

500 Huskers invade Wildcat lair tomorrow

From World War II—

Isolation for the United States is impossible

—declares Loewenstein

Prince avers neutrality is immoral

Denounces 'Let Europe stew in its own juice' policy of Americans

Isolation and indifference are impossible, averred Prince Hubertus zu Loewenstein in expressing a European's view of the "Role of the United States" in convocation yesterday morning.

"The U. S. is not in any sense independent; to establish complete isolation you'd have to abolish the moral code of Christianity," said Loewenstein. He took a quotation from Nicholas Murray Butler that "neutrality would be immorality," as a lead for his own declaration that "the most highly immoral words I have heard in America recently are 'Let Europe stew in its own juice'. The blood of European men is that of all men. Such statements lead to our own moral suicide."

To set example.

The prince maintaining that the United States cannot stand aside and "wait and see" what happens. "Your country is the most powerful nation, and your action or failure to act will be felt in every corner of the earth. You have to set

Boucher talks at teachers meeting

Singing out "two primary phases" of the Nebraska educational survey, Chancellor C. S. Boucher highly commended the recent report of the planning board to teachers of the state in an address yesterday to the annual meeting of district one of the state teachers association in Lincoln.

CHANCELLOR C. S. BOUCHER, ...addresses teachers

The character and organization of the publicly supported educational program and the cost of this program were the two phases.

Chancellor Boucher said that changes in economic, social and political ways of life demand appropriate changes in formal education. "In the face of depression and unfavorable crop raising conditions, cost has become a major consideration. The problem becomes how to readjust our educational program so as to meet the needs of future citizens at the lowest necessary cost," he said.

The question raised by the planning board report is not one of arbitrary change, he stressed, but a question of proper allocation of

(See BOUCHER on page 2)

Teachers convention ends today

District 1 instructors hear Dr. Haake open sessions in coliseum

Teachers of district No. 1 assembled in Lincoln yesterday for the annual Nebraska State Teachers association convention which ends today.

The convention began with a general session in the University Coliseum. Dr. Alfred P. Haake of Chicago told the teachers that the solution of this country's economic problems is increased production. Dr. Haake, former chairman of the Rutgers university department of economics was discussing "Has Our American Economic System Failed?"

Chancellor C. S. Boucher warned the teachers that the state legislature should "hew to the line" in accepting recommendations of the Nebraska educational survey made by the state planning board.

Dr. Haake drew the conclusion that "the answer is not to destroy the present system but to make it work better. We will be wise to retain our system of democracy and competitive enterprise. After all, no one says, 'Let's throw out Christianity' because it has failed to solve all the world's problems."

He closed his talk with an appeal to his teacher audience not to believe that business is leading the United States into war.

(See TEACHERS on page 6.)

Charles Pillsbury, Omaha, appointed brigade colonel

Robert A. Nelson, John Folsom, Orval Hager head infantry; Matschullat commands artillery

English do not... expect U.S. army to come to Europe—

... Loewenstein

"Leading English diplomats do not expect that America will send armies to Europe," asserted Prince Hubertus zu Loewenstein, speaking yesterday before a Union forum.

The speaker, who was in Paris when war was declared, added that, in his personal opinion, Great Britain and France have enough power to defeat German forces. The Carnegie professor also voiced the belief that next March Hitler would become uneasy about his long Polish frontier held in common with Russia.

The prince was stranded in Paris, when the war broke out, having missed two boats upon which he had secured tickets. Upon the declaration of the war he was drafted by the Czechoslovakian authorities, because legally he is a citizen of Czechoslovakia. However he was released from the draft by the Czech minister in Paris.

Soon after the hostilities began (See FORUM on page 2.)

Charles H. Pillsbury, son of Lt. Col. Pillsbury, m.c., of Omaha, was promoted Wednesday to the rank of cadet brigade colonel and commanding officer of the university R.O.T.C. His appointment was announced by Col. C. A. Thuis, commandant of cadets, whose executive orders also raised Leo F. McGowen to the position of cadet captain.

The new colonel was second lieutenant in Pershing Rifles, basic military honorary society.

In the infantry regiment Robert A. Nelson, John D. Folsom and Orval Hager were promoted to commander, executive, and adjutant respectively. Seniors raised to the rank of major include Robert Pillsbury, Donald Sewell, and Joseph J. Fraser.

Following is a list of appointments and assignments which are effective immediately:

BRIGADE.

Cadet Col., Charles H. Pillsbury.
Cadet Capt., Leo F. McGowen.
Cadet Col., Commanding—Robert A. Nelson.
Cadet Lieutenant Col., Executive—John D. Folsom.
Cadet 1st Lt., Adjutant—Orval Hager.
Cadet Maj., Commanding 1st Battalion—Robert D. Pillsbury.
Cadet 1st Lt., Adj.—Charles W. Rice.
Cadet Maj., Commanding 2nd Battalion—Donald Sewell.
Cadet 1st Lt., Adj.—George Uhrenholdt.
Cadet Maj., Commanding 3rd Battalion—Joseph J. Fraser.
Cadet 2nd Lt., Adj.—Edwin T. Smith.

INFANTRY REGIMENT.

COMPANY "A"—MONDAY 9-12 A. M.
Cadet Capt., Commanding, JACOB GEIER.

Cadet 1st Lieut. Robert Carnahan.
Cadet 1st Lieut. William C. Craft.
Cadet 1st Lieut. Adolf J. Kuncel.
Cadet 1st Lieut. Arlo Klum.
Cadet 1st Lieut. George V. Porter.
Cadet 1st Lieut. Ralph Reed.
Cadet 1st Lieut. John L. Tanner.

