

SPORT NOTES

By Norman Harris

Kansas cagers meet Oklahoma at Norman Saturday in the Big Six inaugural. Judging by the results of the two teams against Southern Methodist, the Sooners hold an edge.

The Drakemen walloped S.M.U. 49 to 31, while Jayhawk courtmen won twice over the Mustangs, once by six points, and the other time by seven.

Missing Ralph Miller, sophomore flash, who had been counted upon to pace the Kansans this season, Phog Allen predicts the worst in this first meeting.

Yet, Nebraska lost to California by 28 points after beating that same team 46 to 43—only a few evenings before.

Just as in football, comparative basketball scores are no basis for basketball predictions. Two years ago, K. U. trounced the Huskers in the first conference meeting, then tumbled in the second.

Kansas will still rule as a favorite when they take the floor Saturday night. After a mediocre start, they probably have enough polish and speed to show the Sooners what it takes to win.

Ed Bock and Chuck Heileman, Iowa State stars who aided in the 14 to 0 victory of West over East New Year's day, both attribute the victory to "team spirit." The Cyclones said that the 22 western stars developed a genuine feeling of team spirit in the twelve days they were together.

Bock and Heileman, together with Pug Manders of Drake and Nebraska's Charlie Brock, were main cogs in the West machine. Bock played in three quarters, Heileman in three, Manders almost the whole game, and Brock was in 35 minutes of the 60.

The Cyclone end was on the receiving end of three Patterson passes and kicked an extra point. Brock and Manders' line backing held the touted East backs from romping as they had been expected.

All the West players returned home with jackets and gold watches, gifts of the Shriners who sponsored the game.

At least half the championships of the 10 Big Six conference sports will be decided at Iowa State during the 1938-1939 school year.

The loop wrestling meet will be held on the Cyclone campus March 10 and 11. On March 19 and 20, conference track, tennis, and golf championships will be decided at Ames.

PHI PSI COPS 'WATERPOLO CROWN 9-6

Al Madgett's Closing Spree Ducks ATO's

Sig Alph's Win Third With Sigma Nu Default

Phi Kappa Psi, led by portly Al Madgett, splashed its way to victory and the coveted water polo crown by ducking the A. T. O.'s, 9-6, in the last seconds of play at the coliseum pool last night. Sigma Alpha Epsilon won third place over the Sigma Nu's by default.

Dominating the entire game, Madgett scored every point for the "S" street congregation. His touchgoal in the last ten seconds of play won the fray.

First half of the game was dead, neither team showing any speed and organization. Phi Psi led at half time by a 4-3 score. The "R" street boys, however, came back determined to weight down their side of the final score and had the game well in their possession by virtue of Joe Laughlin's goal until Madgett went on his spree in the closing minutes.

Seeman and Schwartz of the Phi Psi outfit saw plenty of action and were standouts at their side of the pool. Cramer and Laughlin took the laurels for the A. T. O.'s.

Golfers Meet in 'N' Club Room This Afternoon

All students interested in golf will meet in the coliseum trophy room at 5 o'clock today. Those who expect to register for one of the new credit courses in golf to be offered next semester, are requested to attend this meeting.

stadium a few weeks ago. The track meet to be run off the latter part of March will mark the first time it has not been held at Nebraska since 1929.

Golfers participating in the title matches at Ames will be the first to participate in a collegiate tournament on the Cyclones' new 18 hole course.

Honorary captain of the 1938 Kansas State football squad is Staley Pitts, 165 pound guard, three year man on Wes Fry's eleven. Pitts' play against the Huskers here figured greatly in the Wildcat second half drive which came close to gaining a tie for the Manhattan visitors.

Cagers Return From West Coast Barnstorming Sunday

Huskers Apt to Bring Back Many Anecdotes

By Norman Harris.

Sunday, the weary travelers will return.

And for weeks, tall stories of California, the mountains, movie stars, and perhaps something about basketball will float about the campus.

