Annual tug to end frosh cap question

Whether or not the freshmen are to wear their little red hats until the first snow flies will be determined at the annual freshman-sophomore tug of war immediately before the game begins Saturday when Nebraska plays host to the Sooners.

The tug will be signaled by an aerial bomb fired when the players leave the field following the warmup. Only freshmen wearing their hats will be allowed to participate in the event. The tug-of-war, sponsored by the Innocents society, will have an added incentive for the sophomores to participate. What the incentive is will be a big surprise, according to Ralph Reed, who is directing the event.

Bonfire will feature rally

Cobs, Tassels to lead final pre-game parade

Cheering the team on to victory over the Oklahoma Sooners, Cornhusker rooters Friday night will rally round a gigantic bonfire on the mall to pay homage to the team in the last rally of the season.

Students will assemble in front of the Union at 7 p. m., and from there will parade to the mall, north of social sciences, where a bonfire will be lighted by the two game captains, Sam Schwartzkopf, senior tackle, and Jack Ashburn, senior end.

Feature of the rally will be the predictions of the two game captains and one of the coaching staff concerning the outcome of Saturday's game.

Corn Cobs and Tassels will take part in the rally. Rooters will parade to the mall behind the victory bell and the freshman band. A speaking tour, designed to bring student interest to a fever pitch, will be held during the dinner hour Friday.

Selleck expects 36,000 at game

A crowd of 35,000 to 36,000 people will attend the Oklahoma game Saturday, it was estimated at John K. Selleck's office. Four thousand reserved seats remain unsold.

No general admission tickets are being sold in order to insure use of bleachers by knotholders. Reserved seats are expected to be available at the kickoff.

Dean says 'determination' only way to stay neutral

If the United States is to remain neutral in the present European conflict, we must make up our minds that we will not take sides even though the allies are defeated and Europe undergoes radical realignment, in the opinion of Dr. C. H. Oldfather, dean of the college of arts and sciences.

In an address before the Alliance Kiwanis club on the subject, "The War, The Peace, and The United States," Tuesday evening, Dean Oldfather declared that American neutrality hasn't been fully tested, because as yet there is no serious threat that Britain and France will lose the war. But when this threat does appear, and he believes that there is at least a 50-50 chance that it will, or when it appears that the allies are becoming financially exhausted, then will come the real test of American neutrality.

What if allies lose?

The arts college dean predicted that if the allies lose, the British empire would be completely shattered, France would be reduced to a secondary power, Italy would control the entire Mediterranean, and Holland would lose the East Indies.

"But in spite of such radical changes in the political map of the world, the United States must keep out of war," Dean Oldfather said. "In the first place, our western hemisphere will remain safe, because the central powers will be morally and financially exhausted, and will have enormous problems for we cannot hope to bolster up a world order which is not based upon realities.

Can't save it ourselves

"In other words," he said, "if Germany and her allies are powerful enough to control the rest of the world, the U. S. cannot save it for England and France. European civilization will be beyond saving."

The dean feels that this country should be ready to participate in

21 coeds to ride in horse show

The second annual horse show, sponsored by the university riding club will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. at Shreves Riding Academy. Those entered are: Betty Nichols, Lynn Goodrich, Betty Buchanan, Maryellen Partner, Maryellen Robinson, Mary Jean Lauvitz, Josephine Small, Muriel Clyce, Mary Jefford, Betty O'Shea, Gwenith Orr, Lillie Luitgen, Mary Deeson, Betty Ann Roberts, Jerry Weimers, Mary Fran Kier, Jean Donnelly, Louise Matthews, Virginia Chambers, Harriet Hedelund, and Lois Fueling.

The show will be divided into eight classes—intermediate, pair, novelty, beginning, fine harness, advanced, and stock. Ribbons will be awarded in each class by Arthur Cullen of Omaha.

Becker speaks at forum tonight

Larry A. Becker, managing editor of the Lincoln Star, will be the speaker at the seventh vocational forum which will be held in room 209B, social sciences, at 7 p. m. tonight. The topic of his address will be "Journalism as a Career."

Different facts and points which a student should consider before choosing journalism as a career will be discussed. Any student who is interested in journalism as a career may attend. Questions regarding journalism as a vocation will be answered after the address.

Pep groups extend Cornhusker sales

The Corn Cob and Tassel drive to sell Cornhuskers has been extended one week to enable the pep groups to contact more people. The time has been extended until Wednesday, Nov. 29, as requested by the Cobs and Tassels.

Irving Sherman, managing editor of the yearbook, requests that everyone planning to buy a book place their order with a Corn Cob or Tassel before the sales drive closes.