COMPANY "B"—MONDAY 2-3 P. M.
Cadet Capt. commanding, DONALD A. MILLION.

Cadet 1st Lieut. Robert P. Brust.
Cadet 1st Lieut. Leonard L. Friedel.
Cadet 1st Lieut. Raymond Kroening.
Cadet 1st Lieut. Norman Leuthauscr.
Cadet 1st Lieut. Kenneth C. Olsen.
Cadet 1st Lieut. John Rathbone.
Cadet 1st Lieut. Francis O. Woodard.
Cadet 2nd Lieut. Max T. Hulbert.

COMPANY "C"—TUESDAY 9-12 A. M.
Cadet Capt., Commanding, JAMES E. JONES.

Cadet 1st Lieut. Willard R. Carlisle.
Cadet 1st Lieut. Roger Emrich.
Cadet 1st Lieut. William D. Green.
Cadet 1st Lieut. Walter A. Luther.
Cadet 1st Lieut. George M. Seeman.
Cadet 2nd Lieut. Robert V. Evans.
(see APPOINTMENTS on page 3)

Ag chooses queen tonight at costume Farmers' formal

Balloting will be held from 8:30 to 9:30 in student activities building, scene of affair

Identity of the Farmer's formal queen will be made known tonight as Ag men don their overalls and Ag women their gingham and aprons and gather at the Formal, to be held this evening in the student activities building on Ag campus.

Balloting for the queen, who will be selected from among nine outstanding Ag senior girls, will take place from 8:30 to 9:30. All men students attending the event will be allowed to vote.

Presentation at 10.

Presentation of the queen, highlight of the Formal, will take place at 10 o'clock. The number that filed for the honor this year is larger than usual. The candidates: Lois Hammond, Gwen Jack, Marie Lienert, Harriet Millbern, Charlotte Peckham, Mary Schricker, Peggy Sherburn, Marian Smrha, and Amolie Svoboda. All of the candidates will take part in the ceremony. The idea of which is being kept a secret.

Largest event of the semester on Ag campus, the Farmers Formal, sponsored by Ag Executive board, is primarily an all-Ag party with Ag students donning their "farmer" clothes and assembling to honor the Formal queen.

Theme of this year's Formal is that of a barn dance, with the activities building transformed into semblance of the interior of a barn. Decorative features are not being revealed until the party takes place this evening.

About 300 couples are expected to attend the party to take part in election of the queen, dance to the music of Dick Mills and his Southern Swing Boys, and join in the evening's fun-making.

Mills and his orchestra are coming to Ag campus fresh from an

(See FORMAL on page 6.)

INQUIRING REPORTER

On the marital scoreboard— Domesticity, 6; No Family, 2

By Paul Svoboda.

Either consciously or subconsciously a man when he feels that he has found an ideal mate notes the traits of the woman which agree with his type of personality. Love is not an invisible hand that guides two people to the altar. It is a satisfactory reaction mutual to each of the individuals concerning the personality, habits, traits, and desires of the other.

When men begin to cast a marital glance over the eligible females they have a predominant trait in mind that the woman must possess. If she is blessed with this quality and if he agrees with her desires of a man, wedding bells are soon to sound.

What qualities must the woman whom you hope to marry possess?

Neal Morrow, Arts and Sciences Freshman
"The woman I'm going to marry has to be beautiful and have a keen personality. Intelligence is the next requirement along with culinary aptitudes. I want one that will gad around with me and do the things I like to do. Positively not the family type."

Bob Greene, Bus. Ad. Freshman

"Her crowning glory must be beauty and a personality to go with it. Next, she's got to be able to cook like my mother can. The homey type would suit me fine. She has to have a sense of humor so that she can laugh at my jokes."

Bob Markland, Arts and Sciences Freshman

"If she's going to be my wife she has to be faithful. Class and more class. I hate women that have nervous habits. The only

(See REPORTER on page 2.)

Special train will leave at 7:30 a. m.

Cost of fare and game totals $4.95; Tickets still on sale at coliseum

Over 300 tickets for the Husker migration to Kansas State were sold by Thursday evening, according to John K. Selleck, athletic business manager. From the ticket demand already evident, Mr. Selleck predicted that at least 500 students will watch the Nebraska-Kansas State gridiron battle Saturday in Manhattan.

A special train carrying Nebraska pep organizations, the band, the freshman football team and students, will leave tomorrow morning at 7:30 and arrive in Manhattan at 11:30. Cost of the train fare and football ticket together is $4.95. The game ticket is $2.30 and fare $2.65. Tickets may be purchased at the ticket office in the coliseum until Friday evening.

The homecoming train will leave Manhattan at midnight Saturday and arrive in Lincoln at approximately 4 a. m.

Arrangements have been made between the Tassels and the Purple Pepsters, women's pep club at K-State, for a luncheon Saturday noon.

Business students banquet Tuesday

Awards will be made to outstanding business administration students at the annual bizad recognition banquet to be held Tuesday at 6 p. m.

Nathan Gold of Gold and Co. will present the Gold scholarship

—Lincoln Journal and Star. FRANK FOGARTY, ...addresses bizad students

key at the banquet. The Miller and Paine research scholarship will also be awarded.

Frank P. Fogarty, commissioner of the Omaha chamber of commerce, will address the meeting on the "Plus Values of a Business Career."

The banquet is sponsored by the bizad executive council. Chairman of the banquet committee is Harold Swan. Assisting are Grant Thomas, ticket chairman; Harriet Lewis, publicity; Katherine Shawver, program and decorations.

Tickets for the banquet are 60 cents and may be obtained at either the Union or the bizad office, social science, 310B. All bizad students are welcome to attend.