 Spahn, and Ed Segrist.
 The other candidates, on the Council, who filed and would still be eligible if elected are Jim Minnick, Lowell Michael, Brandon Backlund, Betty Jean Ferguson, Ruth Clark, Marian Bradstreet, and Beth Howley.
 Candidates who are not already on the council are Janet Harris, Gerald Davis, Dwight Burney, George Knight, Ella Jo Marshall, Marian Miller, Ann Husted, Pat Sternberg, Betty Ann Roach, Mary Bullock, Marian Stone, and Mary Knight. Of the five who would be overpointed if elected all but Kruse are off the Council.

Two point activity.
 At its Monday meeting, the board made membership on the committee a two point activity. It also made the prom a second semester activity, and ruled any office obtained by virtue of an auxiliary to the original office. The latter action will prevent the junior class president—who automatically becomes a member of the prom committee—from being overpointed. No more than six members, three men and three women, can be elected from the Council itself.

 arts in the College of Arts and sciences; and Raymond L. Murray. All have an average above 90.
 Chief speaker at the dinner was C. Bertrand Schultz, assistant director of the museum, who announced that the University of Nebraska ranked first among the universities and colleges of the world in 1938 and 1939 for the quantity and quality of fossil material collected.
Amateurs aid
 Schultz pointed out that the aid of amateur fossil collectors has been of great value to Nebraska museum field parties, and that the discoveries of many valuable fossil localities and quarries have been due entirely to the efforts of friends of the museum.

Since the inception of the fossil collecting project in 1891, university funds have not been used for the expeditions, Schultz pointed out. Instead, the entire program has been financed by contributions from interested friends. Dr. Erwin H. Barbour led the first expedition.
 "Our expeditions have been active in the search for early man," Schultz continued. The trails of the search have led Nebraska museum parties to all parts of the North American continent. As the result of its many important discoveries the museum now possesses one of the key collections of artifacts of early man in America.

Indians weren't first.
 Citing that only a decade ago persons believed that the first people to reach this continent were the Indians, who came a few thousand years ago, Schultz pointed out that the museum parties have helped to uncover evidence of a race of man living in North America at the close of the great ice age, some 25,000 years ago.
 "We know that he lived contemporaneously with mammoths, camels, long-horned bison, four-horned antelopes, horses, cave bears, and saber-toothed tigers. These early Americans hunted most of these animals which may have been a major factor for the extinction of the animals, Schultz declared.

Schultz showed colored motion pictures of the 1938-39 summer expeditions to western Nebraska, including close-up views of fossil collection and preservation by scientists in the field.

 Italian people will be the victim of the recklessness of their dictator," in either an Allied or a German victory.
 In event of an Allied victory Prof. Salvemini predicted that the Italians would be compelled to foot the bill along with the Germans. If Germany became the victor on the other hand, Italy will become but a part of the German military machinery in the opinion of the historian.

"The Rome-Berlin agreement treaty made last May is not a treaty but a bond of vassalage," declared the guest lecturer. In supporting this contention he pointed out that during the last two years Germans have occupied influential positions in the Italian army and air force, and that members of the German secret police are powerful in Italy's secret service. Moreover the new head of the Italian militia is pro-German. Hitler dictates 'neutrality' of Italy.
 In the opinion of Prof. Salvemini the placement of these German executives in key positions "is a striking indication of Mussolini's subservience to Hitler, and Italy's so-called neutrality is abstinence from military operation dictated by Hitler, who regards the Italian forces as reserves subject to his disposal."

As another possible course of action the visiting historian foresaw the possibility of Mussolini forming an Italian-Hungarian-Bulgarian front against Yugoslavia, Italy's erst-while friend. The probable effect of such action would be German-Jugoslavian military operations directed at northern Italy.
