Kansas State Brings a Quartet of Wingmen

These four ends will do their best tomorrow to haunt Husker passers, kickers and runners. Crumbaker, a junior, lettered last year. He is big, fast, and a fine pass receiver. Kientz, one of the best defensive men on the squad, is a senior, and will be playing his last conference game. Swanson and Munzer are two of the most promising wingmen ever to enroll at Kansas State, and if given the chance tomorrow may toss a monkey wrench or two into the Husker hopes for a victory in the sea-for nationwide praise. It's just a football game, just the way football game, just the way football games should be. It's more colorful that way for some reason or other.... and Nebraska should win. They haven't won at home yet this year, and nothing would please us more than to see them win at home.

Reports from Don Partner of the Kansas State news service indicate that hundreds of Wildcat followers will board specials tonight, following the team to Lincoln for the Turkey day festival (of touchdowns for Nebraska, we hope) tomorrow.

Four years ago, the Wildcata beat the Huskers, and four years before that they beat them. This is their fourth year since a victory and maybe they figure it's time for another.

Injuries and the fact that Biff has had to do lots of experimenting to find the best combination among his green material have made it necessary to juggle the starting lineups. At ends, Bob Kahler, Lloyd Grimm, Ray Pro-chaska, George Seeman and Ken Shindo have all opened at least one game. Seeman has been a starter since the lowa State tilt, so has missed but

Shindo's story is one of those the story tellers like to write about. He started out as a B when a sophomore, played enough to win a minor letter last season, and altho he started this year as a sub, his fine play against lows, in which game he was co-captain, has won him a starter's position on the Bob Mills and Forrest Behm opened the season at tackles against Minnesota, and altho Sam Schwartskopf and Paul Goetowski got the call the next Saturday against Iowa State, the two Lincoln tall boys have started every game since then.

No less than six guards have been in there at the starting whis-tle. Bill Pfeiff, Adna Dobson, Bill Muskin and Warren Alfson have all taken their turns. Center means Brock, and that takes care of the line.

The line was coached Tuesday. Nov. 28 to meet Mrs. Lucy Rogers Hawkins, editor of the Matrix, Theta Sigma Phi publication.

Phelps, Hopp and Knight have been at quarterback, while Hermie Rohrig has started every game at halfback position, except the Minnesota shindig, where Mary Plock opened. There is the possibility that Robrig may not be in shape Thursday, and that would leave either Plock or Walt Luther, who would be Husker starter number 24, at that position. Nebroska Punts May Be Deciding Factor

(Continued from Page 1.) Gang Elmer Hackney, the two opposing fullbacks. Callihan, dubbed by sportswriters as the best defensive and bolcking fullback in the midwest will back up the Husker line, concentrating on de-fense, while Hackney, 205 pound junior will be the Wildcats main offensive running threat.

Hackney's power plunges have ripped opposing lines to shreds all year and Fry is depending on him to crash the Nebraska wall with the same ease he has had with other foes. Link Lyman has different ideas and his linemen seem to have absorbed them quite readily. Husker defense against running plays hasn't been what it should be this year, and Hackney may have enough dynamite to blast it. Then again, he may be stopped cold, and if he is. Kansas State may as well give up he ship.

A Husker Victory.

The Cornhusker ship has its sails at full rigging for this battle. No enemy scouts will be plotting the Husker downfall from the press box, at least for this year, Consequently, the Huskers are expected to "shoot the works."

A crowd of 25,000 to 27,000 is expected. Cold, crisp weather is likely to produce fumbles, which may tell the story.

Husker punting has been consistently brilliant all year, and will be a factor favoring Nebraska. Neither team has a vaunted pass attack nor pass defense. Right now, the battle looks even. The Huskers are home, and will be fighting for their only home victory of the year. They should get it,
