

All freshman coeds to live in Uni dorms

Board of regents adopt measure providing first year residence in halls

The University board of regents meeting over the weekend in Omaha, adopted a resolution requiring all freshmen women to live in the University residence halls. This measure becomes effective Sept. 1, 1941.

This regulation, according to Chancellor Boucher, will require all freshmen women to live in a dormitory for an entire academic year. The ruling does not apply to students who reside at home, and other exceptions deemed necessary will be granted by the office of the Dean of Women, according to the regents' action.

Pass resolutions of appreciation.

The board also passed resolutions expressing appreciation of the services of Dr. Arthur G. Stokes and former regent George N. Seymour, recently deceased.

Dr. C. W. M. Poynter, dean of the College of Medicine and superintendent of the University hospital, reported to the board on the state of the institutions under his direction.

Chancellor Boucher spoke on the relation of medical education to the rest of the University.

Hendricks' articles on Curie work appear

With the appearance of Mile. Eve Curie in Lincoln last week, recent articles by Dr. B. Clifford Hendricks of the department of chemistry on the famous Curie-Joliet families are of special interest.

Students favor centralized interfactional rally plan

Today the campus faces a fight over a fight. The Student Council demands that interfactional rock bombardments, egg throws, turf-tearing, and displays of personal pugilistic achievements be eliminated and that one big interfactional rally, sponsored by University authorities, be established.

The Interfraternity Council has decried the Student Council's proposal. The factions feel there is no color, no tradition nor spirit to a large rally involving all factions. The Interfraternity Council voted the Student Council's measure down. However, final jurisdiction lies in the hands of the Student Council.

The proposed substitution has met with the tacit approval of the dean's office which has long denounced the childishness of the "hit-em-again" independent rallies. Yet the factions, and the members thereof, deny, with right, that such subversive activities are scheduled in their rally plans. Now no candidates are presented, silky tongued faction leaders harangue the organized houses with statements regarding two o'clock nights, "two chickens in every pot and we provide the pot" tactics.

Under the proposed system all candidates would be individually introduced, and one representative of each faction would do all the speaking for his group.

Eventually the answer is to be found in student preference, in the ability of the factions to control their members, and in peace between these two organs of student government, the Student Council and the Interfraternity Council.

The students think:

It is my opinion that faction rallies should be abolished entirely. The rallies add nothing to the po-

Editorially Speaking We Ask Your Support and Here Is Why--

Today the DAILY NEBRASKAN asks for a thoughtful, unbiased expression of opinion from the student body on the question of Prom Committee elections. The DAILY already has an opinion on that question, but it recognizes the fact that it is "supposed" to represent the entire student body and not merely the views of its editors. It recognizes that if the student body does not support a measure, there is no excuse for the DAILY to campaign further for it. Therefore today we are seeking an expression from you to support or refute our belief that the election of Prom Committee members rightfully belongs to you, the student body, by direct ballot rather than to the Student Council whose vote at best can only indirectly represent you. We are asking for your opinion in the only way we know—by placing a ballot on the question in the hands of all voters in today's election.

Anyone who will look at the question fairly must realize that it would benefit everyone concerned to put election of Prom Committees up to a general student vote.

SORORITIES: No longer would you have to toady to fraternity faction leaders in order to elect your candidates. You could be independent in fact as well as in fancy and elect your candidates on a basis of their qualifications rather than being forced to stoop to the degrading practice of vote-swapping.

BARBS: You could win representation on the Prom Committee in proportion to your strength at the polls, impossible under the present system.

PROGRESSIVES: You cannot be sure of retaining your majority on the Council after the next spring election, so that a change in the election of next year's Prom Committee would not necessarily hurt you. Inasmuch as the same student body will vote for Prom Committee as votes for Student Council, you would have quite as much chance to place a majority of your candidates on the committee as on the Council. And any year when you did not win a majority on the Council (and there have been years like that), you would stand to profit by a general Prom vote quite as much as anyone.

