Russia talks but world still wonders

Germany disappointed but allies are puzzled say commentators;

By Woerner and Steele.

Russia spoke Tuesday, but the world still wonders where she stands. Germany is reportedly disappointed that Stalin hasn't promised her further support; many Germans had been predicting that Russian Premier-Foreign Commissar Molotov would announce open military support of the nazis.

The allies and America puzzle over the tone of the address. It branded England as the aggressor, "now," because she continues to fight for Poland and it berated America for extending her moral support to Finland. Altogether it was the most anti-British speech yet to come from the Soviet, yet it fell far short of German hopes.

Russia disclosed her territorial demands upon Finland which are aimed to give make the great Russian city of Leningrad more safe. Soviet land would be given Finland in exchange, and also the frontier would be demilitarized. Finland refuses the demands, but

I'd rather be beautiful. coeds say, but men want brains

By Paul Svoboda.

Beauty is beauty and brains are brains and never the twain shall meet, that is, only on very rare occasions. This theory, which is still held in repute, enables the average person to conceive or misconceive a human's intelligence by the line of his or her profile.

When the phrase "beautiful blonde" is uttered, almost invariably the adjective "dumb" accompanies it. Inversely, when a man is described as being tall, bony, Ichabod-faced, and wearing horn rimmed spectacles, immediately he is stereotyped as a genius or "brain wave."

Such observations are obviously not all true. But the person so blessed by nature that he possesses both these qualities so adamant in public respect is sure to find his place in the sun.

WHICH WOULD YOU RATHER HAVE, BEAUTY OR BRAINS? Elaine Jordon, ag sophomore

Beauty everytime. Because it gets you more places more times. Also a beautiful Juliet is more

Counsellors expect 600 at dinner

Big sister group will have Hosp, Piper, Clark as guests this evening

Between 500 and 600 university women are expected to attend the Coed Counsellors' annual Friendship Dinner this evening, sponsored by the Coed Counsellor board, and to be held in the Union ballroom, starting at 5:45.

Coed Counsellors will bring their little sisters, and sorority activates their sorority daughters as is done every year. Any other woman in school is invited, although the affair is particularly for freshmen women.

Guests at the dinner will be dean Helen Hosp, and the Counsellor Board sponsors, Elsie Ford Piper and Miss Letta Clark. Fern Steuterville is board president.

The tap dancing hobby group will appear on the program, as well as several accordion numbers and group singing, and both dinner and program will not last later than 7.

Jane DeLaTour is general chairman for the banquet; Mary Sherburne and Ruthann Sheldon are in charge of food; Maxine Lake and Faith Medlar arranged the program; Ruth Clark and Ruth Grosvenor are in charge of tickets while Natalie Burn and June Bierbower are publicity workers.

1901 directory was an odd thing with no phones listed

C. D. Hayes, secretary of the university "Y," displays a copy of the 1901 student directory as the most interesting and oldest copy in his file of old editions of the directory.

Conspicuous by their absence in the old directory are the 'phone numbers—only the students' addresses, Greek affiliations and names are listed. In the front of the book the professors and other employees of the university are listed by name and department, including Chancellor F. Benjamin Andrews, Ellen Smith (registrar), C. Bessey, Samuel Avery, and D. B. Brace.

Among the advertisers in the directory, which measures 4x8 inches, are the Arrow Head, "a university cartoon and illustrated monthly," The College Settlement, and Professor Wilson's shoe shining shop which featured "two chairs for the women and six shines for a quarter."

Thirteen social sororities and fraternities appear in the 1901 directory, listed by name only.

likely to snare a handsome Romeo.

Floyd Hansmeyer, ag sophomore

You can't look at brains, but you can sure look at beauty. I'll take beauty everytime.

Lillian Wind, arts and science freshman

Beauty. Don't ask me why, because I don't have any brains. Get it?

Jack McPhail, bizad sophomore

It's just logical that a person with intelligence is of more use to society than an empty-headed woman killer. There aren't many jobs in this world that require beauty and if there were you couldn't hold them. If there was something missing above the neck.

Marjorie Jones, teachers freshman

If you have beauty you don't have to have brains. I'm in teachers college and if I had brains without beauty I'd probably wind up behind the eightball, you know, without a husband. So with beauty I wouldn't have to worry about

Marian Kidd takes council presidency

Ineligibility bugaboo takes Waugh, Jean Morgan chosen vice-president; election plans completed

...she studied all night...

OUT

...he didn't...

Marian Kidd, senior and Kappa Alpha Theta, automatically received the post of president of the student council yesterday afternoon after Bob Waugh was forced to resign because of ineligibility.

To fill the position vacated by the new president, the council unanimously elected Jean Morgan, Alpha Phi, to the vice presidency. Waugh was forced to relinquish his position because of an incomplete which he incurred in the second semester of last year. Miss Kidd, whose position also was endangered due to academic requirements, crammed the night before the meeting and was able to clear her record a few hours before the meeting was called to order.

Jurgenson plays safe

Clinton Jurgenson, student member of the publications board, also in the same difficulties as Miss Kidd and Waugh, untangled the mesh of ineligibility and thereby prevented his post from being subjected to a vote of the council.

Not an absence marred the council roll call, as the meeting was to have been of great import to the major political factions, each of whom were eyeing the potential plums jealously. However, the plums shriveled to nothing but the rearrangement of officers within the governing body. Evidently this shake-up of officers was of no momentous importance to faction leaders as only one candidate was nominated and the election was unanimous.

Election plans

Plans for the election November 7 were outlined and much stress was laid upon the reduction of illegal voting which threatens to become a custom on the campus. In order to eliminate this election difficulty, faculty members will supervise the polls. Voters will sign a sheet of paper and their signatures will be checked with that on their identification card. As a double check, faculty members will also look at the identification pictures.

Ballots will be cast for junior and senior class presidents, Honorary Colonel, and Nebraska Sweetheart. Juniors and seniors will vote for their respective class presidents. Honorary Colonel will be elected by an all-campus vote, by all male students. All students registered in either law or dentistry will cast ballots as seniors.

Vote in Union

Polls in the Union and in the activities building on ag campus will be open from 9 a. m. to 7 p. m.

All persons filing for any of the four positions open must first fill the following requirements.

1. Student must be carrying at least 12 hours satisfactorily.
2. Student must have acquired a minimum of 27 hours the two preceding semesters—12 of which must have been obtained the second semester.
3. Student who fails to pass less than 12 academic hours is barred from participation in activities the following semester.

Union holds first sketch class at 5

The first sketch class sponsored by the Union, will be held this afternoon at 5. Hereafter the classes will meet at this time every other week.

In charge of the class tomorrow will be Arlo Munroe, and Betty Mueller will pose.

No instruction will be given at these classes but each member will learn by himself, using as a model the sketches furnished by members of Delta Phi Delta, honorary art fraternity.

Any student may attend this class and should bring his own materials if possible. The Union however, will furnish drawing boards. Each week the best sketch will be chosen for use in an exhibit to be held at a later date.
