BIOGRAPHY OF A PSYCHOLOGIST'S SON

For years I have been wanting to make known to the world the life I have led, the living inferno that I, Mortimer Gosden, have been going through as a son of one of the world's greatest experimental psychologists.

From the time that I first entered the world with a doctor's slap, I have been dropped, electrocuted, hit, starved, and stuffed all in the name of science.

One of the first things my father experimented with was my reflexes. He gave me a bottle of warm milk, complete with soft nipple and I quickly learned how to operate the nipple with a sucking motion of the lips. His next move was to let me get food, and hungry and then give me a bottle of warm milk with a big slit in the rubber top instead of just a pin point. I tilted the bottle up and got the milk—right in my face. I like to have choked. The next time he gave me the bottle of milk I threw it in his face.

No Chimpanzee.

I found out in my youth that it had been my father's burning ambition to raise me in the company of a chimpanzee for comparison of characteristics but my mother put her foot down on that idea. She was president of the local order of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and persuaded father that one experiment in the house was enough.

He used to hold out something promising in his hand to get me to walk at an early age. I would take one or two steps and fall flat on my face. He would place me upright again and coax me into doing the same thing. This got rather monotonous until I learned how to crawl, which wasn't what my loving poppa wanted at all. Another innovation of his which I have never forgiven was khaki diapers. He wanted to see if being uncomfortable would keep me awake, make me cry, or put me to sleep.

Most babies can sleep during the day and have a lot of fun at night what with bawling and getting their poppas to walk up and down carrying them in their arms. That never worked for me. The first time I tried it after the baby next door put me wise to it, my father got up saying, "This is just the chance I've been waiting for." He then took me by the hand and walked me up and down the kitchen floor which he had covered with cracker crumbs and felt like tacks to my bare feet.

He used to come to me with a pin. Then with much loud laughing and smiling, he would stick me with the pin. The smiling and laughing on his part was supposed to give me the idea that pin-sticking was all a huge joke and even a pleasurable pastime. I kicked his glasses off the first time and yelled bloody murder the rest of the times.

When I grew old enough to play in one of those jumpers, which has a canvas seat attached to a spring and the spring attached to the ceiling of a porch, my father cunningly sawed half the spring. Then just as I had got to bouncing good, the spring busted and I went down in a heap while my father recorded my reactions in a notebook. I had so many reactions it kept him busy for half an hour.

I guess I had a narrow escape in my cribhood. My mother told me just the other day that she had a hard time talking my father out of the desire to push me out of bed onto my head. He wanted to see if it was really true that a blow on the head would make me mentally deficient in later years.

Past Ghosts Ride Again As 'Rag' Goes Historical

Publication's Largest Single Issue to Trace Story of Nebraska U.

By LaVon Parker Linn.

We learn from the grapevine telegraph that the historical issue of the Daily Nebraskan will appear soon, with complete factual data touching on every conceivable phase of progress of the university. Business Manager Chuck Tanton declares that interest in the issue is increasing every day, and that present indications are that support for the project will surpass his fondest dreams.

Advice at hand indicates that it will be the largest circulation of a single issue in the history of the publication. Plans call for students themselves selling copies at 10 cents each, with 5 cents per copy going to the student making the sale. The money will be collected in advance and turned in to the business manager as collected.

"Shades of Scandal Sandahl"

We feel that the way to make this announcement would be to let it all Edward VIII with the words "at long last" but inasmuch as our cause is slightly more local in interest, we forego the opportunity. We think, however, that the program is worthy of support from every person who

Corn Cobs Adopt Non-Fraternity Reorganization

Pep Club Votes Unanimously For New Plan, Modeled On Kosmet Set-Up.

Final vote on the reorganization bill at the Corn Cob meeting last night found the men's pep club unanimously in favor of adopting the new setup patterned after the Kosmet Klub, which puts membership in the club on a merit basis.

According to the accepted plan, the Corn Cobs will be made up hereafter of four senior officers, 16 active junior members, and sophomore workers whose efforts throughout their sophomore year will be recorded and serve as their bid for membership in the active club. Each spring four active members will be elected to positions for the next year while the other 12 juniors become inactive to make way for the 16 new workers who are accepted by the active chapter.

Set Spring Party Date.

Heretofore, sophomore Corn Cobs have been on a pledge basis, and this year no record was kept of their individual work. This year both pledges and active members will vote the four seniors who will hold office next year and also for the 16 pledges who will be accepted into membership. The new officers will be in charge of the initiation for new members.

May 21 was the date set for the annual Corn Cob spring party and dinner dance. Plans were left to the party committee for arrangement.

Block, Bridle Group Holds Annual Meats Judging Competition

Winners to Receive Trophies; Contest Opens Today in Packing Plant.

The Block and Bridle club at ag college will hold its eleventh annual meats judging contest today, according to an announcement by Prof. W. J. Loeffel. The contest will be held in the coolers of the Lincoln Packing company at 1:15 o'clock.

