

Counselor head is Fern Steuteville

Ruth Grosvenor, Mary Bullock elected to other board officers' posts

Fern Steuteville was elected president of the coed counselor board yesterday at the annual election as university women students balloted at the polls in Ellen Smith and Home Ec halls. Filling the position of vice president for the coming year will be Mary Bullock, the junior candidate who polled the highest number of votes. The post of secretary-treasurer will be filled by Ruth Grosvenor, the sophomore nominee who drew the heaviest vote.

Elected to fill senior memberships on the board were June Bierbower and Melva Kime from the unaffiliated group, Faith Medlar, the defeated candidate for the presidency, automatically holds a senior position on the board.

Four Junior Members.

Elected to junior memberships of the organization were Mary Bullock and Ruth Clark from the sorority group and Jane DeLatour and Ruth Ann Sheldon from the barbnominans.

Sophomore member elected to the board from the affiliated group was Natalie Burns and from the non-sorority candidates, Ruth Grosvenor.

Outgoing board members are this year's president, Virginia Fleetwood, and seniors Virginia Nolte, Marjorie Churchill, Bonnie Burn, Phyllis Chamberlain and Elizabeth Smith.

War not near, says Raiguel

Commentator ends Town Hall series optimistically

With optimistic comments on the conditions in the four major sour spots in the world, Japan, Germany, Spain and the Mediterranean, Dr. George Raiguel, internationally known news commentator closed the years Town Hall series at the Cornhusker last night.

That war was not imminent, the commentator was certain. Personal contacts with the peoples thru-out central Europe last summer verified his opinion that every leader on the mainland is more afraid of internal uprisings than of enemy guns.

Referring to the dramatic situation arising out of the Munich pact, Dr. Raiguel declared that it was more of a farce than Welle's Martin Conquest of New Jersey. While in Europe as early as July, he had heard the complete details of the division of Czechoslovakia even to the extent that it was to be settled by a general meeting of representatives of the four big powers.

Noted African, Indian, Japanese bring Madras message to campus

Lyman denies flu epidemic

Many head colds but few cases of influenza

Altho campus houses report many of their number logy with common head colds, and some students down with flu, the cases of real influenza on the campus in no measure constitute an epidemic, according to Student Health Director R. A. Lyman.

Flu has all the sniffing and coughing attributes of a cold, only more severely, and accompanied by a high temperature, headaches and a feeling of exhaustion and depression.

The student health service, reported Dr. Lyman, has encountered few more than the usual three or four cases, but are swabbing the throats and treating the colds of about 50 sore throated students a day.

Spreading from the east, influenza epidemics have hit colleges and universities one after another, exchange newspapers received at the NEBRASKAN office show.

Kappa Phi holds birthday party

Methodist group fetes 22nd anniversary at 7

Kappa Phi, Methodist sorority, will celebrate its twenty-second birthday tonight with traditional custom of bringing penny bags with a coin for each year of the member's life to the meeting. The group will gather in Ellen Smith hall at 7 o'clock for the program.

Marie Larrabee will lead the devotions and Maxine Thomas and Emily Frandsen will act as hostesses. Following a discussion program songs will be sung and refreshments served, birthday cake and candies carrying out the anniversary theme.

Americans complete team holding seminars for students Friday

African Minnie Soga, Indian Dr. Rajah Manikam and Japanese Dr. Hachiro Yuasa will visit the Nebraska campus Friday as a part of the Post-Madras program in Lincoln March 10 and 11, bringing echoes from the World Conference of Christian leaders held at Madras, India, last December.

Three Americans, Miss Ruth Seabury, Dr. M. Earle Collins and Dr. Gilbert Lessourd will complete the team. All six members will conduct seminars in the Union from 4 to 5:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. The groups are open without charge to all university men and women.

Suppers open to students.

Sponsored by the Nebraska Council of Churches and several religious organizations in Lincoln, most of the Madras meetings will be held at Grace Methodist church at 27th and R sts. Students may

Prowlers rob Sig Ep house

Two overcoats, suit worth $100 lost Monday

Fraternity house prowlers became active again Monday after a brief respite of about two weeks when two overcoats and a suit, valued at $100, were taken from the Sigma Phi Epsilon house at 601 No. 16th.

A man was seen leaving the Sig Ep house about 5:30 o'clock Monday morning carrying two overcoats on his arm, by a truck driver for the Wendelin Baking company, members of the fraternity said. Lincoln police are now checking all Lincoln pawn shops in an effort to locate the clothing.