After almost two weeks of sight-seeing, dinners, luncheons, introductions, and five basketball games, W. H. Browne, A. J. Lewandowski and nine Cornhusker varsity cagers will settle down to the old routine of school, with the pleasant thought of final exams before the players.

Years ago, when the Cornhusker football team traveled east a couple of times to play Army and Syracuse, the returning gridders brought tales of beautiful women, brought towels, Bibles, stationery, and eating utensils, made of the stuff they make dimes of, from the eastern hotels, etc.

Unofficially, the Huskers had a opened his try for Golden Gloves honors with a second round technical knockout over Carl Gartner, amateur heavy from Pauline, Neb., in the opening round of the Grand Island Golden Gloves tourney Wednesday.

Callihan uncovered a lethal right hand to put his opponent on the canvas four times before Referee George Trupp awarded him the fight after 1 minute and 52 seconds of the second round.

Russel Krinzer of Hastings, another favorite in the third city tournament is predicted as the heavy who will clash with Callihan in the finals next Tuesday evening. The winner will represent G. I. at the Golden Gloves meet to be staged in Omaha in February.

Barbs Conclude Volleyball Series

Stratford "A" Team Beats Baldwin Hall

Championship of the Barb Volleyball league went to the Stratford "A" team as they took two out of three hotly contested games from the Baldwin Hall team in the final playoff match.

The Stratford team finished undefeated at the top of League 2, while their opponents came through with an unblemished record in League 3.

Brown Palace, undefeated champions of League 1, lost two out of three games to Baldwin Hall in the semifinals. Emanons finished second in League 1, the Q.T. club was runner-up in the second league, while the Commanders came in second in League 3. All three teams were defeated but once.

Mermen Show Promise For Uni's Best

Younger and Worden, Divers, and Sophs Form Balanced Team

Twenty swimming candidates under the direction of Coach Pete Hagelin give promise of making one of the best balanced teams in Nebraska university's swimming history.

Evelle Younger and Ralph Worden have been improving to make the diving one of the strongest departments, but competition in other events has been unusually strong. Sophomores are giving some of the major letter winners back from last year a tough race for team positions.

All the candidates have been working out since the start of school last September and their times according to Hagelin, "have been improving satisfactorily." The freshman group has also been showing up well.

The team has been weakened by the loss of Bob Smith, major letter winner in the breast stroke last year. Smith will move to California after this semester. Eligibility is also expected to keep a few swimmers out.

Coach Hagelin is tentatively planning to take his squad to Omaha on February 19 for the Mid-West A. A. U. meet and the squad journeys to Minnesota February 3, for meets with Carleton College, Gustavus Adolphus, and the University of Minnesota before swinging into the Big Six conference competition. better time than they did officially. Whether or not the returning cagers will have the incidents to recount and the souvenirs to display, we won't know until Sunday.

Use a Little Salt.

The training rules that governed the cagers prevented them from going out after eight or nine, (thru the lobby anyway), so all the dates and dances with beautiful glamour girls is a lot of hokum... take it all with a shaker of salt.

And the towels—they were probably bought in some Los Angeles dime store and embroidered in spare time. Silverware can be obtained by saving coupons that come packed in sacks of flour and other foodstuffs.

In the good old days, the traveling salesman, (they sold the university to easterners), carried an extra wardrobe trunk in which to put their souvenirs. Card catalogs and price tags were part of the equipment too.

But now, the sissies, they're afraid. The most they bring back are stories and a couple of blotters. The rest you know about.

Good Old Days.

From East-West football games, it was seldom that Husker player ever returned for two or three weeks after New Year's day. Too much fun there on the coast. The coaches had to be back, and with no chaperons, the boys went to town.

Reminiscing over the old days, a former Cornhusker guard, who traveled east, and went to the San Francisco game on one New Year's day stated that he could make a better living on the sale of his souvenirs than when he got out of school.
