GEORGE PIPAL, $1,000 to go to Columbia.

Journalism for the school year 1938-39.

Pipal received the degree of bachelor of arts in journalism here, and his one year course at Columbia will qualify him for the master of science degree in journalism. While at Nebraska, he was editor-in-chief of the Daily Nebraskan, a member of the Phi Kappa Phi fraternity.

The scholarship was established in 1934 by Mrs. Gilbert M. Hillbeck in memory of her late husband, former United States senator from Nebraska. Elizabeth Kelly, also a Nebraska graduate and a resident of Nebraska City, won the scholarship in 1937.

Party Honors Class of '42

Y. M.—Y. W. Entertains Wednesday at 7

With the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. as hosts, the new freshman class of 1942 will attend their first party Wednesday evening from 7 to 9:30 o'clock in the Student Union ballroom.

In the preceding line will be Miss Esther Ostberg, the new Y. W. C. A. general secretary, C. D. Hayes, Y. M. general secretary, and the student presidents of the two organizations. Entertainment for the affair will include informal group games and dancing.

1,000 Frosh To Get Caps

"Freshmen, use your heads! Yes, use the old noodle and at the same time show respect to your school by wearing a Freshman cross and scarlet '42 cap," so say the innocents, promoters of the cap selling campaign.

Orders for Freshman caps will be taken Tuesday at the coliseum, according to information released yesterday. It is expected that approximately 1,000 Greenies will buy caps this year.

As has been the custom in the past, Freshmen will wear the caps until the annual Dads' Day football game, possibly later. At this game, a tug-of-war with the Sophomore class decides whether the newcomers keep on wearing the school colors or, in case of a victory over the Sophs, whether they put the "hats" away with other keep-alls.

GET IN ON THE GROUND FLOOR

The Daily Nebraskan is the official student newspaper on the campus of the University of Nebraska. Some of those who work on this paper receive a salary. They attained those paying positions by hard work which was evaluated by a student publications board.

The first position that any new student would get on the Daily Nebraskan is that of reporter. By real work that's really fun, they can be quickly advanced. The Daily Nebraskan, therefore, issues this call to all students interested in reporting. Report any time Room 20 of the air-conditioned Union. We'll see you there. THE STAFF.

Forty-Four Added To Faculty

Professors Represent Many Schools

Forty-four additions to the faculty at Nebraska are in Lincoln and ready to take up their duties when classes start Thursday morning. While most of the new people will hold minor ranks, several will occupy outstanding positions in the academic family, notably Dr. C. S. Boucher, the new chancellor of the university. Others are: Dr. Ralph C. Bedell, associate professor of educational psychology and measurements in place of Dr. Devey B. Stuit; Frank Cunkle, teacher of organ, piano and composition in place of Wilbur Chenoweth; Dr. Theodore Jorgensen, Jr., assistant professor of physics in place of Donald L. Jorgensen; Miss Margaret I. Liston, assistant professor of home management in place of Louise Vessey; and Miss Ruth M. Lushy, associate professor of institution management and in charge of the agricultural college cafeteria.

Dr. Bedell, who has been professor of educational psychology and guidance and dean of the faculty of Warrensburg state teachers college for the past two years will take over the work formerly carried by Dr. Stuit. Dr. Bedell received his bachelor of science degree in education at Warrensburg, and his master's and doctor's degree from the University of Missouri.

Dr. Jorgensen who comes to the university from Clark university in Massachusetts, received his bachelor's degree from Harvard university in 1935.

Miss Liston will be assistant professor of home management in place of Louise Vessey, and has been instructor in home management at Indiana state teachers college for the past two years. A graduate of Iowa state college, she received her master's degree from the University of Missouri, where she held an assistantship in home management. For three years she was research assistant in home management at the experiment station in Vermont.

Miss Ruth Lushy has been selected as head of the institution management division of the department of home economics, Miss Lushy, who comes to Nebraska from Stout institute at Menomonie, Wis., succeeds Miss Martha Parks, who has accepted a position as head of the institutional administration department at Plattsburg Normal school at Plattsburg, N. Y. A graduate of Washington state college, Miss Lushy received her master's degree from Columbia university. She has been the head of the institutional administration at Stout institute since 1933. She has also been a member of the Iowa state college staff in the home economics department. She spent from 1928 to 1931 at Iowa.

Mr. Cunkle has taken work at Washington university, St. Louis, the University of Illinois, and the Eastman school of music at Rochester, N. Y. He received his bachelor and master of music degrees from the latter institution. The past year he has been an instructor in music.