Men competing will be required to place carcasses and wholesale cuts of beef, pork, and lamb. Judges for the contest will be Tom Aitken, Tecumseh; Lester Schmadeke, Bradish; Carl Swanson, Kearney; and Earl Hedlund, Chapell.

Bus Transports Contestants.

Aitken, Schmadeke, and Swanson were members of this year's championship meats judging team at the International Livestock show in Chicago. Hedlund was a member of the team last year.

Home economics students will compete in meats judging at the Lincoln Packing company Saturday morning. Professor Loeffel added, "A bus will pick up any woman wishing to enter the contest at Ag hall at 8:00 o'clock. In addition to placing carcasses and wholesale cuts, they will be required to identify 25 retail cuts and tell the best method for preparing each one.

Trophies for both contests have been donated by the National Livestock and Meat Board of Chicago. Additional prizes will be furnished by the Nebraska Livestock Breeders and Feeders association.

Last year this contest was won by Chris Saunders.

VERSE WRITERS VIE FOR IVY DAY HONOR

Faculty Committee to Judge Winner From Poems Submitted.

Entries are now being received for the position of Ivy Day poet, a traditional figure of Ivy Day whose name is kept secret until he reads his poem at the ceremony.

The contest, sponsored by Mortar Board, is to be judged by Dr. Louise Pound, Miss Margaret McPhee, and Dr. I. C. Wimberly. A cash prize of $5 will be awarded to the winner.

Open to both men and women, the contest reaches its deadline April 29. All manuscripts must be submitted to Mrs. Westover in Ellen Smith hall by 5 o'clock on that date. No identification will be attached to the poem, the name of the entrant to be enclosed in an accompanying envelope.

For the first time, in order to make the judging entirely above criticism, the judges will not know the names of the contestants until after the selection has been made.

THE WEATHER

"Skies are gray" today, says the weatherman. Possibly rain and then again possibly not rain. At least clouds.

INTERFRATERNITY FORENSIC MATCH TO OPEN TONIGHT

Annual Greek Debate Meet Takes Navy Increase As Subject.

Eight fraternity teams will vie for the interfraternity debate championship in the first round to be held this evening at 7 o'clock in the chapter house of each affirmative team. "Resolved, that the United States should greatly enlarge the navy," will be the question discussed.

Each speaker will have six minutes for a constructive speech and four for a rebuttal argument. All speakers will speak on either side of the question. Two preliminary rounds will be held this year before eliminations are made. The second round will be held April 18.

Teams for the first round are as follows. The affirmative team is named first.

Beta Theta Pi vs. Alpha Tau Omega.
Delta Theta Phi vs. Phi Alpha Delta.
Kappa Sigma vs. Zeta Beta Tau.
Sigma Alpha Mu vs. Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

All judges will be from the intercollegiate debate teams.

BLOCK, BRIDLE NAMES SANDERS AS PRESIDENT

Ag Club Head Places First In Recent Livestock Judging Meet.

James Sanders, Lindsay, junior in animal husbandry at the college of agriculture, has been elected president of the Block and Bridle club, it was announced today.

A silver trophy was presented to Sanders for placing first out of more than 100 students competing in a recent livestock judging contest at the college. Sanders placed first in the junior division of the same contest last year. He was a member of the junior livestock judging team that judged at Fort Worth last month and is a member of Farm House fraternity.

Stiefler and Edwards, and Everett Deger in the role of Satan will sing it. "Out of the Corner of My Eye" will be sung by the romantic lead, Charles Reilly, who plays the part of Harold Smooch. Stiefler supplied the words.

"Ladies of Hades," is Edelstein's fourth entry with lyrics by Edwards. April, May, and June, a singing trio, will present it in the show.

Jane Goetz Contributes.

Jane Goetz is the composer of "Jingo's Lingo" for which Edwards has written the words. It will be sung by Jingo, a radical devil, portrayed by Don Kellogg.

Gordon Dewey, piano player with the Beck-Jungbluth-Gibson orchestra which will play for the show, has composed the music for the song "That's What a Woman Can Do." Edwards has supplied the words, and it will be sung by the entire company in the show. (Continued on Page 5.)

COOPERATIVE BUYING FACES FRAT CRITICISM

Council Committee Queries Houses on Acceptance of Purchase Plan.

Letters will be sent to all house managers of sorority and fraternity houses and dormitories today asking them to consider a cooperative buying system which is being looked into by a committee of the student council.

The purpose of a co-operative buying system would be to lower the price of food which the houses on the campus must purchase. The system has been tried and found to work satisfactorily at Stanford, Oregon State and Ohio. At Ohio it was found that such a system lessened the cost 16 percent on $90,000 worth of provisions.

Al Schroeder, chairman of the committee that is proposing the co-operative buying, asks that all houses discuss the matter and reply giving any suggestions or objections that they have to the proposal.

Working on the committee with Mr. Schroeder are Helen Johnson, Deloris Bora, and Bob Van Norman.

SENIOR WOMEN ELIGIBLE FOR CHI O SCHOLARSHIP

Sorority to Grant $25 Award to Coed Making Highest Mark in Poli Sci.

