Students raise rassle trip fund

(Old story, but...)

Many organizations on the campus have begun a campaign in recent days to raise funds with which to send the Aggie conference championship wrestling team to the national intercollegiate meet at Frankly-Marshall college in Lancaster, Pa., on March 17 and 18.

Four of the Aggie wrestlers are good enough to make strong showings at the national meet, according to Coach Julius Wagner, but the college athletic department is so hard hit financially that it can not afford to send the quartet east.

Because of this situation the idea was forgotten until student body president, Jack Egan, and the interfraternity council began the campaign to raise the money. Already between $60 and $70 has been pledged.

3,000 students expected to cast ballots in Washington ASUW election

Twenty-six candidates closed their campaigns last night in preparation for today's election at Meany hall, where an estimated 3,000 students are expected to vote between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m. for the class officers and ASUW president.

The election committee announced last night seven city voting machines would be used in today's balloting. Two machines will be available for each of the class elections and one for seniors, who will vote for ASUW president and graduate representative on the board of control.

Display disqualifies Foley.

A candidate for the senior class treasury, Bobbie Foley, was disqualified by ASUW Vice President Don Christensen's election board last night after an objection had been raised concerning the manner in which Miss Foley had displayed her campaign signs. An election by-law of the constitution states that campaign signs must be carried by students instead of fastened to automobiles or trucks.

They get to dance to Artie Shaw!

Artie Shaw and his orchestra, the country's greatest swing band, will play for the University of Cincinnati Junior Prom, Robert W. Bachmeyer, prom chairman, announced Tuesday.

The dance will be held at Cas-tie Farm from 10:30 to 2:30 p. m. Because of the popularity of night club style in the past two years, the plan will again be used this year to accommodate prom patrons. A plan of making reservations will be announced in a near issue of the News Record.

Nick Kenny, New York music critic, has this to say about Artie Shaw: "The swing music field has uncorked a brand new claimant for top notch national honors in Artie Shaw, the clarinet playing bandsman, whose new rhythmic crew is setting the nation's toes a-tapping."

Winchell's column.

Walter Winchell, in his daily column, "On Broadway," has this to say about the 1939 Junior Prom band: "Add svelegant muscres, Artie Shaw's."

Artie Shaw has been providing the music for the Robert Benchley Sunday night radio program over Columbia. This program is heard locally over WKRC.

Shaw's popularity is graphically shown by a series of music popularity polls in each of which he has carried off top honors.

'Y' committee puts ban on anklets at dances

For two years men have had to wear ties and coats to the dime dances, now girls must conform to convention and wear hose instead of anklets. The dance committee has decided that anklets do not maintain the standards of the Y-Dance.

'Life' may shoot annual ROTC national inspection

ROTC men will again have a chance to show how perfectly they have been trained at the coming National Inspection on May 12. Visiting officers, congressmen, and other high officials will have another chance to remark that Purdue university has one of the best trained field artillery units in the United States.

This recognition has been proved by Life magazine's offer to take pictures of "the splendid military unit that has won so many honors." Soldier participants in the huge military assembly will cuss to themselves, saying that they never want to see a uniform again. But deep in their hearts they are thrilled to think that they have a part in the great occasion.

Freshmen who have not yet seen a national inspection hear from veteran sophomores that it is a hard, man killing task to stand in one place for a long time, wishing to scratch an itch, yet afraid to because they had promised not to move unless ordered.

This school does voting by machines!

Along with the preferential ballot, voting machines, petitions, and training classes comes the announcement of the list of nominees for major and minor offices of C. G. A. As the plans for the coming elections on March 14 and 16 are nearing completion, the absence of political parties is noted.

The Democratic league and the progressive party, political groups formed last spring for the purpose of arousing interest in student elections, have not been revived this year, and in their place appears the campus enthusiasm for the voting machines which have been demonstrated in the parlors of each dormitory Wednesday and Thursday afternoon. These demonstrations will continue on Friday and Monday afternoon, March 10 and 13.

The six machines to be used for the first time in college elections have been obtained by arrangements made by a college council committee of faculty members and students with the Leon county commissioners and a voting machine company. Assisting the students who have volunteered to operate the machines during election hours will be the Leon county supervisor of registration and two representatives of the voting machine company.

The cumbersome primaries of former years have been eliminated by the use of the preferential ballot, in which system the voter indicates her first, second, and third choice on the machine. The use of petitions should enable many students to be elected who under the old system would not even have been included on the ballot.

Anti-war committee continues peace problem debates in national drive

The debate on peace problems to be begun at the demonstration against war in the Open Air theater next Thursday morning at 11 o'clock will be continued that night in greater detail, it was decided at a meeting of the Student Committee Against War last night.

Joining with other universities and colleges of the nation, the committee is responding to the annual call of the United Student Peace committee to interrupt routine class activities for thoughtful consideration of means for halting the drive toward war.

Since the two speakers at the 11 o'clock demonstration will have only about 20 minutes each, the committee is planning for a longer evening meeting with opportunities for student questioning and expressions of individual student opinion after a more thorough presentation of the differing views of the main speakers.

Hackney gets in everybody's hair!

Elmer has done it again.

Kansas State's greatest athlete, Elmer "One Man Gang" Hackney added another record to his list Saturday when he broke his own varsity record and the Colorado relays record with a heave of 54 feet 1 1/2 inches. His record breaking toss, which is the best made in the nation this year, gave him his eighth record in nine attempts.

In tossing the shot 54 feet 1 1/2 inches, Hackney bettered his previous heave by nearly nine inches, and shattered the Colorado relays mark by nearly seven feet.

In the preliminary tosses at Boulder Saturday morning, "The Gang" heaved the ball 53 feet 8 1/2 inches. He made three tosses past this mark in the finals that afternoon, proving his mark was no mistake. His longest toss is 12 1/2 inches short of the intercollegiate record and a bare three feet off the world record.

K-State paces first.

The Kansas State track team carried off top honors at the relays when they collected five firsts and a tie for another. Led by Hackney, the Wildcat trackmen took first in the 440 yard and 880 yard relays, the one mile team race and the two mile relay. Lester Mehaffey tied for first in the high jump with two other competitors.

The annual event, which is usually won by Colorado university, turned out to be a decisive victory for the K-Staters who had been invited to the meet with Coach

Ward Haylett acting as honorary referee. The final count totaled 20 points for Kansas State, 12 for Colorado university, and 8 for Colorado State. In addition to the first honors, the Wildcats took three seconds and three fourths.

Vanderbilt follows Hackney.

Dick Hotchkiss finished second in the broad jump with a leap of 22 feet 5 inches after he had taken second in the 120 yard high hurdles. Darold Dodge ran fourth in the same event. Bill Vanderbilt's toss of 47 feet 10 inches was good for second place in the shot put, and he followed this by taking fourth in the javelin throw. Louis Akers added to K-State scoring by finishing fourth in the 100 yard dash.
