S. A. RIDES AGAIN

Man, Woman, Boy, Girl, Male, Female. There are six complete sentences. Put them all together and what do you get? You get a shorter sentence yet, Sex.

New that was done merely to show you how easy it is to get started talking about sex. There are various approaches of course. You can count like this—One, two, three, four, five, six; and presto, you're off. There are many approaches, one being just about as good as the other, it might even be said that it is sex of one and half a dozen of the other.

S. L. M., the Nebraska's pioneer apostle of sex, got the readers of the Rag so accustomed to thinking in terms of masculine and feminine genders that they have felt a lull in their life ever since you-know-what lowered its ugly head from the Daily Nebraskan. One blunt person even said: "Why isn't there more mention of it-rhymes-with-pecks and why aren't there any more cusswords and general calling of a digging instrument by its proper moniker?"

An' Curse Away.

Consequently, d-n it, we will, by blankety-blank.

You can fool all the people some of the time, etc.; but sooner or later, if you keep trying to find out about sex, even if you keep them from reading Esquire, Liberty, and the film magazines. And if the person is nervous, the awful truth might be too much. This is a good place to say damn, damn.

Sex is here to stay, regardless of which political party is in power, and the issue cannot be dodged. That statement presupposes that someone might want to dodge it, which is a false premise. Another good place, damn.

So far, nothing particularly juicy about the subject of you-know-what has appeared in this column, but just keep reading and you'll find it in the last paragraph.

In Memoriam.

S. L. M. merely broke the ice on the subject and look what happened—a freezeout. She got into hot water by writing cold tact, D-n. What does that prove? It proves that the subject is paradoxical in itself.

You take words like sextant, sexton, Essex, Westex and Sussex and pay no attention to them unless you have to know how to spell them right in an English test. But if you just take the prefix or suffix and use it alone, then you have sex, which is the nub of civilization around which the rest of the world moves as planets in their orbits around the sun.

The people of the world, in New York or Poland, are suckers for sex. If a steel company wants to advertise, it gets a picture of a pretty girl on a deathbed standing on a piece of steel rail. You know that, but have you ever stopped to think that there is a field which has been badly neglected in the matter of a sex?

All magazines with a mixed circulation and magazines with a male circulation use pretty girls to catch the eye. But here is the secret. So do the publications which appeal, supposedly, to females.

Candid Camerawomen.

Therefore, the following question might logically be asked: Why doesn't the Ladies' Home Journal and Woman's Home Companion get candid camerawomen and go into the locker rooms of football stadiums, athletic clubs and maybe even Y. M. C. A. gymnasiums to show extremes in builds and get snapshots for features. The same with advertisements. We will put up a dollar against all the doughnuts you can muster that if there was a picture of a symmetrically built male in a bathing suit pointing towards women's hats, that hat ad would get more feminine glances than all the other hat ads put together.

This is the last paragraph, but why did you skip the others just to come down here? It's because you're a sucker for a. a., like all God's children.

NORRIS' PROPOSAL INVITES PROPAGANDA, SAYS SENNING

Senator's Ratification Plan Would Impede Passage of Amendments.

By Ellsworth Steele.

"I'm not sure that the proposed change in method of ratification of amendments would make ratification easier than the present system," asserted Prof. John P. Senning of the political science department.

DR. JOHN P. SENNING.

He was discussing the proposal made by Nebraska's Senator Norris to change the method of amending the national constitution. "Unless my judgment is wrong, it would make the passage of an amendment more difficult."

"Of course it has this fundamental basis in contrast to the existing method. It is more democratic in the sense that the people have a part in the process, a chance to record their own views. The argument is that the people have the right to make their own decision without the interference of the legislature or of a constitutional convention."

Two-Thirds Vote Needed.

The proposed amendment provides that whenever congress submits a constitutional amendment to the states it be automatically placed upon the ballot in each state at the next general election. The amendment would go into effect if two-thirds, that is, thirty-two, of the states ratified.