OURY POSTPONES PARADE BECAUSE OF LENTEN WEEK

First R.O.T.C. Inspection To Take Place on Mall Next Tuesday.

Because of religious holidays and athletic practices occurring tomorrow, Colonel Oury has issued orders postponing Friday's scheduled parade until Tuesday, April 18th.

With the official government inspection due May 16, Colonel Oury expressed the opinion that there should be several parades similar to the one to be staged next Tuesday before inspection. He stated that he would cram as many as possible into the month's time intervening.

Next Tuesday's inspection will be held at 5:00 p. m., with companies forming on the mall facing Nebraska hall and proceeding from there to the mall in front of the coliseum. The entire affair is not expected to last more than three-quarters of an hour, according to Colonel Oury.

Concerning excuses from participating in the parade, Colonel Oury stated that the military department has "never permitted any man to go from an assigned duty to take part in military science. If a man has a class during the inspection parades, he attends that class, and not the parade." The colonel made this same statement concerning a student's working for financial support.

COOPERATIVE GROUP INTENDS TO FOLLOW INTERNATIONAL NEWS

New Organization Invites Interested Students To Membership.

Any men students interested in regularly following international affairs, but who do not have the time to devote to them, are invited to attend an informal meeting of a co-operative reading group at 10 a. m. each Friday in the Y. M. C. A. rooms of the Temple building.

The group consists of six students who have determined to switch the international stage and inform themselves on war progress, romance, languages, history, on Wednesday evening, April 20, at 7:30 in the studios of Flavia Waters Champe.

An invitation to attend is extended to all advanced students of French and Spanish, members of Le Cercle Francais, the club Espagnol, the Alliance Francaise of Lincoln, and to others who may be interested. The program is in charge of Mrs. Champe and Joseph Frank.

Tri-K To Inscribe Champion Judges' Names on Plaques

Winners of Crops Contest Receive Gold, Silver, Bronze Awards.

Names of men winning the Tri-K crops judging contest on the college of agriculture campus Saturday, April 16, will be inscribed on three bronze plaques hung in the agronomy laboratory.

Separate plaques are provided for the winner of the freshman division, the winner of the junior division, and the winner of the entire contest. In addition, medals of gold, silver and bronze, respectively, will go to first, second and third place winners in the freshman, junior and senior divisions. Ribbons will be awarded to the 10 high men in each division.

Precedent Broken.

Last year, for the first time in the history of the event, a freshman, David McGill of Waverly, was high man in the entire contest. Clifford Heyne of Winer won the senior division, and Randall Peterson of Grant was the 1937 winner in the junior division.

Members of the 1937 crops judging team have charge of the contest. They are Glenn Kingman, Chappell, junior, chairman; Clifford Heyne, winner, junior; Al Moseman, Oakland, senior; Ogden Riddle, Bartley, senior; Weston Whitner, Tilden, senior and Maur-

Criticisms Mainly on Basis Of Evaluating Various Men's Activities.

Technicalities of the proposed men's activity point system received an airing when the student council held its open meeting in University hall yesterday afternoon. Only one dissent to the entire plan was recorded. Eight students who were not members of the council appeared at the forum.

The entire meeting resolved into a discussion about the inequalities of the number of points proposed for different campus extra-curriculars. It was the general belief of those present that "not enough points were being given for work in certain organizations."

Basis of Points Questioned.

The basis on which the number of points would be ascertained was questioned most thoroughly. Three opinions were presented:

1. Should number of points be based on time spent in the activity?
2. Should number of points be based on prestige of the particular organization?
3. Or should number of points be based upon the prominence that the particular organization

GERMAN CAMERAMAN LECTURES ON MAKING GIANT ENLARGEMENTS

A. F. Baumann to Illustrate Speech With 150 Slides In Color Tonight.

Anton F. Baumann, one of Europe's outstanding photographers, will lecture and demonstrate the making of giant enlargements at an open meeting of the Lincoln Camera club tonight at 8 p. m., in Chemistry hall. Mr. Baumann comes from Wetzlar, Germany, where his interest in photography developed in the construction department of the E. Leitz, Inc., one of the largest optical firms in the world.

The lecture will initiate the beginner in the art of making huge enlargements from tiny negatives. Over 150 slides in color on scenic beauty and informal portraits make up part of the lecture.

Predicts High Speed Films.

His equipment facilitates his demonstrations because he can bring his own photographic enlarging equipment right into the lecture room. With this equipment he can actually make giant enlargements before his audience.

Phi Sigma Iota to Hold Open Meet Featuring French Culture Apr. 20

An open meeting featuring French music and French dancing will be held by Phi Sigma Iota, a romance languages honorary, on Wednesday evening, April 20, at 7:30 in the studios of Flavia Waters Champe.

An invitation to attend is extended to all advanced students of French and Spanish, members of Le Cercle Francais, the club Espagnol, the Alliance Francaise of Lincoln, and to others who may be interested. The program is in charge of Mrs. Champe and Joseph Frank.
