WELL, FANCY THAT

What is your reaction to bromides? If you aren't quite sure what your reaction is, then read the following sentence and see if you wince at its over familiarity.

"In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love." That is just about the acme in overworked and oft-repeated phrases. It is the most bromidic of all bromides. Besides it isn't always the truth. Young men's fancies, unlike great men's minds, do not always run in the same channel. We stated that as if it were a postulate, but it is really only a hypothesis, a theory.

However, we decided to give the theory a few acid tests at odd moments during the day and see what fancies lightly turn to.

Feeling in an unusually good extrovert mood, we started the day off by asking a fellow passenger on a streetcar:

"What does your fancy lightly turn to these days?"

He glanced at us once and got off at the next corner.

Falling into route step with a beboozed student in front of us, we ventured the same question.

"Make-up test in bus org," he replied quickly and without the slightest trace of hesitation.

"Aha," we chorled, "the theory she is being proven."

"And how is your fancy turning?" was addressed to the cellmate on our left in the 9 o'clock.

"In the spring a young man..."

He probably finished his sentence but we aren't sure because we gave the rest of his answer a deaf ear.

Gastronomical Fancy.

At noon, the subject of fancy-turning was foisted upon a comrade in the process of vitamin-inhaling.

"What is your fancy turning to these spring days?"

"Two hamburgers with pickle," he shouted to a waiter.

Vaguely aware, then, that something had been asked of him, he turned politely around and said:

"What was that?"

Having already obtained an answer to the question, however, we merely asked him to pass the mustard.

Sometime in the afternoon a spring-feverish boy said in reply to the oft-proppounded subject, quote, spring makes me think of picnics in fact I'm glad you reminded me I think I'll go on one right now unquote.

"I suppose your fancy is busy turning to love?" we shot at an athlete.

"Gosh, no," he said, after we changed his opening word a little bit, "give me baseball."

Taint Necessarily So.

Summer vacation, new spring suits, hour dances, ice cream and more picnics were the other answers given in reply to the topic of the day.

All of which goes to show that all young men's fancy-turning does not culminate in a four letter word rhyming with love. On the basis of the proof herein offered, then, we demand that the old axiom be repealed as it takes too darn much for granted.

Campusites Shed Winter Clothing As 'Sol' Heats Up

Yesterday, the advent of spring, brought the warmest day since last October's bright blue weather. The mercury climbed up and up, until students began to shed their sweaters and jackets in 2 o'clock classes and get drowsy from the balmy weather. When they walked out of classrooms, the thermometer read 81 degrees—the hottest that it has been this year.

What to do on a spring day is a problem that has been experienced by all. There are the tennis courts, which some of the more energetic students inhabited yesterday. Pounding balls across the nets in shorts and halternecks, it was evident that the sun-tan season had finally struck.

People lounging on the grass in front of U hall seemed happy and content. The student members of Board of Managers of the Student Union took themselves out under the trees and carried on the regular parliamentary order in their business. The rest of the campus wandering by thought them to be a botany class out on a field trip.

People licking ice cream cones as they walked down the street were few beside those sipping cooling beverages at the campus canteen centers. Others hurrying toward home for spring singing practice after spending too much time over a coke prophesied that it wouldn't be long before we shall see another Ivy Day.

Kalendar Offers Preview Tonight Of Coed Follies

Student Council Broadcast Presents Glimpses Of Skits, Models.

Presenting a bird's eye preview of the 1938 Coed Follies, the Student Council Kampus Kalendar broadcast will take radio listeners above the Temple theater stage tonight for a brief glimpse of skits and models in rehearsal. The program, the fourth in the weekly Kalendar series, will go on the air at 7:15 o'clock over station KFOR.

Mistress of ceremonies for the Follies, Sarah Louise Meyer will also act as announcer during the broadcast, describing costumes of various candidates for Best Dressed Girl, and chatting with Jane Barbour and Helen Pascoe, past and present presidents of the A. W. S. board, the group which produces the all-Girl show.

In spite of the strict no-men-allowed rule of the Coed Follies, it is hinted that Al Moseman, Student Council president, will crash the rehearsal to interrupt the feminine course of affairs.

The council publicity committee follows the same policy in this program that it has used from the first in the Kampus Kalendar broadcasts, centering the affair about the most outstanding campus event of the week.