The stolen overcoats belonged to Forest Wilson and Bob Krikac; the suit to Bob McGorkindale.

Danish professor to study at N. U.

Considers Pharmacy school best in U. S.

From the Pharmaceutical Institute of Copenhagen to the University of Nebraska College of Pharmacy, Dr. Carl Faurholt, director of the Denmark school, will come in the spring of 1940 to study American methods of teaching, it was announced yesterday.

Because of Dean Rufus A. Lyman's editorship of the American Journal of Pharmaceutical Education, Dr. Faurholt selected the Nebraska College as the outstanding one in that field of American education.

The European educator will come directly to Nebraska on his arrival in this country, and after some time here, will tour the United States observing American methods of pharmaceutical manufacturing and pertinent legislation.

Arndt, Hunter to marshal opposing forces in gigantic battle of wits between campus big shots Sunday at 4

Campus "big shots" will be on the spot when students attempt to befuddle them in a gigantic battle of nit wits to be held in the Union ballroom Sunday at four o'clock.

Professors Karl Arndt and Armand Hunter will choose teams from the campus brain-trusters who will then vie for the grand prize of a guaranteed gold horse collar. Bev Finkle, as master of ceremonies, will quiz the contestants with such questions as, "If my bother's brother was your uncle's sister, who are you?"

Van Sant posts bonds.

Kenneth Van Sant, who has been required to post a $100 bond, will act as scorekeeper and watchman of the horse collar to prevent its theft by over-eager contestants. Van Sant himself will be kept under control by a ball and chain.

Marg Krause, society editor of the DAILY NEBRASKAN, who is confident of winning the golden collar, has already decided to buy a "nag" and adorn it with the contest trophy and go out as did Lochinvar in search of campus gossip.

Virginia Fleetwood, honorary colonel, who also has aspirations for the horse collar expressed the regret that the contest had not been held before the military ball so that she might have worn it or drug it around at the presentation.

Other outstanding contestants will be Virginia Nolte, president of Tassels and Mortar Board member Pat Lahr, editor of the Cornhusker; Harold Benn, Student Council president; Stan Brewster, president of the Innocents society; Howard Kaplan, editor of the

Kosmet Klub announces cast try-outs

Selection of principle characters for Alias Aladdin starts tonight

Selection of a cast of 16 principles for the Kosmet Klub spring show, "Alias Aladdin," will take place in Social Science auditorium at 7:30 o'clock tonight and Thursday evening.

Characters to be chosen are of all different types and personalities. Royal Bagdad social life, with the Caliph of the city himself shown in his moments of rhapsody with his eight (according to the last count) charming wives is intermixed with the practical salesmanship activities of the Towel Tycoon J. P. Throckmorton and his charming young daughter.

Villian ultra-extraordinary.

And then there is the villain. He isn't the ordinary type villain, but one whose every movement, whose every wrinkle of an eyelid or twitch of a mustache depicts his craft and cunning. To help him carry out his evil deeds are a chorus of campus toughies, who delight in cutting throats from ear to ear.

On the pleasanter side of the drama, some lucky boy will get the part of Rita, love sick and fancy free. If she only had a detective she'd get her man. Even as the show opens she's loved eight times and lost.

Salesman heart breaker.

There is Bob Horton, the glamorous heart-breaker, the type that makes any woman go 'sigh!' He's a salesman trained thru years of practice with the nerve of Ferdinand the Bull, as most heroes are.

Debates open March 14

Six teams now entered in intramural tourney

First round of the intramural debate tournament will be held Tuesday evening, March 14, Prof. H. A. White announced yesterday. Debates will be held in the chapter houses of the affirmative team at 7:15 o'clock. Any team more than a half hour late will forfeit the decision in the round then being held.

Teams which have already registered are Delta Theta Phi, Beta Theta Pi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Sigma Alpha Mu in the fraternity group while the ACBC and the Cafeteria club are the only two teams entered in the non-fraternity division.

Rules of Competition.

Rules governing the debates are as follows: Each team will debate on both sides of the question before any eliminations are made. Two defeats, including one defeat in the preliminary round, will eliminate any team. Entrants must be taking 12 hours of work the present semester. Not more than two different men may be used on a side during the same debate. Alternates may be used, but must be entered for the whole debate.

The winner in the fraternity division will be awarded, to keep for one year, the Delta Sigma Rho silver gavel, on which the names of the previous winners have been inscribed. The tournament is under the sponsorship of the Nebraska chapter of Delta Sigma Rho.
