It's a mighty poor situation, this center one here in the Big Six. Bob Broeg, sports editor of the Missouri student is touting Tiger Kinnick is the Kinnison as the all-conference quarterback choice, and backs it up by saying that Kinnison made Charley look like "Shirley Temple" when the Huskers lost to Missouri.

Charley made about 50 percent of all Nebraska's tackles in that game and was alert enough to break up or help break up almost all of Christman's short passes, and as I recollect, the line backing center isn't supposed to be or ex-pected to be 30 and 40 yards behind the line of scrimmage to bust up opponents passes.

Oh, yes! Nebraska's best passing of the season was done in the Missouri game, with most of the eight complete passes being short and in the flat, right near Mr. Kinnison's spot. And Mr, Kinnison wasn't mentioned as an outstanding defender against the Huskers. No, Bob ... Charley made Mr. Kinnison look sort of Baby LeRoy like ... but that's all the further the cinema comparisons went that

The only center who will really have a right to contest Charley for Big Six honors is K. U.'s Charles Warren who played a right smart game against the Cornhuskers, while Husker Charley warmed the bench more than half the game. Next Saturday freshmen footballers will be pitted against each other, as the coaching staff has more or less chosen up sides for a regulation game to be played then, Paul Amen, former Lincoln high and Cornhusker great will coach one squad and Bob Mehring, Grand Island alumnus, and Nebraska guard for three years will coach the other group.
