Looking back over old Rags of two years ago we find spring do-ing the same things to people, but the old order changes. For inthe old order changes. For in-stance maybe some of you can re-call when Rita Algers was calling Dave Deakins "Davey Boy," when Jane Barbour was deliberating be-tween the Phi Delt and Beta house when Barbara Damewood and Dat Tassie were among the insepa-rables when Margaret Straub and Tassie were among the insepa-rables, when Margaret Straub and Hank Kosman were together again and Helen Catherine Davis and Jimmie Stuart were that way about each other, when Jean Doty and Ted Bradley were constantly and Ted Bradley were constantly name together and the Sig Alphs seen togther, and the Sig Alphs were playing with Yo Yo's. My how times have changed.

Last week when the town was crowded with high school boys and girls on senior sneak, a carload of the youngsters were out ful spill at the Engineers ball Satdoing the town and seeing the sights when they spied what they thought was a fraternity house. To be sure it was the Acacia shanty so a group of the girls parked in front and pretty soon they had attracted what a most of they build attracted what be parked in front and pretty soon they build attracted what a most of they build attracted what be they build attrac they had attracted quite a mob of Acacin's who also were evidently doing the sights that day, Guy doing the sights that day. Guy Williams, with his usual foresight, immediately made a date with a queen from St. Paul, but the worst shock was when she stood him up. Fancy a college man letting a mere youngster do that to him. # Grid Backfield Prospects Go Military

THE DAILY NEBRASKAN, TUESDAY, APRIL 26, 1938.
