Improving the campus

Word from Washington of the approval of an allotment of over $100,000 for campus improvement at the University of Nebraska is good tidings.

The money will be used principally for the installation of new drives and roads on the city campus and at the agricultural college, for improving and replacing lawns and shrubbery, for completing the reconditioning of the stadium and for orchard irrigation pipes at the college of agriculture. There is not a single proposal, lacking merit, but especially are the improvements in replacing lawns and shrubbery to be commended. These have been difficult years to preserve the grass stretches and the shrubbery at the University of Nebraska. They are an important part of the physical plant of the university, and add or detract, according to the manner in which they are maintained, to the attractiveness of the campus.

The university itself, on slender rations, has had no money to put into campus development and improvement.

N. U. judging teams compete in Kansas City

Nebraska's meats judging team today seeks to win its fourth consecutive championship at the American Royal livestock show which opened Saturday at Kansas City.

The ag livestock judging team, last year's national champions also, took fifth place Sunday in a field of 17 teams representing as many states. Missouri university won first place and the national championship stock judging trophy. Iowa State college was second; Kansas State, third; Ohio State, fourth; and Wisconsin, fifth.

Nebraska's six man squad, coached by Prof. R. R. Thalman, won fourth in cattle judging; sixth in horses; fourteenth in sheep, and third in hogs. Members of the livestock judging group are Keith Gilmore, Callaway; Lyle Roberts, Tecumseh; Wayne Smiley, Ainsworth; Eric Thor, Stanton; Leo Tupper, Riverton, and Ed Rousek, Burwell.

Three members of the four-man squad, coached by Prof. Ross Miller, will take part. The squad includes Eric Thor; Lyle Roberts; Marvin Kruse, Albion; and Paul Fidler, Melrose, Mont.

Fourth war forum slated for Thursday

Dr. Fellman to lead discussion on topic, 'Russia and the war'

Presenting a three-fold discussion of "Russia and the War," Dr. David Fellman of the political science department will speak at the Union's regular war forum.

Dr. Fellman intends to draw a comparison between the actions of Stalin today and the policy to which the communist party has subscribed. An answer to the question "Are Germany and Russia really natural enemies?" will be attempted. Dr. Fellman's answer, from a historical standpoint, is "No." Lastly, he plans to examine the interests of Russia in the Baltic states and what expansion may be expected with regard to them.

Round-table Discussion.
 Round-table discussion of the topic will follow the forum, which is sponsored by the college of arts and sciences and the Union. Student suggestions for future forums may still be submitted in the box under the daily bulletin board in the Union lobby.
