SPORT NOTES

By Norman Harris

From the University of Kansas Newsletter, we find that Kansas and Nebraska have played some 74 basketball games together. The Jayhawks have won 46 of these, amassing a total of 2,210 points against the Huskers' 1,858. The warped balance of games won compared with the total points indicates the close rivalry between the two schools.

Not in many of these 74 games has either school run off with victory by a wide margin. Most of the games were too close for comfort, but not many approached the heated argument last winter on the Husker court, when the Jayhawks fired up in the last minute to 50-47.

Notable among other records in this Newsletter were the statistics showing K. U.'s court relationship with other schools besides Nebraska. Kansas has played Kansas State 97 times, winning 56 games. The Jayhawks have been against Missouri's Tigers 88 times, and have walked off with 61 victories. Twenty-three of 25 games have been won from Washburn, 50 of 57 from Washburn, 29 of 40 from Oklahoma, 17 out of 19 from Drake. The Jayhawkers hold the edge over every long time opponent they have met during the past two decades or more. So, their supremacy is something that should more or less be taken for granted...yessiree, just like Nebraska's football supremacy was taken.

Jones Boys' to Try For Third Victory Of Year on Thursday

Light work on passing punting and running plays will be the dish served up to Major Biff Jones' football squad this week during their short preparations for the last game of this season against the Kansas State Wildcats on Thanksgiving day.

Yesterday afternoon the Huskers looked at pictures of their second victory of the season against Iowa university, and had individual weaknesses pointed out by the coaching staff. The tentative starting lineup for Thanksgiving day will be Ken Shindo and George Seeman at ends, Bob Mills and Forrest Behm at tackles, Ad Dobson and Bill Herrmann at guards, Charley Brock at center and Bill Callihan, Jack Dodd, Hermie Rohrig and Bus Knight in the backfield. Harry Hopp is not expected to see much action as a result of a wrenched knee.

Lloyd Grimm, Vernon Neprud, Thurston Phelps, Bill Andreson and Marvin Plock, all seniors, are expected to see a lot of action, along with Warren Alfson and (Continued on Page 4)

Their Job Is to Replace an All-Big Six Quarterback

To these three young men on the Kansas State College football team at Manhattan falls the task of replacing all-Big Six quarterback Howard Cleveland and little Fred Sims, both lost by graduation, on Wesley L. Fry's Wildcat eleven. Jack Blanke, Atchison junior, lettered last year and has the edge of one season's experience over Melvin Seelye, Fort Scott, and Frank Sicks, Okmulgee, Okla., both sophomores. Each of the trio is a triple-threat man and a good prospect for the signal-calling job.

As I See It by June Bierbower

Latest All America team out is Every Man's team—and what a team! The Butcher, the Baker, the Cadlestickmaker, Richman, Poorman, Beggardman, Thief, and even the Old Lady Charmer pick their men.

For instance, the Butcher took Lamb of Ithica college and Duck of Texas, the Baker took Pye of Vermont, while the Old Lady Charmer is pictured in the drawings of the team, saying, "I like 'em Little, Young, Smart and Petty—of Army, Oklahoma, Amherst and Purdue. The Statesman wants Peace of Pitt at any price.

Harry Hopp comes in for recognition by the Brewer, who wants Hopp, Virginia's Beveridge, Detroit's Beer and C. C. N. Y.'s two Steins. It's funny the fellow who selected the team didn't Seymour of Oklahoma, but that one is putrid, I guess.

The Convict thinks Stonebraker of U.S.C. would be a big help to him, and, in one of the fanciest little selections, our friend the writer puts his bid in for Tipmore of Indiana at quarter.

Grid History Reveals 18 Cornhusker Victories in 22 Kansas State Games

1930, 34 Only Years Of Wildcat Success

BY JIM DeWOLF.

Not since 1934 when rangy Oren Stoner skirted Husker ends and Lloyd Cardwell hobbled with an injured knee have Kansas State's football representatives downed Nebraska's Scarlet shirted youngsters.

True, the year after, the Wildcats held the Huskers to a scoreless tie, but the last two years, Nebraska's winning ways with the Wildcats have returned. Last year, Lowell English pulled out his guard spot long enough to boot a field goal giving the Huskers a 3 to 0 victory. The year before that, 1936, saw Lloyd Cardwell and Sam Francis rip the State line and secondary to shreds in a 40 to 0 victory.

Back in 1930, long Henry Cronkite, took a pass from Eldon Anker in the fourth quarter to give the Cats a 10 to 9 win. The 1930 and 34 wins were the only ones the States have taken from the Huskers over a span of twenty-seven years, during which time there have been two tie games, and the Huskers have been victorious 18 times. 402 points has Nebraska scored, while holding in the Manhattan men to 62.

Famous Coaches From K-S.

Charley Bachman, Lynn Waldorf, Bo McMillan and now Wes Fry are four of the nation's most famous coaches who have come from Kansas State.

Thursday, the twenty-third meeting will take place between Nebraska and Kansas State. Betting odds are even with 6 to 5 the usual bet, take whichever team you want. Both teams have lost to Oklahoma, new conference champion, but the Huskers have licked K. U., while the latter smeared the Aggies all over the field. The States did whip Indiana, whom the Huskers could only tie.

Early Victory.

Early Husker-Wildcat history shows an outstanding Nebraska supremacy, with the first nine games going to the Huskers, who scored at least 24 points in every game of these nine save the sixth, when they won by only 14 to 0.

The situation has been quite the reverse of late, with every game except the 1936 massacre and the Wildcat victory in '34 being decided by one touchdown, with perhaps a field goal thrown in on a few.

Ten Huskers, headed by the great Charley Brock will close their football careers Thursday. Others beside Brock are Jack Dodd, Gothenburg speedster and major offensive and defensive threat; Ken Shindo, reserve end; Bob Mills, first string tackle; Thurston Phelps, injury-ridden quarter who has been playing reserve this year; Bill Andreson, reserve fullback whose playing had a big hand in whipping Kansas this year; Lloyd Grimm, tough and rangy end whose play against Minnesota last year put him in the limelight; Vernon Neprud, giant tackle whose defensive play this year has brought the Biffer no little appreciation of big men, and Marvin Plock, climax runner whose antics have confused many a Husker opponent.

'N' Ball Starts Final Rounds

Seven Teams Finish Tourney This Week

The Nebraska ball tournament for girls' intramural sports will probably be finished by the middle of the week following Thanksgiving vacation and the next tournament will be begun by the last part of the week, according to Miss Loize Montgomery, director for intramurals.

Today's games will be between Alpha Phi and Sigma Kappa and between Wilson hall and the winner of the Tri Delt, Alpha Chi game.

Two more games were played on the second round of the girls Nebraska ball intramural tournament last night in Grant Memorial. The Alpha Omicron Pi's were downed by the first team of the Alpha Chi Omega's to the tune of 32 to 23. The first team of the Alpha Chi's won but the second team did not fare as well being conquered by the first Tri Delt team by a score of 31 to 28.

A record correspondence enrollment of 676 is reported by the University of Texas.

Iowa State's Kischer Also Stars in Politics

Everett Kischer, Iowa State college football star, was elected president of his senior class last week. Kischer, a general engineering student, ran for the presidency without opposition.
