

Mary Anna says . . .

The course of true love never does run smooth--in college

DU pledges still eating off a mantle after last Monday night's sneak . . . Alpha Xi Delt pledge Marion Whitney wearing a frat pin on her slip these many weeks. . . Johnny Mason avoiding Beta's like a good case of poison ivy. . . AOP's Elaine Steinhauer and Lorraine Chant faced with a mathematical problem over their Sig Ep dates this week-end. . . Raymond Hall Alice Marion Holmes, beauty queen, and DU Dale Ganz getting mighty serious about it all. . . Phi Southwick, Phi Psi and Helen Cather, KKG doing a lonesome twosome.

TWIN FAME

for Marion Jones, Theta, whose engagement to Beta Houghton Furr is not going as smoothly as it might. Houghty, never the "steady" type, was recently seen dining at the Cornhusker with DG prexy Nan Talbot. Since then, Jean Christie, Alpha Phi pledge, has made a conquest, for this Saturday Houghton and Jean are driving to Omaha to see Sonja Henie. Last week Marion lost her Beta pin in Houghty's car, and people tell us, she had quite a time getting it back.

SISTER MARJ

meanwhile seems to be on the up and up at the Phi Delt house. A sequel to yesterday's story occurred when one of the brothers heard that Phil Anwyll was going to ask Marj to the Phi Delt spring party. The scheming brother dashed to the phone and made a date with her himself for that night. However, all was saved when Marj, hearing of the plot, broke her date just to go with Phil.

FAN MAIL

keeps arriving at the DU house for Dick Young (better known as New Dealer). Every morning after his eight o'clock he dashes clear out to 17th on D just to get his letter from a Pi Phi flame, who really makes her position clear. Dick can hardly wait to get back to his ten o'clock, where not only he but the whole row behind him, glean the daily news from his very L'amourish letters.

INNOCENTS

were entertained at the DU house last night as the second of their weekly dinners at the houses of each of the members of the society.

Hit's roundup an' brandin' time fer them thar barb

"What's this? The stench of good old Avery lab? The ag college horse barns, or a forest fire? Nope, it's the third floor of the Student Union; it must only be burning wood." Nothing else but a furniture roundup with barb council members yielding streamlined, electric-powered irons over cowering-curved chair arms. To the tune of "Home on the Range" and amidst an odor that could inspire no one musically, not even a cowboy, council members are branding nightly this week each piece of their office furniture.

Beg your pardon!

The Barbs did not give away a free ticket to the Interfraternity ball at the Barb dance Saturday night, as was announced in yesterday's DAILY. The ticket given was to the Junior-Senior Prom.

Flying thrills hit CAA students in first solos

The whine of motors tuned for a solo flight, and the thrill of being a flyer has already touched some of the 47 Nebraska students who are taking the air training course offered by the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

A large percentage of the 47 registered, including three girls, have already proved their wings alone. Solo flights for the rest are planned in the near future.

To finish ground-work. Within the next two weeks, the students registered will complete their ground-work classes. The bugaboo of finals will come in the middle of the semester for them, for all the students to complete the course must take standardized tests sent out by the Civil Aeronautics Authority. These tests cover basic material in meteorology, aeronautics law and principles, and in navigation. If these tests are passed, the classroom is closed as far as the students are concerned, and they are interested only in flying.

Sessions--

Rally--

The new system bars all other forms of electioneering, except for short dinner speeches at organized houses by faction delegates. The delegations are not to exceed four members.

Recommends festives in Temple.

Michael, who presented the plan for Council approval, recommended that the rally be in the Temple, because of its large seating capacity and the facility with which the rally could be kept in control in such a place. He also suggested that attendance be required of all Council members at the rally.

Prom committee reported that Joe Venuti and his orchestra would play for the Junior-Senior Prom to be held on March 2. The Council agreed to hold the election for Prom Girl on Tuesday, Feb. 27, if the committee decided to hold a general election. Tickets for the dance are being sold by all Corn-cobs, and at Danielson's.

Englund asks codification.

Merrill Englund asked the constitutions committee of the Council to codify all by-laws passed within the last few years, with an eye to amending the Council constitution. The Council voted favorably on this proposal.

Ellsworth Steele, Adna Dobson, and Brandon Backlund were appointed as a committee to investigate men's housing conditions on the campus.

Ain't he smooth!

No sartorial pansy exactly, but he's my choice for BDOC

By Bob Aldrich.

Determined to find out who is entering the celebrated BDOC contest this year and why, your reporter set out to interview various candidates. First was Ambrose Bilge, sophomore in engineering college. Ambrose is nearsighted, wears his hair long, and was voted Least Likely to Succeed in his high school class.

We found him in his room, mending holes in his shirt and getting his finger jabbed with the needle.

Modest Ambrose.

"Yes, I'm entering," Ambrose said modestly. "I didn't want to, but my friends insisted. Perhaps it was because they saw me last week in that lovely brown leather jacket with green stripes, left over from painting the porch last summer. The soft, turn-down collar and the zipper that will pull up only half way are features that give this jacket that masculine appeal."

"Another favorite costume of mine," Ambrose continued, "consists of dirty corduroys and one of those sleeveless shirts that must have been designed by a drunken surrealist. I never fail to leave the shirt tail hanging out. But perhaps I'm talking too much," Ambrose said, lowering his eyes modestly and throwing his shirt out the back window.

The new 'high shades.'

Herman Mergenthaler, now in his third year in the junior class, smiled as we sprang the question. Herman was charming in a bright green sweater with leather patches on the sleeves and the words "Ogallala High School" on backwards, due to the sweater being inside out. Shapeless blue pants, bright orange shoes, and a tie of morning after lavender set off Herman's protruding teeth and gates-ajar ears.

"Yes, I'm a candidate," Herman said, "and, frankly, I expect to Question--

(Continued from Page 1.) had convened, no one seemed to know definitely how or when the Prom Girl would be elected. When the issue came before the Student Council, there wasn't anything definite that they could do about it. Genius came to the top and they mastered the situation by saying "If the Junior-Senior Prom committee should choose to hold a general election, that election shall be held next Tuesday and be supervised by members of the Council."

The burden shifted.

That shifted the burden of deciding what kind of election should be held. It must be decided by the end of this week for if they choose to make it a general election, the Council must be notified in time to prepare for the election.

Last night, Co-chairman Burney insisted that it was to be held at the door on the night of the Prom. Co-chairman Bradstreet, however, took exactly the opposite stand when she declared that the Prom Girl should be elected at a general election.

So, the situation stands undecided. Anyone's guess is as good as the next fellow's. Students may or may not go to the polls Tuesday. The Prom Girl will be elected sometime.

win. I have a collection of gaudy shirts that would make any Ringling Brothers clown turn pale. I've been arrested twice for creating a disturbance in my bright yellow topcoat, blue suede shoes, flaming red hat, and slime-green tie."

Gasping for air, we rushed outside and ran into Boris Slaphapski, arts and sciences senior, who was in a terrific huff.

'A pansy—I yam.'

"I'm sore at the whole deal," Boris snarled. "I didn't want nothing to do with this sissy dressing-up stuff. But what happens? A bunch uh my 'pals' sign me up and now, instead of bein' comfortable in filthy green pants, turtle-neck sweater, and no shirt, I actually gotta comb my hair, shave every day, and get my suit pressed."

"I'm so ashamed, I sneak home by back alleys every day. If any of my friends saw me, I'd die of mortification. Why, I had a reputation as the sloppiest guy on the campus. And now, look at me—a sartorial pansy!"
