

FIRST UNIVERSITY OUTING ATTRACTS STUDENT CROWD

Union Building Closes Friday
Night; Will Open Again
On Tuesday.

More than 500 students turned out for the all-university outing at Capitol Beach yesterday afternoon, according to Miss Marian Steele, Student Union social director. With everyone entering enthusiastically into the fun of dancing, swimming, novelty races and every type of sport, this first summer school activity of its kind was declared a decided success by the recreation committee.

The Student Union building will be closed Friday, July 1, until Tuesday, July 5, because of the large number of summer school students going out of town for the weekend, Kenneth Van Sant, Student Union director, states.

Beginning the list of social activities for next week is an hour dance which is scheduled for Wednesday, July 6, from 5 to 6 o'clock. Wednesday night at 8 o'clock Ray Ramsey, alumni secretary, will give a talk on Mexico, illustrated by colored slides. Mr. Ramsey is well-known for his extremely humorous manner of presenting his ideas in a style that is all his own and this talk promises to parallel his former programs in interest and entertainment.

For Thursday, July 7, another splash party is scheduled from 5 to 6 o'clock in the coliseum pool. A good attendance, equaling last week's is expected. The golf tournament for men will be scheduled in a few days. Registration for the women's golf tournament is being continued. Dates will be announced later.

Horseshoes are being played daily. Baseball games are being well attended by both men and women and an excellent number is turning out for the recreational swims, Miss Steele states.

Waylaid Letter Puts Bewildered N. U. Prof on Spot

Early one morning recently, we are told, Dr. C. O. Swayzee, associate professor of personnel and labor relations, opened a letter from his morning mail to find written thereon the words, "Angel: You don't know how I've missed you..."

As may be expected, the good doctor was at first distinctly startled, and sat for a time quite at a loss. Glancing cautiously then at the envelope, he discovered to his chagrin that it was addressed to a girl who had been in one of his classes during the previous semester, and had been sent in his care because the sender, another girl in the same class, did not know the address of her friend.

In confusion Dr. Swayzee rushed the letter to its owner. Observers state that since then correspondence and all allied subjects have entered definitely into the list of unmentionables as far as the doctor is concerned.

COOPER TRUST OFFERS ANNUAL FELLOWSHIPS

Graduates in Agriculture,
Business May Receive
$500 Awards.

Two new graduate fellowships of $500 each have been established at the university by the Cooper foundation, a charitable trust established some time ago by J. H. Cooper of the Lincoln Theater corporation. One will be known as the John E. Miller graduate fellowship in Business Administration and the other as the Charles Stuart graduate fellowship in agriculture.

Both fellowships will continue yearly, making their establishment the equivalent of a $25,000 endowment to the University foundation. Mr. Miller and Mr. Stuart were members of the board of trustees of the Cooper foundation and as prominent and public spirited Lincoln business men had been interested in directing its charitable bequests since its inception.

The fellowships will be awarded annually to the student in the senior class of the college of business administration and the student in the senior class of the college of agriculture who have made the most outstanding records in their respective classes and who desire to do graduate work in their fields either at Nebraska or at some other college.

Sudeten German Youth Sees In Hitler Nation's One Hope

Letters From Czech Boys
Reveal Intense Loyalty
To Der Fuehrer.

Nestled among the Sudeten mountains on the north boundary of Czechoslovakia is the little village of New Oderberg. Across to the northwest lies Germany, and to the northeast, Poland. In this focal spot bitterness between the Czechs and Sudeten Germans has grown to an alarming state within the past few months.

Much has been written, many newsreels have been shown which present the case from the Czechoslovakian point of view and from the point of view held by democratic countries of the world. The following excerpts from a letter to a Nebraska student present the case as it appears to a Sudeten

STUDIO THEATER TO OFFER GROUP OF SHORT PLAYS

One-Act Dramas Scheduled for Next Wednesday Night in Temple.

Continuing this year's summer theater season, another series of three one-act plays is being planned for next Wednesday night to be held at 7:30 in the Studio theater of the Temple building. These plays will be directed, managed and presented by students. No admission will be charged. Sponsoring the presentations will be Herb Yenne, assistant professor of speech.

This week's group of plays will include "All My Life," "The Bond Between," and "Rollo." Miss Laverne Munger will direct the production of "All My Life," which is a serious play. The cast will be composed of Mary Hibbard as Mary Sawyer, Elsie Coleman as her mother, Mrs. Sawyer; Hilda Wiebe will play the part of Miss Jarvis and Mildred Burnham as cast as Mrs. McGregor.

Directing "The Bond Between" will be Wanda Cramer. In this serious drama Jeanette Seeborg will portray the part of Miss Brigg; Gladys Neff, Mrs. Haledon; Ruth McDuffee is cast as Joan and Ruth Carr as Mrs. Carson.

"Rollo," the third play, is a tragedy of the future which will (Continued on Page 4.)

WORKERS FIND TRACES OF LARGE INDIAN HOME

Hill, Cooper, Archeologists, Report Findings Near Fort Calhoun.

