AT THE HEAD OF THE CLASS . . . of 1940

IRIS JOHNSON

With an orange kerchief around her neck with the black letters of FARMER'S FAIR printed on it, Iris Johnson, ag college junior from Fremont, is good enough publicity for . . . the Farmer's Fair coming up after Ivy Day. Iris likes to roller skate and keep scrapbooks, especially ones that pertain to her interests in home ec. Along that line, she's preparing herself for extension work by combining teaching and home economics. Ag Executive Board member, Tassels for two years, and co-chairman of the Student Council inter-campus bus committee, Iris is a real "ag-collegiate" . . . and you can be one too, ag-collegiate or any other kind of a collegiate . . . if you mingle with the college crowd at the

'Tobacco Road' to come May 4

John Barton to play lead in Caldwell novel
Based on Erskine Caldwell's novel of the shiftless, philosophic Jester Leeter, the stage play "Tobacco Road" comes to the Liberty theater on May 4 for two performances, a matinee at 2:30 and an evening presentation at 8:30.
John Barton is starred in the role of Jester Lester, who heads a group of amusing, illiterate and half starved share-croppers. With him live his apathetic half starved wife, Ada, whose only desire is a "stylish dress to be buried in," their two children Dude and Ellie May, and old Grandma Lester, who creeps about the place in frightened silence.

Many laughs.
Sixteen year old Dude is persuaded by Sister Bessie Rice, a middle aged evangelist, to marry her, on the promise of a new automobile with a horn. Although the play is a serious study of the share-cropper people in their native environment, the performance is claimed to number 197 laughs.
"Tobacco Road" is still running in New York, where it has passed its 2,300th performance. It has been presented in 39 states and in London, and is in the process of being made into an opera and a film.

Cornhusker gets copy of first NU annual

The first copy of the first yearbook ever published at Nebraska, the "Sombbrero" of the school year of 1883 and '84, was presented to the Cornhusker by Mrs. Will Owen Jones last week.
That year the university had an enrollment of 349 students. The 1895 edition of Sombbrero featured an article by Dorothy Canfield Fisher and Willa Cather, who was associate editor for the annual.
