Livestock team arrives in Fort Worth today for intercollegiate test

The ag college junior judging team arrives in Fort Worth, Texas this morning for the Collegiate Livestock Judging contest held as part of the Fort Worth fat show and exposition. Members of the team are Arch Trimble, Marvin Kruse, Oscar Tegtmeier, John Beckwith, and Mylan Ross. They are accompanied by Prof. M. A. Alexander of the animal husban-dry department. Sixteen schools are entered in the competition.

The exposition includes a cattle showing with Shorthorn and Hereford classes numbering about 130 to the class, a rodeo, a light horse show, and contests for grade school students. The Fort Worth show is the biggest stock show in the southwest, and the contest is the second largest of its kind in the United States.

The Friday practice will be on mules especially, and the team will visit the Fort Worth stock "Rate Regulation as a Means of yards and mule market, which is one of the largest in the United Government Subsidy Police and States. The judging contest starts at 8 Saturday morning and will last until 10 that night. Results of the contest will be announced at the banquet there Sunday noon.

Last year there were 14 teams in the contest and Nebraska placed fourth. However, the team last year brought back a silver trophy cup for winning highest honors in the hog judging division. The cup must be won three times for permanent possession.

Radio program features NU faculty members

E. H. Hoppert, horticulturist, and Walter Tolman, livestock man will appear on the weekly Farm Facts and Fun radio program Saturday afternoon over a statewide network.

Hoppert is to present the latest information on early garden vegetable varieties and also planting recommendations. He will lay particular emphasis upon farm gardens and the possibilities of producing vegetables in 1940.

Tolman will tell how some farmers in Nebraska produce early lambs for the Easter market. He

Two win in dress contest

Claybaugh, Schricker take first, second

Helen Claybaugh, junior, and Mary Schricker, senior, won first and second places in the state-wide contest in dress design and construction sponsored by the Good Housekeeping association here last week.

Miss Claybaugh won first in junior dresses and Miss Schricker received second place with a "Mrs." dress was dark blue wool with a spring jacket and a lingerie blouse. The winning junior garment was yellow-green rabbit's hair wool. The dresses were judged on the basis of originality and suitability of material to design and workmanship.

Newcomers fete members of old publication staff

Members of the new staff of the "Cornhusker Countryman" will honor members of the old staff tonight when they give a party for the oldtimers at Alpha Gamma Rho house.

The tradition of the new staff giving a party in honor of the old staff began last spring. Members

Committee members in charge of the party are Wendell Thacker, the new editor; Leo Cooksley, new managing editor; and co-chairman Sylvia Zocholl, home ec editor and Mary Bell Haumont, new circulation manager. The chaperones will be Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Prescott and Mrs. Eunice Wiebusch.

Dairy group holdsmeeting

Board votes to award money for 4-H expenses

Federation of all Nebraska dairy groups into an organization qualified to speak for all the state's dairying interests was advocated by directors of the Nebraska State Dairymen's association, meeting on the campus Wednesday.

The dairymen's board voted to again award $25 toward the expense of 4-H judging and demonstration teams to represent Nebraska at the National Dairy show. Fifty dollars were again set aside to assist in meeting the maximum apportionment for in-dividual dairy animals in the regular 4-H classification at the Nebraska State fair, if the $600 allotment has not been needed in