First of the broadcasts feature an interview with candidates for Prom Girl, the second program was devoted to the school of music, and the third presentation, put on by the University Players, was entitled "An Interview with Queen Elizabeth."

Groups which will present skits include Carrie Belle Raymond, Pi Beta Phi, Sigma Delta Tau, Delta Gamma and Rosa Bouton hall. Curtain acts will be given by Chi Omega, Alpha Chi Omega, Alpha Omicron Pi, Barb A. W. S. league, and Gamma Phi Beta.

The fashions will be modeled in the setting of an exclusive modern dress shop, beginning with morning clothes, sport, spectator sport and street dresses, afternoon and date dresses and the candidates for Best Dressed Girl dressed formally.

AWGWAN CHIEF AGAIN CLAIMS 'BEST-EVER' HONORS FOR EDITION

March Humor Publication To Appear on Sales Stands Monday.

Again, an improvement! This one, well, it's really the best ever!—so declared Awgwan Editor Bruce Campbell, Jr., when interviewed yesterday concerning the new Awgwan which will peep out from stands in sosh and Andrews next Monday morning.

The cover of the March edition will be symbolic of spring, and will be a pleasant new rendition of the spring spirit. Editor Campbell reports a multiplicity of features and editorials as having come to print, chief among which are Morris Lipp's "How to Tell a Student Union Building Apart—Genus Nebraskaensis"; and Clarence Summers' "Patience of Psychology."

The new Candidrama page, edited and printed with pictures taken by Candidramatist George Rosen, aided and abetted with a brace of Hank Greenberger's work, will attract attention, as will Mr. Campbell's Roamer "Boys Get Spring Fever, or Four Men on a Love-Bug"—a short, short, short, etc., story.

There will be full page cartoon and other short articles. Something new, novel, different, is Awgwan's popularity contests. In fact, Mr. Campbell says it's "superior."

Kathryn King, who is doing graduate work in the English department, was winner of last year's award.

Pacifists Must Avert War, Insure Lasting Peace, Asserts Youthful Peace Service Secretary Wilson

BY ELLSWORTH STEELE.

Dan Wilson, area field secretary for the Student Peace service, is visiting Lincoln for the week to recruit volunteers for the S. P. S. summer student volunteer work, to aid in raising their financial support and to consult with student groups on the question of what to do if war is declared.

"No person has the right to declare himself a pacifist unless he is willing to act right now to help prevent war," the youthful peace worker asserted. "Passive pacifists have probably done more harm than any good they could accomplish."

His smile flashed frequently as the blue-eyed, curly haired graduate of Kansas Wesleyan told of his work with the Friends Service committee which aims toward peace through positive action. He is one of the ten field secretaries of the organization, which operates over the entire nation. His area includes Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Oklahoma and Colorado. He stated that failure had come to pacifists in the past because they thought that all they could do was to refuse to fight.

Twofold Duty.

"We have a twofold job. We must avert war, and we must bring about the fundamental changes necessary to a lasting peace. The worst thing that can happen to any nation is war. Some

'Cohort'--Or 'Quit Shoving'

The painting above, labeled "Quit Shoving" by one art student, is the reproduction of "Cohort," by Giorgio di Chirico which has aroused more attention than probably any other painting in the Nebraska Art association's annual exhibit now being shown in Morrill hall. De Chirico is an Italian painter who has had considerable influence on the Surrealists and Neo-Romanticists.

Annual Spring Party Set For Friday Evening In Activities Hall.

Rain will be the theme of the annual Ag Spring party which is to be held this Friday night in the Student Activities building. The "rain" atmosphere will be provided by colored lighting, cell-phone strung from the ceiling and huge umbrellas hanging high overhead and standing about the floor. Potted plants will add to the spring effect.

Climax of the party will be the presentation of the Goddess of Agriculture who has been elected by the vote of all Home Economic students. Her identity and that of her six attendants will be revealed Friday as Stern Sternburg and his eleven piece band provide the music.

SERVICES HONOR NELLIE COMPTON MONDAY MORNING

Dr. Luccock Conducts Rites For Former Nebraska Library Head.

