Student Pulse

SOCIAL STUDY.

To the Editor:

Your correspondent has just spent an enjoyable evening mingling with social celebrities at the Race Track on the Library second floor. Everyone and his Aunt Hattie was there and a good time was had by all. There were many beautiful girls who just radiated the spirit of spring and a number of handsome fellows also, looking so manly and serious over their books.

Much bantering went on between groups and there was a generous exchange of greetings and expressions of mutual good will. It is indeed gratifying to see the library attended by such a large and influential portion of our student body. I certainly believe that we should work for a new library since it is so useful and beneficial to so many fine socially minded people.

Ag crop judges to vie April 15

Tri-K club, agronomy group, sponsors meet

The annual ag college crop judging contest will be held April 15 and entries for the event are running high according to contest committee co-chairmen David McGill and Harold Schudel. The contest is under the sponsorship of the Tri-K club, student agronomy organization.

Contestants will be rated on their ability to judge eight classes of grains and seeds, and to identify 60 samples of grain, grasses, legumes and weeds. Winners of the contest will be revealed at a banquet, which will be held the evening of the contest.

Winners in the various events will have their names engraved on plaques which hang in the agronomy building and each will be presented, according to his placing, with a bronze, silver or gold medal, which are being donated by the Lincoln Seed company.

from the chancellor, who promised to confer with L. F. Seaton and the board of regents on the matter.

Gene Siré, pharmacy college junior was elected to fill a council vacancy, and Don Schultz, sophomore was elected to replace Ed Segrist, who resigned his publications board post last week. Schultz will serve until the end of school in June.

Roger Cunningham, co-chairman of the Junior-Senior prom committee reported that after all expenses had been deducted from gross receipts and the council Cornhusker picture had been paid for, there remained a $10 profit from the dance.

Forum committee chairman, Bob Waugh, reported that 125 attended the last council forum, led by Dean Lyman of pharmacy college. The next forums, according to Waugh, will bring professors who teach courses not available to every student in the university.

Concluding the meeting, President Harold Benn warned council members of the three absence rule voted at a previous meeting, stating that action would be taken at the next meeting to drop those council members who have violated the ruling.

Engineers to end inspection Jaunt

86 students conclude five-day tour Saturday

Eighty-six junior and senior engineering students, who left Tuesday morning for Kansas City, Mo., where they are participating in the annual inspection trip sponsored by the engineering college, will return Saturday evening.

Members of the group visited several of the industrial plants in and around the Kansas City area. Among the industries they have visited are the Sheffield Steel Works, the Ford assembly plant, and the Kansas City Power and Light Plant.

Today they will visit the American Can company plant, and take a trip through the Midland Television Studio, one of the few television studios in the midwest.

Tomorrow and Saturday they will visit the Washburn Crosby flour mill, the United States engineering laboratory, and the municipal water purification plant. The trip is the senior requirement which must be filled by all engineering students before graduation.

to the Philippines as captain of the First Nebraska Volunteers. He was also active during the Philippine insurrection, and it was not long after this that he was given a commission in the regular army.

Spends five years in Philippines. After about five years in the Philippines, Col. Oury returned to the U. S. and was sent to a post in the west. From there he was sent to Leavenworth, Philippines, and Arizona in rapid succession and then returned a third time to the Philippines, where he served as quartermaster for Gen. Pershing. From there he was sent to Washington, Kansas City and to France, where he participated in the World war. It was here that a regiment, under his command, took Mount Faucon.

From France Col. Oury was sent to Chicago, where he had charge of the R. O. T. C. unit, then to Panama, Philadelphia, Washington, and finally here.

Altho he was officially retired Sept. 30, 1935, he has continued on active duty and has been here for nine years.

Penn State offers marriage course

Professor to tell 'what to do after honeymoon'

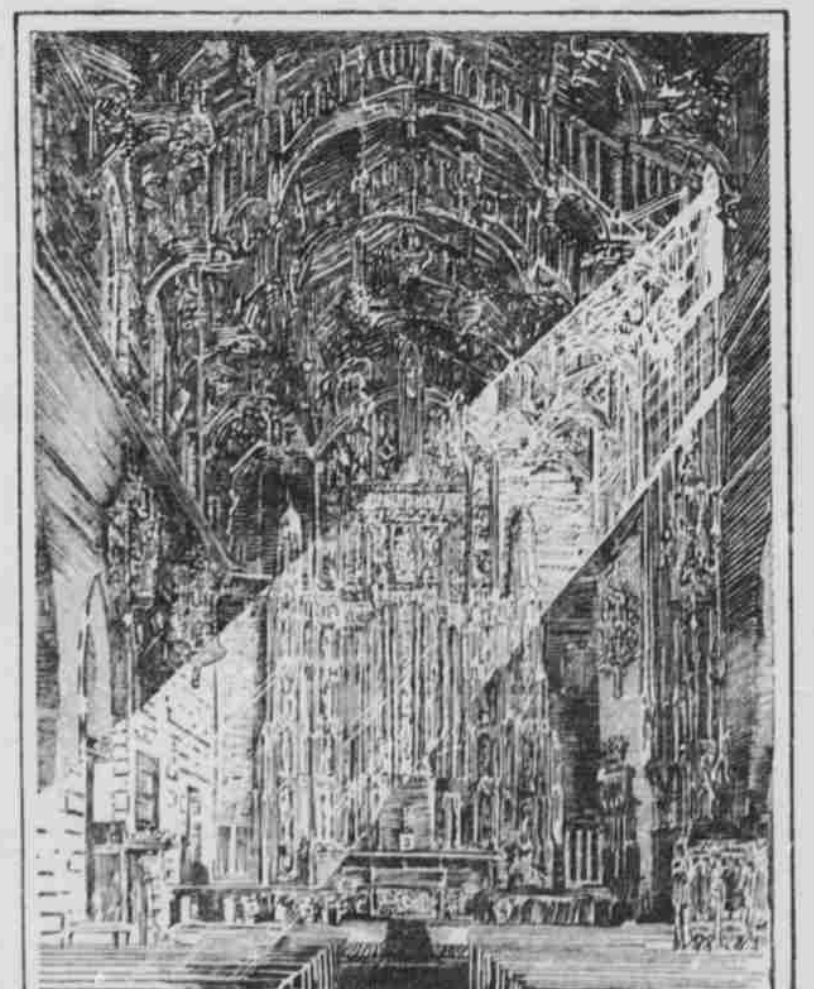

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (I. P.). What to do when the honeymoon is over will be explained in a course on marriage and its problems to be offered at the Pennsylvania State college in the next academic year.

"The course is not intended to be a panacea," declared Dr. Kingsley Davis who will administer the course. "We do not pretend that it will be a solution to everyone's problems, but we do believe it will offer a point from which students can begin to think about their own individual problems. In this way we hope to make the course quite valuable to undergraduates."

Instruction will range from family budgeting and management of household finance to the emotional aspects of marital adjustment.

Instructors will attempt to point out, among other things, the bases on which mates are selected, the difficulties and problems associated with courtship adjustment and adjustment after marriage, the cast of children, and the role of family members in rearing children.