County Governments Fail to Show Any Improvement, Declares Senning

Authority on Unicameral Blames Accounting.

Concluding that county government is still as bad as it was before the state legislature took a belated turn at improving it, University of Nebraska's Prof. John P. Senning recently published his survey of county governments in the state. The report came after months of research work by WPA workers under the professor.

The 1937 state legislature gave way under the steady hammering of reform groups demanding improvement of county government. As a result counties were required by statute to make out real budgets and establish uniform accounting systems. These measures, Prof. Senning declares, have failed. The failure of the budget law is found in several defects in the law itself and in the lack of an accurate and uniform accounting system which is essential to a sound budget. Failure of the accounting law the professor laid at the door of the State Auditor, W. H. Price.

Base for Lobbies. The survey revealed also: "Nebraska counties have been from

Chancellor C. S. Boucher Assumes Duties As Class Of 1942 Convenes

Chancellor Is Writer, Historian

E. A. Burnett Retires After 11 Years.

Dr. C. S. Boucher, formerly president of West Virginia university at Morgantown, W. Va., and former dean of the arts college of the University of Chicago, is the new chancellor of the University of Nebraska. The announcement by the regents of the new head of the state university was made in July at the same time as their announcement that Chancellor E. A. Burnett had retired at his own request after 11 years as head of the institution. Chancellor Burnett has been made chancellor emeritus.

The new chancellor of the university is 52 years old and has been on college faculties for more than a quarter of a century. Born in Chicago, he received his collegiate training at the University of Michigan, receiving his bachelor's degree in 1909, his master's a year later, and his doctor of philosophy degree in 1914. From 1911 to 1912 he studied at the Harvard Graduate School.

Taught in Many Schools.

After receiving his master's degree from Michigan he joined its faculty as instructor in history, returning to the same post after his study at the Harvard Graduate School. From 1914 to 1919 he was assistant professor of history at Washington university in St. Louis. The next year he was associated professor of American history at Ohio state university and for three years professor of American history at the University of Texas, teaching American history at Wisconsin the second semester and summer of 1923. In 1923 he joined the faculty of the University of Chicago as professor of American history. In 1926 he was made dean of the University of Chicago college of arts, literature and science, a post he held until 1935, when he was elected president of West Virginia university, a post grant college similar to Nebraska.

A Distance Winner.

He is the author of several works on the antebellum history of South Carolina and the South and a contributor on historical and educational subjects to the various leading periodicals. He was associate editor of the Mississippi Valley Historical Review from 1921 to 1924.

Dr. Boucher is married and has one daughter, Jane Elizabeth, a graduate in fine arts from Smith. Mrs. Boucher was born in the midwest and was educated abroad, at Wellesley and at Michigan. Dr. Boucher was a distance runner in prep school, faculty tennis champion at Texas, and faculty golf champion at Chicago.

In selecting Dr. C. S. Boucher to be the next chancellor of the University of Nebraska, every member of the board of regents feels that the board has selected an exceptional man who is well qualified by his training, experience, and philosophy of life to head Nebraska's greatest institution, its state university, under Stanley D. Long, Grand Island, president of the board.

The board of regents made a another. 2. The base for powerful lobbies around the legislature. 3. Unit cells in the state political machine." County officers often have only a very meager education. 58 percent of the sheriffs and 52 percent of the commissioners having had only eighth grade schooling, the property tax is becoming an increasingly smaller portion of the counties' revenue, assessor's lavish trips, entertainment and other treats on county officers to sell them, for instance, at the cost of $7,150 the same road grader the state purchased for $4,587.

To clear up the muddle into which county government has fallen, the social science professor recommends: Use the short ballot, the county manager plan where feasible, an accurate, efficient auditing system, reorganization of the county government on the basis of function, a training school for county officers, state supervision of finances, centralized purchasing and statewide clearing house of facts which might help the county officers.

PROF. JOHN P. SENNING.

Fellow Students:

I address you thus quite sincerely, and not as a mere pleasantry with tongue in cheek. This means that I realize that we can attain our common educational objectives only when faculty and administrative staff members, as well as you, play the role of the student in the fullest meaning of the word.

The University of Nebraska is a grand institution with a glorious tradition. We shall be untrue to the faith and trust placed in us if we do not at all times keep this in mind. By working together honestly and intelligently, and by playing together just as enthusiastically, we can have a most pleasant and profitable year.

Chancellor Chauncey S. Boucher

Chancellor To Welcome 1,700 Frosh

Newcomers Meet Deans Monday Morning

The complete Freshman day program may be found on page 3.)