"With the present propaganda facilities the minds of the people can be very easily prejudiced either for or against a proposal, as is well illustrated by the case of the child labor amendment. At the time this amendment was submitted to the states those who opposed it made a direct appeal to the people. They appealed to prejudice and pictured all sorts of dire effects that would result if the amendment were passed."

James Lauridsen named president of Theta Nu Epsilon Pre-Medical Society.

Theta Nu, honorary pre-medical fraternity, elected officers in its regular monthly meeting held Wednesday night. The following officers were elected for the next semester: President, James Lauridsen; vice-president, Harry Lammet; secretary-treasurer, Charles Hrusak.

Plans for the coming initiation of new members were discussed. The date for the initiation was set for Wednesday, Feb. 9. The committee in charge is C. Rankin, George Place, and Duane Meier.

The constitutional committee reported on a revision of the constitution, but will continue to meet to straighten out further difficulties.

Dr. Waide, official sponsor, was present at the meeting.

Lancaster Doubts Legality of Vetoing Financial Riders

Political Scientist Comments Recind of Attachments as Pork Barrel Cut.

By Ellsworth Steele.

"I doubt whether the financial item veto can be put thru constitutionally, but if it could be, it would be desirable," stated Prof. Lane W. Lancaster, university political scientist, when questioned about the bill which the house of representatives has passed permitting the president to reduce or eliminate entirely any appropriation which congress makes.

"This bill would allow the president to protect himself against having irrelevant matter attached to appropriation bills. I doubt whether you can make this a permanent constitutional amendment, any succeeding congress could do away with it."

Weak Executive Brings Dictator.

"Anyone who criticizes this bill because it gives the president too much power must remember that governments abroad became dictatorships because the government was weak, not because it was too strong. Governments do not become dictatorships because the executive is powerful but because he is weak."

With the financial item veto the president would be able to strike out undesirable pork barrel appropriations and economy would be more easily accomplished. In 1923, a $29,000,000 addition to the army appropriations bill was made to be used for river and harbor improvements, typical pork barrel legislation. This is an example of the riders that can now be attached to an important bill and passed because it is necessary to veto the whole bill with important appropriations to eliminate the rider. The financial item veto

Men Fear 'Rights' on Skids, Want Equality With Women

20-Plank Program Seeks Harmonious Solution of Sex Problem.

By Fred Harris.

It's high time we men were doing a little agitating and propagandizing of our own on this equal rights for both sexes deal. For almost a century, a lot of the members of the fairer sex have been crying "Equal rights for women."

The militant females won't recognize the fact that they've had equal rights all along. What they want is the upper hand.

We ought to tell the lovely creatures before it's too late that we're willing to give them 100 percent equal rights but no more. If we don't, we of the trousered sex are going to find ourselves living in a woman-made, a woman-owned, a woman-ruled, and a woman-rubbed world.

Refuses to Go "Dutch."

A woman overlooks the fact that if a equals b, b must also equal a. According to their interpretation, equal rights means getting without giving. She expects to obtain all the rights that men now have and at the same time retain all the privileges that now adhere in the mere fact of being a female.

She asserts the right to stand among men with her feet on the brass rail; but when it comes to "buying one," she folds herself in the latter cloak of outworn tradition or holes behind the skirts of Emily Post.

Women in general are flinty opposed to going "Dutch" with men for cokes, snaks, theatre tickets, or social polls by the Inquiring Reporter and other accurate agencies for reflecting public opinion have proved that.

Men's Rights Crusade.

One member of the sex, however, has had the audacity to propose the following 20 planks in a program for a crusade for Equal Rights for Men. These 20 reasons why men should have equal rights with women may well be the main factor in the future preservation of the species. Be it resolved then:

1. That all extra-legal advantages and privileges now appertaining to women by the mere fortuity of their sex be forthwith abolished.