Prom filings 'til Nov. 28

Student Council will select members Dec. 6

Filings which opened yesterday for the eleven positions on the Junior-Senior prom committee will continue until Wednesday, Nov. 28. Students who wish to file for one of the positions may do so in John K. Selleck's office in the coliseum.

Eligibility requires regular junior standing in the university, with 12 hours carried successfully last semester and 27 hours last year. Not more than six of the members of the committee may be members of the Student Council.

According to custom, six women and five men will be chosen, as Forrest Behm, junior class president, is a member ex-officio, and the number of men and women on the committee is usually the same. Members of the committee will be selected by the Student Council at a meeting to be held December 6.

Work first qualification of good lawyer—Carter

"Willingness to work is the prime requirement for becoming a successful lawyer," Judge Edward F. Carter, of the Nebraska Supreme court told 30 pre-law students attending a vocational forum held in social science hall.

"The practice of law is 95 percent hard work," added Judge Carter, who graduated from Nebraska's law school in 1919.

In discussing the problems facing prospective lawyers, Judge Carter presented figures showing that Nebraska has 2,275 practicing lawyers, one for every 606 inhabitants. These figures he interpreted to mean that the legal profession is overcrowded. However, he urged his audience to remember that other fields are similarly overcrowded.

The jurist advised, "Settle in a place which you like. Don't select a location which is not pleasant."

Another problem considered by Judge Carter was that of joining an established firm. The forum speaker approved entrance into a large firm, but cautioned young lawyers not to become mere clerks. When the program was finished, the group considered organizing a pre-law club. Blaine Sloan was unanimously elected chairman of a committee to draft organization plans.

Phi Tau Theta head to attend conclave

Clyde Kleager, national president of Phi Tau Theta, Methodist boys' fraternity, will leave next Thursday for the national conclave of this group to be held in Minneapolis this year. Plans for a general reorganization, nationally, are to be presented.

Attending, also, from this campus will be Willis Regier, LeRoy Seaver, Warren Emerson, and Dale Weese. Rev. Mr. Drew of Wesley Foundation will accompany them.

Excavators seek new locations

Four university instructors took a trip thru the southwestern part of the state last week to investigate possible locations for museum expeditions next summer. The men, who left Saturday and returned Monday, are C. Bertrand Schultz, assistant director of the museum, Thompson Stout, geology instructor, Edson Fichter of the zoology department, and Gilbert Leuninghoener, head of geology at Midland.

Red Nichols to play for Military Ball

Heralding the opening of another formal season at the university, the Military Ball with Red Nichols and his orchestra will be held December 8 with all the pageantry and tradition that accompanies the affair.

Nichols and his band, known widely for his self-styled music, was signed this week to swing out for the ball when the military department and all its cadet officers show their stuff before a packed house in the coliseum.

Climaxing the evening activity will be the presentation of the new Honorary Colonel chosen by a vote of the student body, who will lead the grand march with Cadet Colonel Charles Pillsbury.

Novel and interesting in themselves are the presentation ceremonies which each year attract thousands of spectators in addition to the attendants at the ball.

The four candidates for the honor of replacing Virginia Fleetwood who was Honorary Colonel last year are Janet Lau, Elizabeth Waugh, Helen Kovanda, and Harriet Lewis.

Annually sponsored by the military department the ball had its inception in 1908 when Capt. Halsey Yates was cadet commander. Since that time it has been one of the leading social events in the state.

Claybaugh is Union delegate

Helen Claybaugh was elected delegate to the meeting of the Association of Student Unions by members of the Union board of managers at the regular meeting of that group this week.

The meeting will be held at the University of Florida in Gainesville beginning January 1. George Gostas was elected alternate delegate at the meeting. Besides Miss Claybaugh, Kenneth Van Sant, Union director, and Mrs. Quisenberry, director of the Union's catering department, will attend the meeting.

Val Grayson to get playup

Oldfield will interview band for 'Billboard'

Saturday night will mark more than just another college dance in the career of Val Grayson and his orchestra, coming here from Chicago to play at the Union. For here Grayson and his band will be interviewed by Barney Oldfield for one of the leading articles in a coming edition of "Billboard," national theatrical magazine.

Grayson, who plays a saxophone while directing the band, has studied under such masters of the instrument as Lynn Yuma and Thal Borstade. Featured arranger for Grayson's orchestra is Pat Lestel, who until recently did the arranging for some of the larger orchestras connected with a Chicago booking agency.

Vocalist with this band is Jeanne Yarnell, who last season was voted the most popular beauty contest winner in the middle west. Admission to the dance will be 50c for each person. After his engagement here Grayson will take his orchestra to Detroit where he will play in a hotel the rest of the winter season.