Ineligibility bugaboo rules out two candidates; student body to vote on Prom Committee issue

The ineligibility bugaboo yesterday ruled out two candidates for Prom Girl, to be elected at a general campus election today. Students will also indicate whether they desire to have the Prom Committee elected by the student body as a whole, or by the Student Council.

The Prom Committee question is stated: "Do you favor direct election of the Junior-Senior Prom Committee by the student body?"

Four coeds vie for honor.

Betty Groth, Alpha Phi, and Woodie Campbell, Phi Mu, were declared ineligible yesterday to participate in the Prom Girl election, leaving only four girls in the running of eight who filed for the honor. Names of Ruth Yourd, Alpha Omicron Pi, Dorothy Swisher, Kappa Alpha Theta, Laura Ellen Finney, Towne Club, and Yvonne Costello, Chi Omega, will appear on the ballot.

The polls will be open from 9 until 5 in the Student Union basement, and in Ag activities building on Ag campus. Student Council members will supervise the election, and faculty members will be present at the polling place.

Vote is not final.

Vote on the manner of Prom Committee election will not be final but will give the Council student opinion on the subject for further legislation.

Presentation of the Prom Girl will be made at 10 at the Prom, and her identity will be kept secret until then. The winning plan of presentation will not be announced before the Prom.

LeRossignol speaks twice to Iowa students

Dr. J. E. LeRossignol, dean of the college of business administration, gave two addresses before University of Iowa students last week. Wednesday evening he addressed the Commerce Club on the subject of avocations, and Thursday spoke before the class in banking on "Is Capitalism Breaking Down?"

Kosmet trials held tonight

Klub to pick 17 men for annual burlesque

Tryouts tonight and tomorrow at 7:30 in the Temple will find 17 male and female cast positions in Kosmet Klub's "Ski Stealers," a three act music-comedy slated for presentation on the Temple stage April 8 to 13.

Headed by Egor the "egotistical," pompous ruler of the state of Russ and President Helsinki, his counterpart who rules over the weak but clever Fannies, dwellers in the oppressed state of Fanland, the cast consists of four female and thirteen male roles, all of which the Author Bob Leadley declares are major parts.

Characterization, Leadley continued is particularly important in this year's performance, explaining that each role was written with a particular character in mind.

Even the minor roles of cook and butler are parts which take careful acting, the success of (See KOSMET KLUB, Page 4.)

People who step in political puddle get in big muddle

By Elizabeth Clark.

The Prom approaches on winged feet, and the Prom Committee follows slowly in its wake through a morass of tangled opinion, conflicting statements, and indecision.

After verbal fireworks and general indignation, the Student Council finally elected one day early last December eleven members to plan the big annual event of the year. And so the poor members of committee had only three months to plan the event of the year, to secure an orchestra, and to make plans for election and presentation of the Prom Girl.

"Joe Venuti and his orchestra will play for the Prom," the committee announced last Saturday, and all over the campus bewildered students looked up and said, "But who is Joe Venuti?" One bright boy announced that Joe Venuti had the "biggest littlest known band ever to hit Nebraska."

How to elect Prom Girl.

Then came the dispute about where and how the Prom Girl was to be elected. Committee members made conflicting statements. "It will be at the door," said one. "It will positively be a general campus election," said another. Committeemen Dwight Burney and Mary Kline put their heads together Tuesday and decided in favor of the former.

On Wednesday, Marian Bradstreet and Brandon Backlund in Council meeting announced that it definitely would be a general election.

Ed Segrist, just fifteen minutes before Council meeting was over, announced the Prom Girl would be elected at the door. So the Council straddled the fence, as usual, and announced that the election, IF it were held, would be held today, and that Council members would supervise the polls.

They agree to agree.

Finally after much telephoning and conferring, the committee agreed to agree, and announced a general election for today.

Saturday, after the filings were (See MUDDLE, Page 2.)
