

'Organized Ag' to hold annual meet

Several thousand will gather from over state to make farm study

Several thousand will gather this week on the ag college campus at their annual "Organized Agriculture" meeting to take stock of the agricultural world for the past year and study the most recent experimental work in home economics and agriculture.

Meetings are scheduled from Monday through Friday, and will include sessions of every organized agricultural group in the state, with serious discussion, fun and play, and visiting with fellow farmers and homemakers from all parts of the state.

There are several general meetings during the week, where some of the leading agriculturists in the country will speak on important farm and home problems.

Alum returns

These gatherings start off Tuesday in the activities building with Francis Flood returning to Nebraska to speak about: "The Top of the World." Then on Wednesday Dr. C. B. Smith, who has just returned from the U. S. department of agriculture in Washington, will come to the campus for one of his talks about farm people. That same day, too, a Nebraskan will be honored in the Hall of Agricultural Achievement. He is the late Erwin Hopt, and Dr. F. D. Keim will tell about some of his early life.

Dr. W. E. Grimes, chairman of the agricultural economics department at Kansas State, Manhattan, will replace Roy Greene as one of the chief speakers. He will be here Thursday afternoon to discuss the effect of the European situation on American agriculture. Dr. Grimes is a nationally known authority on agricultural economics and has appeared before Nebraska farm audiences in previous years. Greene was forced to cancel his lecture at the last minute.

Banquet Monday

Friday afternoon, John Ise, University of Kansas economist of well-known standing, will expand on the European difficulties as related to agriculture.

On Monday night the Nebraska Farm Bureau federation holds its annual banquet. The 1939 class of Master Farmers will be presented Tuesday night by the Nebraska Farmer. Colored motion pictures of the farmsteads of those selected will be one feature and S. R. McKelvie, publisher of the Nebraska Farmer, will preside over the presentation.

Fun and frivolity come up Wednesday with the "Farm Family Fun Feed." Dr. H. C. Nothomb of Aurora will present a take-off on the "Wizard of Oz" with magic tricks. Francis Flood will be on hand for an illustrated lecture, and there will be dancing and other entertainment.

Thursday night brings the annual dairymen's banquet for more entertainment and education.

The entire program—Monday through Friday—presents interesting discussions of all kinds and the sessions are open to the general public, with but few exceptions. There are no fees nor registration costs.

Home ec group initiates

Phi Upsilon Omicron honors nine today

Nine home economics students will be initiated into Phi Upsilon Omicron, honorary home economics sorority, this morning at the home economics building on ag campus.

Outstanding feature of the ceremony will be the presence of Miss Hazel Manning, Madison, Wis., national inspecting officer of Phi Upsilon Omicron, who is spending Saturday and today with Nebraska members of the organization.

The new initiates are Mildred Bauder, Vivian Brown, Loa Davis, Helen Klatt, Helen Krejci, Alice Lideen, Monetha Newman, Virginia Ostergard, and Doretta Schlahoff. Amolie Svoboda, president of the active chapter, is in charge, assisted by chapter officers.

braska's Bus Knight. McCulla is president of the Chamber's senior division.

Westbrook, music staff attend educator's clinic

Dr. A. E. Westbrook, director of the school of fine arts, Emanuel Wishnow, Miss Marian Wolfe, Don A. Lentz, Ward Moore, and W. C. Tempel, all of the music faculty, attended the recent state music educator's clinic at Beatrice. Tempel is chairman of the choral division of the clinic and organized the 150 voice choir which Dr. Westbrook conducted during the conference.

Machinery expert speaks

Harry Davis appears three times this week

Harry G. Davis, authority on farm machinery, and research director of the Farm Equipment Institute at Chicago, is to appear before three audiences in Lincoln this coming week. They include two student groups on the university campus as well as at Organized Agriculture.

The Chicago machinery authority speaks before the engineers' convocation at the Temple theater Tuesday, Dec. 12 at 11 a. m. His topic then will be: "Some aspects of mechanization on American economy." His second appearance Tuesday will be when he meets with the Nebraska student branch of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers at the Student Union as a guest of honor at a dinner meeting.
