

Huskers point for Sooners

Gridders get rest after win

Nebraska's Cornhuskers, fresh from a stunning 14-13 victory over Pittsburgh, took things easy last night in their workout. The team viewed last weekend's pictures of the Pittsburgh contest and their errors in the game were pointed out and discussed. Jones gave the boys a chalk talk and then sent the team out on the playing field for a short workout in sweat togs.

Journal & Star

There were no serious injuries resulting from the Pitt encounter. Henry Rohn who was shaken up in the final quarter of the game was working out and will be in readiness for this week-end. Other than Hank's injury no others were sustained, and the boys will be in top shape for the encounter this week.

No changes posted.

No changes in the lineups as they were last week were posted. There may be a change or so later in the week, but as yet none has been indicated.

The captain of this week's game with the Oklahoma Sooners has not been selected, Jones announced. Selection will be made later in the week.

Oklahoma Sooners stinging from their 7-6 defeat at the hands of Missouri will be a mighty tough opponent for the Huskers this Saturday, and the wearers of the Scarlet and Cream will have to display a superior brand of ball to humble them.

The Sooners have never defeated a Nebraska team on Memorial Field and the Huskers will be fighting to keep that record clean.

Juggernauts win Barb grid title

Hitler's Playboys drop 2-0 decision to new champions

By Blaine Sloan.

In a hotly contested gridiron battle the Juggernauts annexed the Barb football championship by defeating Hitler's Playboys 2-0 Friday evening on the intramural field. The game was marked by the outstanding defensive play of both teams and by the hard charging of the Juggernaut line.

After a scoreless first half the Playboys made their bid when Livingston dropped back and heaved a 30 yard pass to Mc-Aferty on the Juggernauts one yard line, where he was stopped by Don Lynch. McClure broke through fast on the next play to set the Nazis back five yards. On fourth down, having been unable to advance the ball, Livingston tried a field goal but Bob Anderson of the Juggernauts was in the way and the champions took over the ball on their own 20 yard stripe.

Livingston trapped.

Smutz punted to the Playboy's eight yard line. On the next play Seberg, playing left end for the Juggernauts, broke through to catch Livingston behind his own goal line for a safety and the only score of the game.

The champion's offensive thrusts were sparked by Smutz, while Anderson and Seberg were standouts in an exceptionally strong line. Livingston and Mc-Aferty led the offensive for Hitler's Playboys. Charley Peterson starred for the losers on defense.

Each member of the winning team received a medal from the intramural department, and the Barb Union is awarding the team by presenting them with a dinner with the Towne club.

Speaking of professors: Ad Lindsey, who coached at Kansas until this year, was walking across the KU campus the morning of the Kansas-K-State game. He said no less than three instructors of his acquaintance stopped him to ask what he thought of his team's chances were that afternoon.

Down at Tennessee Bob Neyland drafted an instructor to aid his team in football practice. Vanderbilt's star punter Junius Plankett is a wrong-side booter, and Tennessee doesn't have any. A former Virginia football star, who's a left footed punter, however, teaches at Tennessee, so Neyland brought him out for duty, so his players could get used to having a left-footed kicker.

Husker sophs, and the juniors who didn't perform their "acts" last year had the opportunity to present their wares in an entertainment sort of a way for the older players Sunday night in the club car of the football special. It was some shakes, we understand.

Maybe it's like saying a snake could fly if he had wings, but the fact remains that we think the Huskers, had they a pass defense, would be, instead of a good team, one of the country's greatest. They'd have won over Indiana, and probably over Missouri, and wouldn't have had half the trouble they did against Pitt. Oh, well, it's Oklahoma this week. We'll tell you more about Oklahoma later.

Nebraska beats Minnesota, Pittsburgh for brilliant intersectional mark this year

By John McDermott.

Nebraska's Scarlet and Cream warriors have set a record that will be a mark for future Husker teams to shoot at. This year Coach Biff Jones' boys have defeated two great inter-sectional opponents, Minnesota and Pittsburgh. They also beat Baylor and tied Indiana to give them an undefeated intersectional record.

The Mighty Men of Pitt were handed a thrilling defeat last Saturday in Pitt Stadium by a gallant band of Nebraska Huskers. Although the Pitt team that was on the field last week did not rate with some of the great teams in Pitt's history they were a fine ball club and played some great football. For the first time in many a moon the Pitt team was out gained on the ground by a Husker team. The Nebraska club rolled up 168 yards from rushing while their opponents were content with 111.

Should Have Won More. In commenting on the game I believe that the Nebraskans should have won by a more decisive score. Several breaks during the ball game went against the Huskers, two of the resulting in Pitt scores, and two more prevented the Scarlet from scoring. In the first half, plunging Vike Francis was pulled down on the five yard line after picking up 22 yards. I believe that if the hard charging Mr. Francis had driven in to the last man he would have carried him over the goal line, and the Huskers would have had one more score.

Later on in the ball game the Panthers recovered a fumble that led directly to a score, which might have been prevented if the Husker aerial defense had been a little tighter. Jones, Pitt's fine halfback pulled one of Rohrig's pitches out of the air and ran it back 18 yards to thuddle a possible Husker score.

Ray Prochaska was the potential receiver of the pass.

Shoved Prochaska.

Narick the other halfback did quite a bit of shoving of Pro on that particular play. From the press box it looked like interference. Even Dr. Jock Sutherland, coach emeritus of the Panthers rose to his feet and exclaimed that the Pitt halfback had deliberately shunted Prochaska out of the way. This completion would have produced another Husker score.

The punting of Hopp and Rohrig was indeed a great piece of work. Harry quick-kicked 58 yards to get the Huskers out of a tight spot and was consistently getting 50 to 60 yards. Rohrig was kicking in fine style and put the Panthers back on their heels several times with quicks that rolled out within the 15 yard line.

Rohrig also converted after the first touchdown by Henry Rohn. Bus Knight lent an able toe to the Cornhusker cause, kicking off 65 yards and splitting the uprights after Francis had run 23 yards to pay dirt.

Nebraska's ends were spilling the interference, allowing the Husker backs to move in for a number of tackles. The Pitt backs had a mighty hard time penetrating the Husker forward wall too, and resorted to the aerial game to gain against the Cornhuskers.

Panthers Pass.

The Panthers had seven completions in 13 attempts while the Huskers connected on 4 of the 6 passes they attempted. Two Panther passes were good for long gains, one produced a touchdown and netted 30 yards, while another was good for 45 yards.

The Huskers kept the entire gathering on its feet the last five and three-fourths minutes with its offensive defense. The Huskers took the final kick off on the 20 yard line and marched forty-five yards, and gained three first downs. Bob DeFruiter raced 32 yards on a fake quick kick, and Bob was almost away. A man tackled him from behind or he would have been away from Cassiano, Pitt safety. Herndon ably had taken care of the Pitt star. This play pulled the game out of the fire for the Huskers, for if they had been forced to punt the Panthers might have tallied. From this play on the Huskers moved steadily toward the goal, and it was second and seven on the Pitt 25 when the gun barked.

Dick Cassiano, Pittsburgh's great back received a great ovation when he entered the ball game with six minutes remaining. Many of his followers were disappointed because he didn't carry the ball.

Dr. Jock B. Sutherland in commenting on the game seemed rather secretly amused over the Husker triumph. His teams never lost a contest to the Huskers. The former Pitt coach said that the Nebraska team was a fine balanced club and should be in the national spot light next season.
