"George!"
"Yes!"
"Instead of you taking me to a show or dance tonight, why don't you do something different?"
"Why sure. What would you suggest?"
"Well, I think it would be nice just to sit and talk awhile about current events, and the Japs, and the nazis and those Spaniels who are fighting each other. I just read the other day that the university students don't pay enough attention to what goes on in the world. It really made me think, George, and so I thought maybe we could just sort of talk things over tonight and exchange opinions."
"It's a good idea, hon. Just as a starter, who do you think is going to cop the bunting in the American league? I figure the Yankees, don't you?"
"Oh, George, be sensible. Let's talk about important news."
"Okay. Do you think DiMaggio will really hold out? He's a pretty stubborn Italian."
"Oh, those Italians. Isn't it just too terrible what they did to the city of Vienna. That Mussolini must be an awful egotist."
"Yeah, but Hitler treated the Otheppians just as bad, remember?"
"Of course I remember."
"Listen, hon. I don't want to start an argument but wasn't it Mussolini who subjugated the Ethiopians and Hitler that nazified Austria?"
"Dabbling in Dictators."
"George, I didn't know you knew so much. That's the way it was, of course. Did you see that picture of Hitler shaking hands with Mussolini in Life a few weeks ago? The one where Adolf had on a civilian suit and looked just like a bond salesman? When I saw that picture I thought to myself, 'I wonder what Hitler thought about the duce and what the duce thought about Adolf when they shook hands and said glad to meet you.' Dictators are so fascinating, aren't they?"
"Yes, they do have arresting personalities. And they use them to arrest everybody they suspect of having such old fashioned as democracy."
"Isn't it horrible what those Spaniels are doing to each other. I can't imagine a country where the people are so narrow-minded about principles of government that they kill each other."
"I thought we had a civil war once, too."
"Oh, that was different. Say, isn't it awful the way those sudeten nazis in Czechoslovakia are plugging the Prague?"
"Terrible, but what can you expect after Hitler had his Reunion in Vienna? Do you think the Slovaks can Czech him?"
"Why sure they can. Otherwise why should they call them the Balkan States, George. Look at China, George. Where is it today?"
"On the Yangtze and Whang-poo rivers, I thought."
"Silly, I meant as a government. Those conceited Japanese, those detestable Orientals, are tearing it to bits. Don't you think the United States should put on an economic boycott?"
"I would rather see John Bull in a China shop, myself."
"John Bull in a China shop."
"It's awful, George, the state the world is in. Those Japanese breaking up China, Hitler plugging everything but his upper lip, Mussolini balancing chips on all shoulders, and Uncle Sam, John Bull, and La Belle France walking on tightropes and tightropes on account of they're afraid somebody is going to push them off."
"You said a mouthful, hon."
"All right, George, I've think we've talked enough for tonight. Let's go somewhere. But let's do it again next week. I think we can afford to spend five minutes a week just talking things over, don't you?"

Prof. W. F. Weiland Develops New Method for Determining Sludging in Lubricating Oils

Colorimeter Procedure Cuts Time Required for Test To Five Minutes.

A new, more rapid and efficient process for measuring the sludging characteristics of lubricating oils has been developed in the mechanical engineering laboratories at the University of Nebraska by Prof. Walter F. Weiland. Most of the older methods for measuring the lubricating qualities of oils required several hours of testing, whereas Professor Weiland's method cuts the time to little more than five minutes and produces results significantly consistent.

As the result of this new procedure, which is based upon measuring the change in the color density of the lubricant by means of colorimeter measuring tubes, the useful life of an oil can be more easily determined. In recognition of this work Professor Weiland has

Popular scientific journals and newspapers thruout the land have made much of Dr. Stanley's research with virus material that seems to be non-living under some conditions and living under others. He succeeded in isolating the virus causing mosaic disease of the tobacco plant. Hitherto, says Dr. Stanley, it was believed that viruses were living organisms.

Student Council Committee Submits Proposal to Govern System of Men's Activities

Innocents Praise Attempt To Regime Organizations

Wadhams, Clayton, Mosman Approve Limitation Rule for Men on Campus.

The past there have been many occasions in which one person has been president of several organizations and active in so many others that he has almost run the whole activity setup. The organizations would be run better if their leaders had the time to devote their primary interests to one activity. This would give more people a chance to get someplace in organizations and would serve as a stimulus for the members to work harder for the group.

Bill Clayton, editor of the Cornhusker, states that the critical time for a men's point system would be in the first year that it was established. "I am in favor of the plan providing that it is worked out in detail. The first year will be the most difficult, for the men in activities will not be used to it and may resent the limitations. If all the faults are smoothed out during the first year, it is bound to be very successful."

Northwestern U. Psychologist Denounces 'Epitaph Polishing,' Backward Looking Professors

Dr. D. W. Crane Calls College Teachers Second Rate, Blind, Ineffectual.

EVANSTON, Ill. (ACP). "Too many college professors are epitaph polishers dusting off the tombstones of big names in history."

With this biting criticism of the academic leaders in U. S. higher education, Dr. George W. Crane, Northwestern university psychologist, begins his denunciation of those who teach in modern colleges and universities.

"Hoodwinked by Professors. For three centuries here in America we have been hoodwinked by college professors who harp on culture. Most of them neither know what the word means nor demonstrate cultured personalities," he continues.

"Instead of teaching the students to be the life of the party," Dr. Crane continued, "most pro-

Board of Control to Yield Ax on Extracurricular Participants

The proposed establishment of a men's point system will take a long step toward reality this week when the constitution and by-laws for a Men's Activities Board and Point System, drawn by a special student council committee, will be submitted for an airing and discussion at an open council meeting Wednesday, April 13, at 8 o'clock in U. hall, room 106 or in written form to Harold Benn, 2545 O st.

The point system shall be in no way retroactive, but shall go into effect at the beginning of the school year of 1938-39. Before it becomes effective, it must be passed by the student council and by a majority vote of the men students on the campus at a general election. If possible this election will be held in connection with that for the election of the Ivy Day Orator and the nomination of candidates for the Innocents society.

A growing belief that the present set-up of men's activities with no limitations on the number causes harm to both the student and the organizations, necessitates the forming of some point system plan. The system is not proposed as a means of rewarding students in any way, yet it may be used in the future as a basis for determining the candidates for activities honors.

One unusual point in the proposed constitution and by-laws is a scholarship consideration in the number of activities one man may have. If his average is 82 or above, he may carry 11 points, if below 82 he may carry only 8 points.

Chairman of the committee which investigated the situation and drew up the constitution is Harold Benn. Other members are insurance work Tuesday. Those who would like to confer with Mr. Hines may make arrangements for appointments with him on Monday from 9:15 until 12 p. m. in the social sciences hall, room 306.

In a letter received recently by the committee on placements of the College of Business Administration, the Kansas City insurance representative stated: "We are extremely anxious to interview some of the leaders in campus activities, because we have found that these men usually develop into the best salesmen."