1,700 freshmen will have their day on the campus of the University of Nebraska as their annual Freshman Day program gets under way Monday morning at 9 o'clock in the coliseum. For the first and only time that their complete group will ever meet in one body, they will officially open the activities for the 68th school year.

Entering the university for the first time this fall, and receiving a greeting that they will receive only once as first year freshmen, these students will become acquainted with the officials and traditions that would ordinarily require four long years to meet. Having completed the required tests for every student entering the university, these freshmen will be ready to meet officials and student representatives and receive preliminary information about the school and its different divisions.

Feature attractions on the Monday morning slate will be the welcoming address and first official appearance before the students by Dr. C. S. Boucher, new chancellor of the university.

Dr. E. S. Fullbrook, chairman of the Freshman day committee, will open the general convocation with songs and cheers. Harold Benn, president of the student council, will speak on behalf of the upperclass students. Following the introduction of the university pastors, Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. secretaries, the deans, directors, registrars, and the finance secretary, the new students will adjourn to the several college convocations. The college programs have been arranged to give the entering students the greatest possible information about the particular colleges concluding with the advice and counsel on registration.

A university reception to all students will be held Monday evening from 8 to 10 in the Student Union building. Every freshman is urged to attend.

Registration for all new students will be held Tuesday and Wednesday and first semester classes will start Thursday morning.

The W. A. A. freshman party will be held Tuesday evening in Grant Memorial hall and the Y. M.-Y. W. joint party will be held Wednesday evening at the Student Union building.

Union Installs Table Tennis

Five ping pong tables arrived at the Student Union building Friday still bound in paper but all ready to be set up. Finished in green they will be available for use Monday.

Bandmen Tryout Varied Interests Keep New Chancellors Active

Musical Groups Seek New Members

Tryouts for the university musical organizations will begin Tuesday afternoon, at which time both the symphony orchestra and freshman band will start making their selections.

Tryouts for members of the university symphony will be held in room 202, school of music, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons from 1 to 3 o'clock. Prospective bandmen may make their tryouts in the band room (Temple 306) on the same dates from 3 o'clock till 6 in the afternoon.

Dr. Boucher Optimistic Concerning Year

Jolly, candid and fun loving is Nebraska's new chancellor, Dr. C. S. Boucher. From the University of West Virginia he comes to his new post with open mind, for suggestions and offering no panacea for the ills of the educational system. Characteristic of those who enjoy associations with the intellectually awake, Dr. Boucher's appearance betrays his actual years. At 52, with steel gray hair and twinkling blue eyes, his brisk alertness and genial manner seem to place him in his early 40's.

Diffusing his personality into his work, Dr. Boucher's record has shown him to be always far seeing and advanced in his ideas on education.

Palladians Meet

Group Dons Costume For Opening Parties

Bustles, blossoming neckties, huge flower decked hats and other frills of human attire will be much in evidence this Tuesday and Wednesday as the historically minded Palladians hold their annual guest parties in "Honor of the Gay Nineties." Each evening at 8 o'clock the members of the literary society will greet about 70 guests in Palladian hall in the Temple building.

The program will find two "Pals" bent over the old family album glimpsing bits of hilarity which will be presented to the audience via the stage and a troupe of Palladian actors. Both nights Ariene Kellenberger will read "Society Stuff" and Gladys Swift will play as viola solos "The Swan" by Saint-Saens and "Minuet" by Boccherini. The aims of the organization will be explained Tuesday by a local speaker and Wednesday by C. E. Rosenquist, alumnus, who is assistant professor of agricultural botany. Refreshments will be served following the program.

Chicago Golf Champ.

The University of Nebraska, Dr. Boucher has observed, has a high degree of intellectual activity. "The faculty is wide awake, the students eager, and I am looking forward to associations and cooperation from them." Dr. Boucher has no plans for reform or changes in the university system of education. "Every institution must create its own individual plan, adapted to best suit its own needs. A system created for one school cannot work in its entirety for another. Each institution must study its own ills and confront them with a plan adapted especially for their remedy."

Not only does Dr. Boucher's approach

4,500 Ducats Sold

Pitt Bleacher Seats Go On Sale Sept. 28

Predictions that more than 6,000 trouted Cornhusker followers will be watching the Biffer's boys battling against the Minnesota Gophers in Minneapolis Oct. 1, came today as John K. Selleck announced that 4,500 ducats for the big game had already been sold thru his office.

Although records on the advance sale of tickets for the Huskers' home games have not been tallied, Selleck said that the Pittsburgh game tickets have nearly all been sold for the stadium proper. More than 6,000 bleacher tickets for the game, however, have not yet been released and will not be available until Sept. 28.
