

MILLER'S

Wanna be platonic? You can't go wrong in 'brother and sister' play suits

Though the climate may not make Nebraska coeds into "outdoor" girls, we predict that Millers' play clothes will. For never before have leisure-time outfits been so colorful, well tailored, and completely flattering.

California reigns supreme in the field of sunshine fashions. Colors bright as life and twice as handsome are combined in bold plaids and Mexican prints which may be used alone or set off by plain materials.

Slack sets, always so popular with the college crowd, come in amazing variety of shades and style. Especially noteworthy was a shirt-slack outfit of soft-green woolen with stitched details and as carefully tailored as your new spring suit. Something different under the sun are the horseshoe buttons complete with shiny nails which decorate one dusty pink outfit.

Bandana and shorts

New this year are brother and sister play suits. The brother job has a red bandana shirt, trim navy blue shorts, and a tiny bolero. The sister half of this pair is a snugly fitted play suit topped by a very full and very short striped skirt, tied on by a wide sash.

No longer do men have a monopoly on those comfortable in-and-out shirts. Gay Mexican prints are made up in this style with little wooden fishes for buttons.

Bags in natural color

To ensemble with slack sets and sportswear of all kinds, there are matching belts and purses of woven straw and burlap or raffia with gay felt appliques. Stitched twine belts and bags in neutral color are gayly embroidered. Cork belts and bracelets in brilliant colors are especially appropriate for wear with slacks, shorts, and, believe it or not, bathing suits, for they can go right into the water without damage.

Wooden beads are strung together to make amusing belts, necklaces and bracelets. "Strollers" are the shoes prepared especially for wear with play clothes. They consist of multi-colored lastex straps attached at the proper places to a light weight rubber sole.

SKIRTS

We mix sweaters, skirts in spring; Fashion decrees it is the thing

Jane Ellis, Tri Delta, dashes to classes in a cranberry flared skirt and cardigan to match. She varies the sweaters and ribbon on her cranberry colored hat.

Margaret Dickerson, seen between the Pi Phi house and Pharmacy in a sporty turquoise matched set with sport accessories.

Elizabeth Green, Alpha Chi, chooses a light blue skirt with a fushia sweater as her contribution for spring.

Nifty is the angora canary yellow sweater worn by Maxine Meyers, Gamma Phi Beta. Style is accented on the sleeves which are square-cut and accented by small tucks.

Oh Boy!

Edrey Wilson, Tri Delta, is off to class in a chartreuse skirt and white angora sweater set off by pearls. As accessories she chooses hat, bag and belt of chartreuse.

Eleanor Hyde, Gamma Phi Beta, looking extremely smart and school girlish with a lavender gored skirt and pink polar bear sweater.

Hazel Wisner, A. O. P., has gone mannish in her striped shirt and blue pleated skirt. The shoulders are broad, and the waistline very slim.

Look this way.

A very lovely spring outfit is that of Ruth Somberg SDT pledge. It is a chartreuse skirt and sweater. The skirt has several pleats, and the sweater is soft angora with ruby studs

DATE DRESSES

The Mounties say, 'We get our man,' just like any coed can

Time off from Intermural activities for a date with Art Rober, is Jane Austen, Delta Gamma, in a slate blue dress with a corn yellow wool jacket and choosing blue for her accessories.

Delta Gamma, Pat Cooper, swinging at the Turnpike with Phi Delta Charlie Roberts in a powder blue shirt waist dress with a plain box pleated skirt and pin striped waist.

Doris Smith, A. O. Pi, is wearing a lovely crepe dress, cut in two piece style with buttons marching down the front. With this she wears a cocky straw hat with a long veil.

Say, now.

Frances Price, Kappa Delta, treats her dates to an eyeful of A Jane Engel original of black with chartreuse trimming which includes an insert of chartreuse in the skirt.

Edie Knight, Theta, choose a navy silk skirt with a pink peasant blouse embroidered in light and dark blue for dress. She adds a sash of the same color.

Powder blue silk with gold quilting on the sleeves is the dress that Betty Fosbury, Gamma Phi, has chosen for spring. The full bodice and flared skirt are offset by sandals and purse of navy calf-skin and pink gloves and hat.

That is cute

Sara Fields, Tri Delta blonde, combines a gray crepe dress having a cranberry and lighter shade of gray trim with a black straw hat which has a cranberry ribbon on it and black shoes.

Marian Dobney goes a-dating in a two-piece crepe dress of a black crepe skirt with top of apple green trimmed with black buttons.

Caking with her one and only in a black and chartreuse print with a chartreuse jacket is Dede McClelland, Delta ditto. She completes her costume by adding a black straw hat with chartreuse trim and chartreuse gloves.

MAGEE'S

Try the sweater cure for those 8 o'clock blues

An eight o'clock and for most coeds the world seems a bit dreary. But with sweaters in cyclamen rose, lime maize, roseberry, and French blue things will look rosy. Magee's has all of these and more with two-piece suits for the background.

When chill March winds blow, choose a cressy botany fabric box coat accented in white pique. Or don a roseberry coat made by Kirshmoor. Typical snap-brim felts are handy for school or sports and come in many hues.

Prints still hold their own. A namy silk printed with feminine figures is handy when dates arrive for house-parties. It would certainly be a sensation if seen with a navy straw sailor having a turreted crown and chartreuse trim.

As suits are so important, blouses are on the must list too, a fussy white chiffon with Peter Pan lace collar makes the suit for dressy occasions. A shirt-maker white silk striped in red, yellow, and green changes the tone to sports.
