Picture fails to bill film headliner

It is very seldom that a studio uses a star in a picture without billing him, but in all the ads for "Honeymoon in Bali," current at the Nebraska, there's nary a mention of Akim Tamiroff, altho he does a nice job in the part of the window washer.

The reason for the lack of billing is that the part is too small, but Tamiroff liked the part so well that he insisted on taking it—billing or no billing. The original script called for one scene, but he did that so well that the studio rewrote the ending of the picture to give him another scene.

Hollywood rules governing the production schedules have been completely revised during the last few weeks because of the war. When there was still a possible market for American films in Europe the studios had to be careful not to produce anything which might be contrary to the policy of some department of state. Now with the European market shot the studios are pulling out all the ideas that had to be shelved because they displeased the powers abroad.

As a result Charles Chaplin won't have any trouble finding a distributor to handle his picture "The Dictators." The film will be finished in a few weeks and promises to be an excellent burlesque on two European gentlemen who rule their lands with an iron hand. You've probably guessed that Chaplin will play the part of A. Hitler, and Jack Oakie will play the part of B. Mussolini.

The term "Telegenic Girl" is one which will be on everyone's lips in a few years. The term was applied to Judith Barrett, who, according to engineers, stands for near perfection as a subject for television. If television is ever put on a plane that can be reached by the masses thousands of women will probably strive to become the "Telegenic type."

All world's records for underwater—and underground—swimming were shattered a few months ago by Peter Hayes for a scene in "Million Dollar Legs." Hayes covered 31 miles, 285 yards, 2 feet, 6 inches.

In one scene Hayes was thrown into the Olympic lagoon at Long Beach, California. Eight days later the scene was finished when he came up right in the middle of a fountain on a studio lot.

They call it 'agored' in "Honeymoon in Bali" now showing at the Nebraska with Fred MacMurray and Madeleine Carroll.

Sig Eps, Phi Delts clash today

Two teams to meet for grid championship of intramural league 3

By Harl Hunt.

The Sig Eps and Phi Delts, League 3 leaders, will fight it out tonight for the championship of their league.

Led by Kricac, who scored two touchdowns, the Sig Eps blasted Beta Sigma Phi, 30 to 0, in their game yesterday. Eynon, Bors and Mastelier accounted for the others. The Phi Delts soundly walloped Chi Phi's, 33-6, in their semifinal battle. In the other league contest, Sigma Chi won over Delta Sigma Pi, 1-0, in an overtime tussle.

The league 1 championship is still very much undecided. While the Betas are thus far undefeated, they still have a tilt with the Phi Sigs next Sunday. The Phi Sigs play SAE Saturday; if they emerge victorious from this encounter, the Sunday affair will be for the championship.

The League 4 schedule will not be completed until Monday. Tonight the Farm House plays Kappa Sigma, the Phi Gams tangle with ATO, and Acacia is pitted against Delta Tau Delta.

Murray tells of kicking

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—"Control kicking" is football's newest touchdown trick and the most "revolutionary development in the game since the birth of the forward pass" according to Franny Murray, gridiron star, who gives the details of coffin corner kicking today in an article in the Saturday Evening Post.

Murray who was a star at the University of Pennsylvania and now is with the Philadelphia Eagles says "control kicking" is as easy as any other football job altho many coaches believe it is possible only in a standout kicker such as Eric Tipton proved to be in the Duke-Pittsburgh game last year.

Improved average. And Murray should know because he developed "my own sub-par average of 32 yards to 56 yards for Pennsylvania's traditional closing game with Cornell in 1935" and adds that this phenomenal 75 percent increase "stemmed from one three hour emergency session."

That session, he reveals was with LeRoy Mills, a lawyer who was neither a career coach nor a former star, but the outstanding amateur kicking authority in the country, and a man who gave 20 years of his leisure to studying how to kick a football. In that session, Murray says, Mills corrected his slice, taught him a fast getaway and added distance and precision to the effort. And in the Cornell game Murray made a 75 yard kick that was a turning point and averaged 56 yards for the day.

Daily corrects error

The Beta's have not won the title in League I of intramural football as was stated in the DAILY yesterday and in the sports broadcast Wednesday night by sports editor June Bierbower. Phi Sigma Kappa is undefeated as are the Betas whom the face Sunday morning. That is the only game remaining for Beta Theta Pi, but the Pi Sigs must get by the one-beaten Sig Alphas Saturday morning in addition to the Beta's.

As I SEE IT!

The Huskers meet Baylor tomorrow afternoon, and if the Huskers can show the form they showed against Minnesota, there will be good feeling galore around this town, but things will be pretty low if they don't come out of the rut they were in at Iowa State. However, there's a good chance, we think, that the Huskers will be definitely on their game. They're playing at home again, and they have that one bad game after Minnesota out of their systems. Baylor, Charley Blalack, Baylor publicity man fears, may slump after their good showing against Arkansas, but whether or not they do, we have a little hunch that Saturday will be the Huskers' day.

It will be a hard game no matter how it goes. Baylor has a veteran line, with six seniors and a swell center in Bob Nelson. The big Minnesota line held no terrors for the Huskers in that Oct. 6 tussle, altho it is true the Bears have a more experienced forward wall than the Gophers had.
