

BY THE HAUNTRESS

Haunting hither and yon at the Prom Friday night proved quite successful, for the first persons your hauntress met were a couple of Griff Williams' men giving their personal opinions of the whole affair which by the way were most favorable except for a remark about the attention they were getting from their feminine public. We wouldn't think of mentioning any names but to many of the gals gathered about the orchestra pastures must have seemed greener on the other side.

Couldn't help noticing Jean Gutzmer and Dunky as they swirled past, Jean wearing an ultra smart arrangement of black and pink. All of which reminds us that Leonard Dunker is the young man who came to us with his troubles one day not so long ago. It seems that dates with Jean most certainly do not grow on trees. In fact, they're few and far between on account of a sizeable waiting list. "Can't you tell her that it isn't good policy to keep so many fellows in the run?" pleaded Dunky. And to substantiate his argument he cited several examples of girls who had been in a regular whirl during their first year at Nebraska and thus ruined their chances with somebody special (the someone special, in this case, probably being no less than Dunky, himself, I gathered).

Well, this wasn't started as a column for the love lorn so we'll get on with our business of haunting. Jack Ellsworth and Ginny Fleetwood surely didn't escape your attention Friday night, Ginny looking like a valentine in white organza figured in red and this set of a nosegay corsage. A very cute couple.

Jerry Wallace and Grant Thomas, who by the way have been sight seeing it together quite often of late were there. And this reminds us that the Sigma Chi's have chalked up the 11th as the date for their pledge party which from all reports is going to be something new and different, a costume affair which makes two nights in odd rigs next weekend. Dates are to be called for in most original fashion, but we'll tell you more later.

And thus off to the Phi Delt spring party at the Lincoln, when the boys from Charlie's place turn another page of their social diary. Or perhaps you made the Lambda Chi Alpha seasonal hop at the Cornhusker, absolutely doctor's orders.

Pi K. A. is giving a buffet supper this evening at the chapter house for members and their dates. The Beta Alliance will entertain the active chapter this evening with its annual buffet supper. Some of the newer combinations that will be seen there are Mary Mullen, Theta, and Orval Hager; Helen Burnham, D. G., and Bud Tallman; and Marguerite Young, Chi Omega, and Jim Welden.

At the Lambda Chi formal last night, Garland Sloan and Margaret Dickerson, Pi Phi, were there in full force. It seems that for the Pi Phi formal, Garland furnished dates for some of the Phi's and since that time, these boys have kinda stuck. There seems to be a new affair in the air between Dick Martin and Betty McGeachin, Pi Phi. We're not saying this is true, but there have been rumors to that effect. Babe Carleson, Pi Phi, and Wynne Tolbert were together, and some are beginning to sense a pin hanging.

New pledgings are Helen Ruth Wilkins, Alpha Xi Delt; and Edgar Van Baeming of Blue Hill and Carol Voss of Kearney, A. G. R.

BY THE HAUNTER.

It was a right pert gown in which Eloise Benjamin, prom girl, was presented Friday night, but it was a bit difficult for one of the candidates, Gen Hoff, to stay at the other end of the coliseum all evening. She, in the week before, had purchased an exact duplicate of the presentation formal, unknowingly, of course.

While we're putting "dress" in this column, we are reminded of another story. That one concerns Jack Simmons, Sigma Nu, and Lou Boyd, Kappa. When the rag asked Seamoan for a description of his date's prom dress, he merely replied, with her confirmation, that she would be wearing the same old thing. —But to his surprise and chagrin, Lou blossomed out in a knockout, just to prove he was wrong.

Frannie Boldman, cochairman of the function, also had a whim concerning the presentation. She felt that it was fine, but all too short, so she wanted to restage it. The feat was practically carried out as Adna Dobson, gridder, pulled the curtains and worked the lights and Frannie sealed the stairs to the prom girl's position.

More post-prom stuff includes the tale of Chuck "Chicle" Tanton who decided Ruthie Huston, Chi O, should also be presented. Thus he dragged her to the top of the saxophone (over 10 feet high). But he wanted her presentation to be more spectacular than Miss Benjamin's; he wanted her to jump off, rather than to descend the stairs. Ruthie did not jump!

As for those people who worked backstage during the presentation, it might be said that they were left holding the sax.

Gawd! Can't we get off this subject? One smarty in the crowd cried out, "Boy, this presentation has sax appeal."

Bruce Campbell, Awgwan mogul, informed George Rosen, camera carter, that his official funny book title would be "candidramatist" from then on. Rosy spontaneously replied, "O. K., I would leica that."

Griff Williams, need we identify him, had only the following to say of the current prom, "It was a — good party, but they made me quit playing too soon." If you will recollect, the Griffer didn't take an intermission long enough to give John K. Selleck time for a haircut.

In his college days he was a Sigma Nu at Stanford and consequently he dined with his local brothers yesterday on soup and sandwiches.

Incidentally, he will play in Lincoln next June.
