

State schools grant 8 uni scholarships

5 colleges to enroll outstanding students for graduate study

Five colleges in the state are sending eight former students to the graduate college of the University of Nebraska on tuition scholarships this fall, according to Dr. Harold W. Stoke, dean of the graduate college.

For several years the university has granted tuition scholarships to graduates of Nebraska institutions of higher learning whose scholastic records place them in the upper ten percent of their classes.

Winners this year are Miss Lorraine Skinkle and J. Roger McHenry of Chadron State Teachers college; James Weblemoe of Midland; Robert Gale and Harold Miller of York college; Miss Doris Franklin of Union college; and Miss Ruth Leach and Kyle Randall of Nebraska Wesleyan university.

Skinkle from Chadron

Miss Skinkle is a graduate of Chadron high school. She received her bachelor's degree from Chadron college last June, magna cum laude, with a major in history. She will register for work in the department of secondary education at the university this fall.

McHenry is a graduate of Gering high school, and received his bachelor's degree, magna cum laude, from Chadron college in June, with a major in chemistry. He will register for graduate work here in the department of agronomy.

Weblemoe, who graduated from Fairbury high school, took his college work at Midland college, where he received his bachelor's degree, magna cum laude, this June. His major was mathematics, a field of study he will continue at Nebraska this fall.

Gale from York

Gale is a graduate of York high school and York college. He was granted his bachelor's degree in June, with a major in chemistry. Gale plans to register for graduate work in the department of chemistry at the university.

Miller received his high school education at Pueblo, Colo., and in June was granted his bachelor's degree by York college. He will continue his work in chemistry at the university.

Miss Franklin is a graduate of Montrose high school, Minnesota, and received her bachelor's degree from Union college in June. She will continue her study of mathematics this fall.

Miss Leach graduated from O'Neill high school, and from Nebraska Wesleyan this June with high distinction. She will register for graduate work in the department of geography.

Randall is a graduate of Fairbury high school. He received his bachelor's degree from Wesleyan last June with high distinction. We will take work this fall at the university in the department of economics.

Legislative bureau moves to capitol

Library space now used by social work school

The removal of the Legislative Reference Bureau from the south portion of the basement was the most noticeable change made at the university library this summer. The work of the bureau is now being carried on in the capitol building by the Legislative Council due to the fact that the bureau was abolished at the last session of the unicameral.

The old home of the reference bureau is now being used by the School of Social Work for a reading room and by the library as store place for documents.

The main change occurring in the library's personnel during the summer consisted of the resignation of Miss Edna Bullock, who had been in the reference bureau office for over 20 years and who served as head librarian of the bureau during recent years.

Miss Louise Nixon, assistant librarian for the bureau removed to the capitol where she will continue her work in the office of the Legislative Council.

Miss Marjorie Stuff was added to the library's cataloging staff to fill a vacancy created in that department by the resignation of Miss Foster last winter. Miss Stuff received her technical training at Columbia and comes to Nebraska after working in the library of Stetson university.
