Pep groups open sale of yearbooks

Sherman to order only enough annuals for subscriptions.

"Get your Cornhusker today" is the new cry of Corn Cobs and Tassels as they launch the annual Cornhusker sales campaign today. Until Nov. 20, the yearbooks may be purchased only through members of the pep groups. During the campaign, the salesmen will wear identification ribbons bearing the legend "Corn Cob-Tassel Salesmen, Cornhusker 1940."

This the first year that the two groups have worked together in a concerted effort to sell the annual. Selma Hill and Ralph Reed, presidents of the Tassels and the Corn Cobs, say that the objective of the present campaign is to sell a larger number of Cornhuskers than has been sold in any previous year.

According to Irvin Sherman, business manager of the 1940 yearbook, only enough copies will be ordered to cover the subscription list.

Sherman also announced that cash prizes will be given to the top salesman in each organization. The first prizes will be $10, the second prizes $5, and the awards for third places will be $3. In addition to the cash prizes, a free copy of the Cornhusker will be given the individual with the highest sales in the two combined groups.

The theme of this year's book will be the end of one decade and the starting of another. The opening section of the book will be called "Memo on 1940." Included in this section will be pictures of the most important events of the year and of the different "types" found on the campus.

The 1940 yearbook will be printed on ivory paper in brown. See CORNHUSKER Page 4

Innocents to award cups for most appropriate greek house displays

Entries in the 1939 Homecoming decorations contest must be filed in the office of John Selleck, athletics business manager by tomorrow afternoon. Each house entering the contest which will be held before the Nov. 11 Homecoming game must keep an itemized list of its display expenditures, which must not exceed $25. This list of expenditures must be submitted before the eve of the contest.

The contest judged on the basis of originality, effort, and general effect will be decided by three Innocents, a professor from the fine arts school, and a Lincoln artist.

Members of the Innocents committee, Merrill Englund, Robert Waugh, and Orval Hager, expect the contest to be the biggest and best yet since the contest revived in 1934. Last year Delta Gamma's display of "VICTORY" spelled in ice blocks won first among the sixteen sororities entered. Sigma Nu's Tarzan swinging the Missouri Tiger by the tail won first among the 18 fraternities entered.

Overdue Awgwan comes out today

"To all those who had intended to chuckle their way thru a 9 o'clock class Monday may I express my sincere regrets," stated business manager of the Awgwan, Leonard Friedell. "It shall never happen again, (I hope!)"

The second issue of the humor sheet will be on the stands today, according to Betty Roach, editor in chief. The feminine humorist had "nothing else to say." It was evident that she was under great strain and did not wish to be questioned. As a Daily reporter left the office she mumbled to herself, "Ever since (sob) I've been working here (sob), we have yet to meet a deadline (sob) no matter how hard we try."

Kosmet skit deadline is today, 5 p. m.

NU symphony opens concert series Sunday

Director Lentz to solo as 80-piece orchestra appears in coliseum

The university's 80-piece symphony orchestra, directed by Don A. Lentz, will present its first coliseum concert of the season next Sunday afternoon, Oct. 29.

Tschaikowsky's "Symphony Number Five in E Minor" has been chosen for the first number on the concert's program. In the opinion of many critics this symphony is the most satisfying of all of Tschaikowsky's prodigious works. Entirely free from the melancholy and foreboding introspection which characterize many of the composer's works, the E Minor symphony vibrates with a darkly glowing undercurrent, free from all ugliness and bitterness. Two of the symphony's four movements have been transformed by song arrangers into popular song hits, "Moon Love" and the theme song of the movie "One Hundred Men and a Girl."

Charles Griffes' "Poem for Flute and Orchestra" will be the orchestra's second selection. Director Lentz will fill the solo roles in this highly impressionistic number, noted for its variety of rhythm. The final number is the Berlioz suite "The Damnation of Faust," a colorful selection, which includes a minuet, march and a dance.

The symphony orchestra is especially rich this year in the quality and abundance of its string instruments, having 15 violins, seven cellos, six violas, and five string bases.

Roosevelt talk open to students

Students will be able to hear "America's first lady" from a reserved section for 25 cents when Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt appears as first of the season's Lincoln junior league speakers on Friday, Nov. 3.

The president's wife will speak in the university coliseum at 8 p. m. A limited number of tickets are now available in the Union office, to be sold to students upon presentation of identification card.

Grad college committee asks papers, public aid in project

An appeal to the public and to newspapers for printed materials concerning the present European war was issued by a university committee which is undertaking to collect for present and future use all available printed records which will show the effect of the present European war upon the United States.

Composing this committee are Dean Harold W. Stoke, of the graduate college, and Profs. H. G. Deming, department of chemistry; E. A. Gilmore, economics; Norman Hill, political science; J. M. Reinhardt, sociology, and R. A. Win-nacher, history.

The data collected will be preserved and indexed for students interested in the events associated with the present emergency. All material should be sent to the university, Social Sciences 215, in care of the committee.

Foreign propaganda desired.

Especially desired is propaganda received from foreign countries; records describing the effect of the war upon the attitude of political groups from incipient fascist organizations on the right to the communists on the left; material telling of changes in the regular routine in the administration of churches, newspapers, radio stations, industrial and commercial establishments; and abstracts of any speeches, relating in some way to the war, given before fraternal or cultural organizations in the state.

fore the board after he had wrote and published a story concerning action of the university senate. The details of the action were to be released simultaneously on Sunday by local and other state papers. The information was to come from the editorial and publicity department of the university who had sent to all newspapers who published a Sunday edition, a copy of the story. Niemann who had not received the information from that office published the story on Friday thus scooping all other papers.

Niemann was first probated.

Immediately following, the Student Publications Board met and reprimanded as well as probated Niemann for his action which was termed as a "breach of confidence."

Speaking editorially the next day, Niemann expressed, as representative of the entire staff, the resolved intent to protect the freedom of the paper and to safeguard its independent service. Niemann was protesting that the university publicity department had closed news sources to reporters of the DAILY. He also alleged that the NEBRASKAN as the official news organ of the university had prior right to the news.

The Publications board convened the following day and suspended Niemann for the attitude reflected in his editorial.

Extension division offers opportunity to shut-ins

Crippled or isolated children for the first time will have an opportunity to receive elementary education at home, as the university extension division with the education division of the Works Progress Administration for Nebraska offers a complete elementary education course beginning Nov. 1, to children in all 48 states.

This service is not limited to Nebraska alone, altho the university is the first to offer this new service.

The new course was developed by Meredith W. Darlington, director of elementary course construction for the extension division, with the assistance of Dr. K. O. Broady of the department of school administration, and Earl T. Platt, director of supervised correspondence. Much credit is also due to Dr. A. A. Reed, director of the extension division and Dr. F. E. Henzlik, dean of the teachers college.

Available Nov. 1.

The new courses will not be available until Nov. 1, but registration will be accepted immediately. During the past two years the new plans have been tested with great success, but administrators plan to keep enrollment to a convenient size this year to facilitate work of evaluation and improvement on the various levels.

Parents of children who may benefit under this course must consult with their local superintendent, who shall decide the desirability of the courses in specific cases. The superintendent will also determine whether the district or the parent should pay for the course.

If local authorities approve, the student is registered with the uni- See SHUT-INS page 4
