norman soil, despite Kischer, the Sooners look ripe for a victory.

MISSOURI-ST. LOUIS: Heinie Mahley should pace the Tigers to a good Missouri win.

INDIANA-OHIO STATE: The McMillinmen will suffer their second straight loss at the hands of a great State team.

The national form sheet says: Alabama over Tulane, Arkansas over Rice, Harvard over Army, Baylor over Texas (sorry, D. A., but we've got to say your opponent this time), Yale over Brown, California over Washington, T. C. U. over Centenary, Michigan over Chicago, Holy Cross over Colgate, Colorado over Utah, Navy over Columbia, Xavier over Creighton, Dartmouth (sans dysentery) over Princeton, Detroit over Manhattan, Duke over Wake Forest, Fordham over Purdue, Northwestern over Illinois, Kentucky over South Carolina, N. Y. U. over Lehigh, Louisiana State over Mississippi State, Temple over Michigan State, Oregon State over Willamette, Washington State over Oregon, Penn over Penn State, Santa Clara over San Jose State, Stanford over Southern California, Texas A. & M. over Southern Methodist, Syracuse over Western Reserve, Vanderbilt over Sewanee, Villanova over Marquette, and Boston college over Western Maryland.

vote over Columbia; Creighton will nip Xavier; Dartmouth will tame the Princeton Tiger; Detroit will beat Manhattan in a close game; Tulsa will edge out Drake.

Duke has an easy game with Wake Forest; Georgia holds the edge in its meeting with Florida; Fordham should lake Purdue; Mississippi will beat George Washington; Northwestern's Wildcats will claw the Illini; Ohio State will give Indiana another tough licking; Minnesota will overpower Iowa's floundering Hawkeyes; Louisiana State is better than Mississippi State; Michigan tState will beat Temple.

North Carolina will put down Davidson; Oregon State will beat Willamette, but may have a tough time doing it if Joe Gray is unable to play; Washington State gets the call over Oregon; Penn will beat Penn State; Santa Clara has a breather in San Jose State; t

Sig Nu Crowned Rulers of Greek Football Realm

A. T. O. S.'s Defeat Sig Alfs 14-0 in Consolation Playoffs.

Sigma Nu and Sigma Phi Epsilon touch footballers battled vainly for three and one-half periods and then in one lightning thrust the Sigma Nu worked the ball up to the Sig Ep one yard line, and on the next play pushed the ball across for the touchdown that gave them the tilt by a score of 6-2 in the finals of the initial intramural sport played on Russian flats yesterday. Alpha Tau Omega won the hole position with a smashing 14 to 0 win over Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

It was midway in the final period that the Sigma Nu's got the break that gave them the game. Up until that time neither team had seriously threatened the scoring zones. Then with the ball in possession of the winners in mid-field came the turning point. George "Bus" Knight, stellar university frosh footballer, faded back to heave a long pass to Harry Pitcaithley who had sped down the sidelines toward the Sig Ep end zone. Knight's heave was good for 50 yards into the end zone, but the receiver had encountered a little difficulty on the play. The Sig Ep defense in a desperate attempt to avert the score had interfered with the progress of Pitcaithley and officials Cliff Scott and Rollie Horney ruled the pass complete.

The handicap was too great to overcome. Sigma Nu was awarded the ball on the Sig Ep one yard line. On the next play Knight again faded back and flipped the ball to Ev Deger who took the ball in the end zone for the winning tally. Marshall's try for the extra point was short.

With the period drawing to a close the Sig Eps penetrated deep into Sigma Nu territory, but a score was averted as Pitcaithley intercepted a pass in the end zone and was tagged for a safety.

Outside of the scoring plays the offense of both teams was glaringly weak. Interceptions were frequent and completions for substantial gains were rare. Defenses were exceptionally strong. Perhaps the outstanding playing of the game was done by the Sigma Nu blockers. They stayed off the rushing of the Sig Ep ends and gave both Townley and Knight plenty of time to handle the ball offensively. But with the Sig Ep offense working to near perfection this was to little avail. There simply were no receivers. The Sig Eps were woefully weak in the protection of their passer.

These stout defenses meant just one thing, the team that got the break and cashed in on it would win. The Sigma Nu's did just that and made off with the game, the title, the plaque, and have one foot on the first rung of the intramural championship ladder.

Alpha Tau Omega pushed over touchdowns in the second and third quarters to top the Sig Alfs 14-0. Vieregg and Shock were on the scoring end of the winning passes.

Lineup of the championship game.

Sigma Nu: Campbell, Austin, Caplan, Gilmore, Dyer, Morley, Townley, McNish, Knight. Substitutions: Munn, Marshall, Pitcaithley.

Husker Pepsters Give Tea for Kansas Hostesses of Last Year.

When 40 members of Jay Jones Phi Sigma Chi chapter at Kansas university, are entertained by Tassels at a tea at Ellen Smith Saturday following the game, Tassels will renew acquaintance with the group which entertained them similarly last year in Lawrence.

Jay Jones will arrive on the special Saturday noon, and will meet Tassels in the stadium at the half Genevieve Hoff, chairman, Ella May Nevin, and Jean Gordon are in charge of arrangements for the tea.

THE WEATHER

If Nebraska's chances for the Big Six championship and a win Saturday depend solely on fair weather, the Scarlet should win by a wide margin, for the weather man hints it will be clear and cold on that day of days.

Cold and rainy was predicted for last night with clear today.