Remains of a large Indian home have been uncovered southeast of Fort Calhoun on the James Fitzgerald farm, A. T. Hill and Paul Cooper, both of the university archeological department, have announced. Following the discovery by highway construction men of numerous skeletons, 12 Washington county WPA workers were assigned to the project.

The Indian home is about 30 feet in diameter, with a fireplace in the center. It is what remains of a pit dug to a depth of about four feet. In it are the stub ends of the posts which supported the roof. Pottery, clay pipes and utensils have also been found.

A short distance away an Indian cache house has also been unearthed. This house is built on the same pattern, except that it has a number of caches in the floor, which are believed to have been used for the storage of furs, meat and vegetables.

Regents Apply For Federal Aid In Building Plan

EXCAVATION BEGINS ON ARCHEOLOGICAL SITES IN NORTHEAST

Dr. E. H. Bell Directs Work
From Headquarters
In Lincoln.

Excavation began this week on the third of three archeological sites to be worked this summer in the northeastern part of the state. Stations have been set up in the vicinities of Ponca, O'Neill and Stanton. Dr. E. H. Bell, assistant professor of anthropology, is directing the work from his headquarters in Lincoln, with Steve Wimberly, Lincoln, Perry Newell, Lincoln, and Henry Angeline of New York City in direct charge of the three groups of WPA workers.

Laboratory work is being carried on at the university at the same time, with Eleanor Cook, a Nebraska graduate who has been taking advanced work at the University of Chicago this year, in charge. Artifacts will be sent in each week, and daily reports will be sent by the student lieutenants to guide in the classification of the material shipped in.

At Ponca the university forces under Steve Wimberly are working about one mile north of the village, beginning at the top of the bluffs (Continued on Page 4.)

SUMMER FIELD CREWS MINE FOSSIL CAMELS

C. Bertrand Schultz Tells of Museum Party's Discoveries.

This is definitely a camel year for the University summer field parties who have been hard at work for several weeks now uncovering fossils in western Nebraska. Probably a greater variety of camel bones have been mined so far this year than for any previous summer, says C. Bertrand Schultz, assistant director of the museum, who returned to the University for a few days this week.

Schultz said that work is progressing rapidly at the Broadwater site where one museum party with the assistance of a sizeable WPA force is concentrating on excavating as much as they can of "the world's largest camel." At this same site three different types of camel have been found—a small llama-like animal, another about the size of the modern camel, and the giant form. At Hemingford the museum parties are finding much older camels, while at Crawford and Rushville camel bones are being excavated along with an abundance of many other prehistoric animals.

Prof. Evinger Speaks to Engineers Society

at Texas A. & M. College
Prof. M. I. Evinger of the civil engineering department addressed the convention of the society for the promotion of engineering education at Texas A. & M. college, College Station, Tex., Monday. Subject of his talk was the need for a course in construction management for student engineers and the proposed content of such a course.

Board Proposes $2,500,000 Project Pending State Legislative Action.

Plans for a $2,500,000 building program at the University have been revealed by Chancellor E. A. Burnett and the board of regents, with applications for PWA grants to cover 45 percent of the cost now being prepared.

The major part of the University's share of the expense will require appropriations from the state legislature, and unless the PWA closing date is extended beyond January 1, 1939, a special session of the legislature will be necessary before that date in order to secure advantage of these grants.

Applications are being prepared for the following projects conditioned on appropriations by the state legislature in time to be eligible for federal grants:

- Library $300,000
- Engineering laboratories 750,000
- New University hall, ... 45,000
- Home Economics hall, ... 175,000

Of the self-liquidating type of projects requiring no tax money the only application filed at the present time is that for a $275,000 athletic service building and stadium repairs and betterment. The 55 percent of the cost of this project to be borne by the University will come from athletic receipts.

In requesting funds for a new library, the regents pointed out the gross inadequacy of the present building which has facilities for only a relatively small number of the books owned by the University. Reading accommodations are far from proportionate to the present large enrollment, also.

It is proposed to unite the various departments of the engineering college under one roof in a large new Engineering hall to be erected near Twelfth and T streets facing the main quadrangle from the west. Very meager accommodations are now provided in the several scattered old buildings and much valuable equipment (Continued on Page 4.)

School Official Gets in Trouble at Pearly Gates

A registrant in the Bureau of Educational Service was recently requested by R. D. Moritz, director of the bureau, to give the superintendent under whom she had last served as an additional reference. In reply to this inquiry, Mr. Moritz received the following communication:

"I cannot give my superintendent as a reference because he finally died off last week. I had a dream in which I saw him floating around in space, and I heard the Angel Gabriel tell him that before he entered the Pearly Gates, he must confess his administrative error.

"Now, think!" said the Angel Gabriel, as he instructed him to take a box of chalk with him on his way up, and for every administrative error that he had made to drop a piece of chalk. Pretty soon I saw my superintendent coming down, and the Angel asked him where he was going. He replied: 'I'm going after more chalk!'"

Enrollment Approaches Final Figure With 2,215

Virtually complete enrollment figures for the summer session total 2,215 at the present time, including 85 students registered in the school of nursing in Omaha. This represents nearly 200 more registrants than the final figure for last year which was 2,017.
