

Coast guard officers talk to R.O.T.C.

Military science classes learn of U. S. service from lectures, movies

To give Nebraska university students a clear picture of life in the United States coast guard, two guardsmen have come from the Chicago division to Lincoln where they are giving talks accompanied by motion pictures, to military science classes.

Throughout the day yesterday and again this morning, Lieut. T. J. E. Crotty and Chief Machinist's Mate M. M. McNeill presented their program and answered students' questions in Nebraska hall 110. The talks are part of a national campaign to select men for the service. Experience has taught the government that it gets the highest quality of applicants from the nation's universities.

Four years of the best available education in science and engineering in the U. S. C. G. academy is offered. Tuition is free, and the government pays an allowance of $1,080 per year to the 65 to 85 applicants who rank highest in national competitive examinations held each June, Lieut. Crotty told the basics.

Of all the small colleges and universities in the United States, the lieutenant said he believed the government school offered the best opportunities in engineering and scientific lines.

Intercollegiate Sports.

During the four years, students may participate in intercollegiate sports and extra curricular activities and learn practical seamanship on government sailing vessels.

After graduation, the successful cadet is commissioned to the coast guard as an ensign where he receives a salary of $125 per month plus $18 subsistence and an additional $40 per month if he is married. In three years he is eligible for promotion to the rank of lieutenant, junior grade, with a salary of $175 plus $18 plus an additional $60 if he is married.

The coast guard officers left information concerning the service and the qualifying examinations with Colonel Oury.

Schooner

readers of the Schooner, carries the story thru much human emotion to a truly brilliant finish. Southern tragedy.

Kathleen Sutton, who has made one previous contribution to the Schooner, sets a near tragedy against her native southern background to produce what Editor L. C. Wimberly considers one of the outstanding stories of the issue.

Set to local Nebraska background in free verse is "Spring Returns to the Prairie," by the executive secretary of the Nebraska League of Women Voters, Lavon Jarvis of Grand Island. Her work has previously appeared in such publications as Spinners and Spring Anthology, a London Publication.

Story by Bertram Lewis.

Another outstanding story of this issue is "The Envied Ones," by a Negro, Bertram Lewis. Lewis took his master's degree at the university, and is now on the English faculty of Wiley college (Texas), a Negro school.

Author of five published volumes of poetry, resident of London, graduate of Oxford, and contributor to the Atlantic Monthly and Harper's, Geoffrey Johnson appears on the Schooner's pages for the first time with "At Aunt Angela's."

The Prairie Schooner is listed by leading critics as one of the outstanding quality magazines in America. Articles are submitted by authors all over the country and abroad.

The University Daily Kansan's all-conference team lists Iowa State's Gordon Nicholas and Oklahoma's McNatt at forwards, Homer Wesche at center, and Lyman Corlis, Kansas, and Lobsiger of Missouri at guards. . . . Al Werner is captain of the second team, whose other guard is Mesch of Oklahoma. . . . Herb Scheffler of the Sooners gets the center position, while Bob Allen, Kansas, and Harlan Keirse, Missouri, are the forwards. . . . not one member of the Missouri team was among the first ten scorers in the Big Six mark.

Ag students beware! Sergeant Regler to patrol Holdrege campus again

Ag college students note: Sergeant Regler's motorcycle is working again and he will be making regular patrols out to the ag campus once more to check on improper parking after a "cold weather" layoff.

The cycle has been snowbound since the beginning of the late February snowstorms, but it is thawed out now and Regler made a test run to ag college yesterday. He cruised around the malls at ag college several times exhibiting himself for the benefit of those students who were taking advantage of his confinement to the city campus, but did not tag any cars, altho he noticed several violations.

He returned an hour or so later and all the cars improperly parked had been moved. The sergeant considers this announcement of his return as sufficient, and car tagging will proceed in earnest.
