

HUSKERS 'ROSE' TO HEIGHTS THIS WEEK.

He who laughs last laughs, laughs(or what ever that ditty is. Many have flung the statement in our face that the Huskers couldn't posibly wind up in the money this week after their trimming back east Saturday.

Yesterday we learned that the official rating placed Nebraska not 11th, but 6th this week. All of which goes to show that our Lids of the Scarlet should not let their hair down, but should feel that they did themselves proud against Pitt. To say that Nebraska is a mere 6th means little, except that there are 5 teams over them; but to say that they are this week in direct line for the Rose Bowl, makes our emotion go, not pity Pitt, but pitty pat. We aren't sayin' that it will be, but we are saying that the Huskers are mighty apt to sneak up on that Flower Field without know-

The standings this week include: 1-Pitt. 6-Nebraska 2-California 7-Minnesota 3-Fordham 48-Indiana 4—Alabama 9-Santa Clara 10-Colorado

Making them run the gauntlet of scrutinization we find that only one of those leading five will be in line for the Rose Bowl fracas and that one is Yale. Pitt is nearly definitely out, even though they are undisputedly the nation's champs this year. They have worn out their welcome in California and the cash customers want to see someone new. The same goes for Alabama and Fordham, though there is a slight possibility that the latter might accept. California doesn't have a chance.

This leaves it up to Yale and Nebraska. Two of the leading dailies out in the state where rain is dew (California) have been persistently nodding at the state where rain is due (Nebras-ka for the Posey honors. They believe that the Huskers have something flashy in football which people out their way haven't seen. By flashy, we don't know whether they mean that our gridders of the plains play on the backs of cow ponies or not However, Californians do seem to consider Nebraska as some-thing novel in gridding.

Yale, sticking in the top bracket, makes things a little more difficult, for she has a mighty potent name She is an old school, venerated with football tradition.

However, as has been suggested, the Huskers at least have chance at the Sugar Bowl, for they have a mighty sweet team.

Schimmel Watches Celebration. Q. Schimmel, owner and dog of the hotel here in Lincoln, had a field day laughing at the Saturday celebration in Pittsburgh, for he knew they couldn't touch a single institution under Schimmel management. Having nearly $1,000 damage done to his place following the Minnesota game, it was somewhat to Abe's giee to see the populace devastate Hotel William Penn in the lobby, from which all the fur-

With two victories in the Big Ten conference, Nebraska stands as near the head of the statistics of that lop as any of its members. If the Huskers should take the Hawkeyes this Saturday, as the dope sheet says they will, they will be undefeated in three starts. No member team usually competes ift any more conference games than this. In the east it is prophe-sted that the Jonesmen will be Big Ten member in not one, but two

Calling 'Em By Morris Lipp

Little or no change developed over the werkend as far as the paltry number of the nation's undefeated teams are concerned. California's Golden Bears cinched the host role in the Rose Bowl production for New Year's day by whitewashing Oregon 26 to 0. Sectional sport pages are beating their drums in a noisy effort to secure the guest bid. It's all part of the post-season ballyhoo that keeps the sport sections alive during the forepart of winter, but, to me, Ne-braska will have to get along without California's salubrious and vitamin-filled clime come January 1. Chances of getting a Sugar Bowl bid, however, aren't too remote for the Cornhuskers who certainly merit a bowl battle, if the invitation is tendered.

More important right now is this Iowa fray that rounds out the Cornhusker home slate this Saturday. Indiana found the Hawkeyes. cellar Big Ten team, plenty strong and resorted to a field goal to eke out a 3 to 0 win. Every one of those 19 valiant Huckers who attempted to stave off Pitt's powerhouse attack is tired in more ways than one. Nebraska's coaches have the unenviable task of raising the team morale to complete the season with a Hawkeye victory, and even those who were rabid Scarlet enthusiasts B. P. (Before Pitt) are already saying that the Huskers can't rebound from the doldrums that came with the loss to Pitt. This remains to be seen.

Altho we took Nebraska to take Pittsburgh by six points which the Panthers reversed in ten minutes, this department didn't fare so badly in grid guessing. Of the 27 games this column tried to call, 18 came out right, 6 came out wrong and 3 ended in deadlocks, which makes the average .750 for this week.
