pic institution, is planning and counting on his trip to Kansas City the Fourth of July to see a Kansas City Kitty or maybe just one of the Kathys (Marion to be specific). Life is like that, I guess.

Minor Plumb, '38, will serve as supervisor of music at Fairfield, Neb., next year.

Rain almost every day now . . . people in trench coats making a dash for the Student U. . . Inside Miss Steele and other hierarchies lurching in a booth in the caking room and gazing out at the splashing drops and mud outside . . . a slew of new records ordered for the nickelodeon, among them that new hit Orren Tucker popularized, "Especially for You" . . . later in the afternoon, the crowd all sauntering to the ballroom for another matinee dance . . . Virginia Fleetwood and Bob Ramie still doing the rounds, this summer without the aid of Jack Ellsworth . . . Betty Orme doing her studying in the grill and then, loading books under her arm, heading for the swimming pool to do more studying while basking in the sun, this in cloudy weather . . . Johnny Wachter chalking up "Gladys" in his telephone memo book, whatever that may mean . . . Bill Wahl almost running into pedestrians at Ellen Smith corner . . . and the sun making a sudden appearance to ridicule the people who had taken to rain coats. And so from day to day.

Tonight being Friday, if you can't think of something to do, you might drop in on the mixer at the Student U. Last week it turned out to be sort of fun, probably because there were just mobs and mobs of people. We shan't embarrass very many people by mentioning names but quite a few of the better boys appeared without dates and proceeded to keep the stag line crowded.

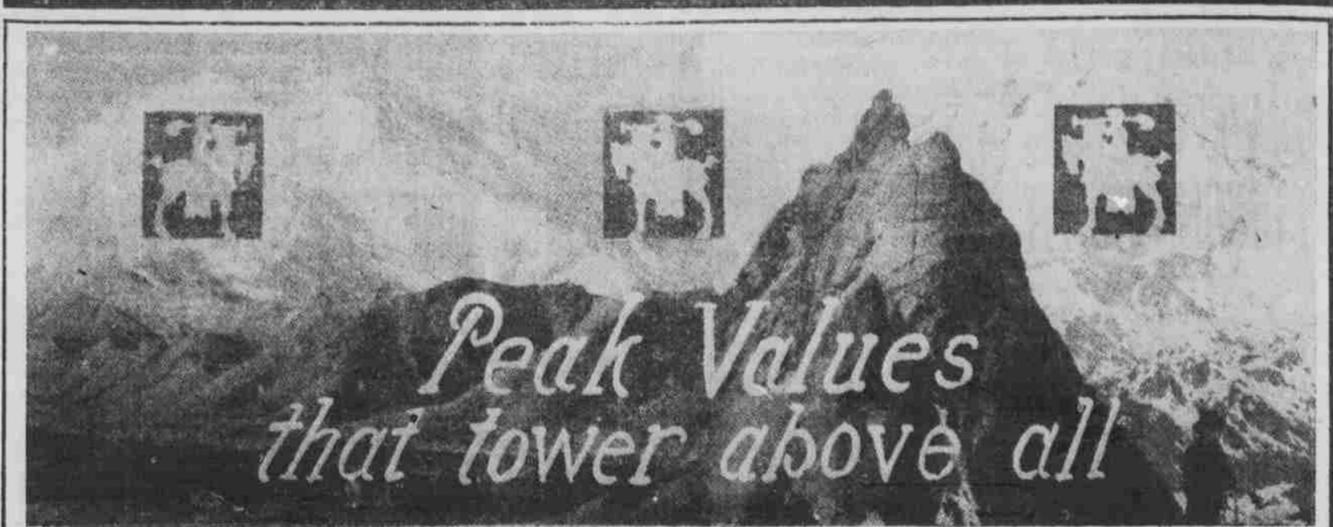

Just to make summer school more interesting, there are still the matinee dances, on Wednesday, I believe. At the last one, no end of excitement was created when some young Alpha Sig pledge tried to cut Carl Cleveland's date. She didn't know the youngster, and proceeded to say so, while Cleve just turned a luscious parlor pink. Very becoming, however.

Just a word about the park. Leonard Dunker and some of his cronies seem to stag it every night. Just looking for prospective dates for next fall when the new crop of freshmen put in an appearance, Dunky claims. Whitney Reed stags it too. Don't know what his excuse is.

Dick Neu a nightly customer at Antelope, and always the same immaculately white-coated Dick. Bob Pillsbury, who dances in such happy-go-lucky rythm, rivaling that Neu man for attendance.

Bill Lyman with another high school chum. . . ho hum!

Elmer Bauer, the chee chee, has deserted the bachelor's club, or at least he did Wednesday night. In fact, Elmer was way up there in the clouds when Vivian Esse was in town for the evening. Now, we hear that that Ivan man, who was the very pillar of their philanthro-
