NU 13, Sooners 7

Cowboy Roy Petsch dived across the goal line. The Huskers' second touchdown, shown here, was accomplished in exactly the same manner. In each case the maneuver was the same—a long steady drive, from Hermie Rohrig and raced rate picking of Rohrig to Petsch. This play came off with nine minutes gone in the second period and Rohrig's boot from placement after this touchdown completed the Husker scoring.

The play starts off as a reverse with Butch Luther usually shaking loose around the end, and the maneuver caught the Sooner secondary napping all afternoon. Col. Beryl Clark, a highly-touted Sooner sophomore who is supposed to be somewhat of a passing fancy himself was effectively bottled by an alert Husker defense. Story on Page 7.

At the height of the "intellectual" excitement of the city Panhellenic tea, Alpha Xi Delta President Lois Owens receives the scholarship cup from Marion Stone, dressed as a messenger boy who "bears the glad tidings." Besides handing over the silver cup to the sorority which

Prof of the Week

DAILY NEBRASKAN staff photo. Lowry Charles Wimberly, editor of the Prairie Schooner, takes on an editorial attitude as he wades thru manuscripts for the next issue of Nebraska's literary magazine. The hard working, olive skinned, dry humored professor has two unwarranted reputations, pessimism and "no smile." He never smiles when telling a joke. See story on page 8.
