One more football game lost and many "never-say-dies" planning to be in on the next... among them in one car are Mary Fran Kier, Alpha Phi, with Don Coy, Evelyn Leavitt and Virginia Haney of the Pi Phi with Bill D. U. Lyman and Al Ashworth... Ace Foo Delt Andreson is adopting "Nobody Makes a Pass at Me" as his theme song... Betty Alfi Groh and Werner Boch, Phi Psi, attracting attention by speaking German... Kappas can't understand Marge Melville not wearing Derrill Harlan's Figi pin unless a Sig Alph had something to do with it... Suzy KKG Bradford flat-heeled it with European traveler Dick Joyce, Phi Psi... ATOs captured a handsome pledge in Jack Arthur from O-my-ha... SAE Hopp pushed into the bushes by one of his faithful flames... Mortar Board aspirant hiding her Beta pin every time she sees a liberal.

Guesses are coming fast and furious on how Bob Waugh broke his leg. After eliminating the usual ones of tripping on the Sig Alf rug and bumping into a door, the only one left is that he stumbled over someone.

Dixie Davis hinted that you would read something different in the Wednesday column. She invited me to write as a guest what my idea of a society column was. Well, I sat down to type off the regular gore and when about half finished with all the ideas I had, I began to realize that I wasn't writing the right thing. So I have started anew, and here is what my ideas on a society column were.

The Phi Gamma Delta fraternity held their traditional Pig dinner at the Lincoln hotel last Saturday evening. The honored guest was J. E. Houston of Purdue, Ind., initiated into the fraternity in 1878. Rowland Thomas of Omaha was toastmaster for the evening. The Pig dinner has an unusual story back of it. About 1878 in California a Fiji by name of Norris stole a pig from the Beta's; since that time the fraternity has celebrated the trick.

Miss Gladys Lambert of Broken Bow and Foster Leui of Batesland, S. D., have announced their engagement. Miss Lambert is a graduate of Nebraska university.

Smith Views Architecture

Language Students Attend Slide Lecture

Prof. Linus Burr Smith, dean of the college of architecture, will discuss "The Religious Architecture of France" tomorrow at 4 o'clock in Social Science auditorium, continuing a series of lectures conducted by the department of romance languages.

With emphasis upon the most beautiful and representative French cathedrals, Prof. Smith will illustrate his talk with slides, showing the development of different types of architecture in various parts of France.

Prof. Smith will continue with his discussion of French architecture on Thursday, December 1, at the same place and hour. The combined lectures will constitute two of three being held for the purpose of familiarizing French students with the countries of the language they are studying, and incidentally to give them an opportunity for extra credit in their classes. The third French lecture will be presented on Thursday, January 12.

Similar supplementary lectures for Spanish students have already begun, with Ray Ramsay speaking on October 20. Prof. Nels Bengtson will talk on "Central America" on Thursday, November 17, and a third lecture, on a subject not yet determined, will be held on Thursday, January 5.
