As I See It

by June Bierbower

About the juiciest rumor of them all concerning what or what not Jock Sutherland is going to do now that he has parted ways with Pitt's Panthers, is the item by Eddie Brietz that Francis Schmidt may be on his way out at Ohio State, and that Sutherland may replace him.

That that for what it's worth—personally, we think it's just another of those things—but so was the "rumor" Texas was after D. X. Bible, and so was the whole Pitt affair until Jock did resign. Oh, well, ho hum.

One more of these "magnificent" frosh, with whom several Big Six teams, not excepting Nebraska, seem to be infested, has turned up at Kansas. One J. R. Jones is doing 23 feet, nine inches in the broad jump, which happens to be better than any Big Six jumper has yet done this year.

Ah, gossip, scandal, and just plain dirt out at U. C. L. A.! The great Woodrow Wilson Strode, star colored all-round athlete at the Bruin school, was barred from the Stanford meet Saturday, not because of an injured hand, which newspaper reports said was the reason, but because he had been suspended from the meet by Track Coach Harry Trotter.

The whole affair seems to be somewhat of a mystery. Trotter's decision doesn't necessarily mean Strode will be expelled from the squad for the season. It is reported Trotter will make some sort of a decision about the affair this week, and that he has given Strode every chance for reinstatement.

Strode, who suffered an injured hand as a result of an accident on the horizontal bars while posing for pictures, had been advised by the Bruins' trainer to work out as a means of exercising the hand, and had his okay to compete in the meet. Strode, however, failed to show up all week, and Trotter's disbarment seems to have been a result of absence from practice.

Zeta Beta Tau whips Alpha Sigma Phi boys as Ed Milder leads way

NU to forego Texas Relays

First outdoor meet this season is with Kansas

For the first time in several years Nebraska will send no entrants to the Texas Relays Saturday, April 1, at Austin. Coach Ed Weir stated that spring vacation at that time makes it impossible to send a delegation from Nebraska.

Cold weather has held the team indoors for the most part this week, but the squad is working for its first outdoor meet of the season, against Kansas at Lawrence, April 8. K. U., runnerup in the Big Six indoor meet, lost to the Huskers in an indoor dual.