Funeral rites for Miss Nellie Jane Compton, retired librarian of the University, were held yesterday morning at 10:30 in the funeral parlors of Castle, Roper, and Matthews. Dr. George Luccock, pastor interim of the Westminster Presbyterian church, was in charge of the services. Wilbur Chennoweth, music instructor at the University, played the organ. Approximately 135 friends and relatives crowded the small funeral chapel.

Miss Compton, who for 40 years served the university library, died in her home at 1735 Sumner early Friday morning following an illness of nearly two years.

After retirement from the library staff, Miss Compton was given the rank of assistant librarian emeritus. She was a member of Chi Delta Phi, Phi Beta Kappa and the Nebraska Librarian (Continued on Page 4.)

Campus to Register Views On U. S. Policy in Orient. At Home.

The Daily Nebraskan is taking part in a nationwide poll of student opinion on peace questions today. The poll which is printed in the paper can be left in the Nebraskan office, at the Nebraskan stand in Social Science or in the finance office in Ag hall.

The poll has been prepared and sponsored by the Brown Daily Herald of Providence, R. I. Over one million college students over the country will be contacted as 753 college publications present ballots to their readers.

The questions deal with the American policies in the far east, the naval program, measures to be taken to insure peace, when should men fight and the R. O. T. C.

The Daily Herald sees that "Europe and Asia alike are the scenes of aggressions as vicious as any in history. Students leaving college today will enter a world of strife and dissonance which presents the most discouraging outlook since the 'World War.' As a means of crystallizing campus opinion on these problems the Herald offers to the country its second Survey of Public Opinion on Peace during the week of March 22-26.

ORCHESTRAS TO PRESENT VARIED DANCE RECITAL

Group Features 'Water Boy,' 'Pictures From Life,' 'Circle Dance.'

Rhythmic expression of the movement of a southern chain gang accompanied by Negro spirit music will be one of the most striking dances in the repertoire of Orchestras, modern dance group, when it presents its annual spring recital next Saturday.

William Miller, baritone, will sing a group of colored folk songs while members of the cast depict the gripping moods of "Water Boy."

Requests from spectators last year, according to Miss Claudia Moore, have resulted in the repetition of several numbers in this year's recital. Most popularly received were the "Circle" dance and "Pictures from Life." The latter dance, by use of motion, gesture and pantomime, portrays the village flirt, gossip and sewing circle in life abstract, the director said.

Nineteen dancers will take part in the presentation which is scheduled to be held in Grant Memorial hall beginning at 8 p. m.

Missing Philadelphia Professor Neither Lost Nor Stolen, Just Strayed Into Wrong Classroom

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (ACP). This is the case of a missing professor.

By 9:15 a recent Friday morning, Dr. Frederick H. Lund's class in social psychology at Temple university was ready to begin its work. The latecomers had slipped in and there was a mixed air of resignation and eagerness that precedes roll call. There was, however, no professor.

By 9:20 the late-comers had slipped out and there was a mixed air of "go?" or "shall we stay?" which precedes an exodus from classrooms.

But before the general emigration took place, an enterprising member of the class returned with the news Dr. Lund was not lost—just misplaced. He had forgotten his own class, and was teaching a Psychology I group!

With any other professor you might pass it off as just absent-mindedness, but when a psychologist forgets his class you immediately look for a "motive."

Dr. Lund's own explanation negates any elaborate explanations.

"It was a case of absentmindedness," he confessed. "I was so interested in arranging for an experiment in a general psychology group, that I forgot my own class in social psychology."

But depend on a psychologist to put a new twist in it: Dr. Lund's case, apparently was "atypical." It would have been more excusable if he had gone to classes on a holiday. That would have been a typical case of absent-mindedness.

"Because," Dr. Lund explains, "it is more usual to go to a class when it isn't scheduled to meet at its regular time, than it is to forget the regular meeting of class. Individuals, being creatures of habit, are more likely to follow their usual routine and to forget any possible changes."

Dr. Lund elaborated the absent-mindedness of professors and ascribed its chief cause to professors' "power of concentration."

"This ability to concentrate is not an unmixing blessing. It often leads to amusing things and makes professors feel pretty silly," he said.

"Another reason for absent-mindedness in teachers is that they are constantly dealing with ideas, and are usually reacting verbally. The engineer who deals with physical objects is less likely to be absent-minded."

The inability of the mind to give attention to more than one thing at a time is a third cause of absent-mindedness, according to Dr. Lund.
