Question is: How to cut all classes, still stay in school

By Agnes Wanek.

There seems to be only one problem confronting the campus now and that seems to be how to stay in school and still cut every class every week. Anyone who has any ideas about solving the problem may win the potted poinsettia that certain prominent campusites are offering for the winning answer.

This spring weather (keep your fingers crossed because it may snow tomorrow) has everyone in a dither and in the mood for picnics.

FIRST EXODUS

In celebration of the weather was effected by the Sig Alphas, chief exponents of the old axiom that "a picnic every day will keep the blues away!" At three o'clock yesterday afternoon, twenty-one of the brothers wended their merry way to South Bend and ended up at a summer resort home on the Blue river.

It may be that it should have been called a Delta Gamma-Sig Alpha picnic because the one Kappa, Tri Delt, Theta Alpha Phi, and Pi Phi really counted for very little in competition with the many DG's who were present. They included Betty Reese, Betty Schroeder, Louise Malmberg, Marge Krause, and Pat Reitz (who no longer has John Guthrie's pin).

INTERESTED

In keeping this out of the paper are Beta Harold Howell and Pi Phi Nadyne Beveridge who've finally managed to make up. The reconciliation was effected over the Easter vacation, but things are not as serious as they were before the breakup.

CONGRATULATIONS

to the initiates of Kappa Alpha Theta, Delta Upsilon, Kappa Sigma, and Phi Gamma Delta. The Phi Gams had their usual big celebration in Omaha at the Blackstone Hotel. The DU's initiation banquet was held in Lincoln.

LAST NIGHT

the SAE's held their Founder's Day banquet at the Hotel Cornhusker. Principal speaker was Dr. Charles E. Friley, president of Iowa State college at Ames. Other speakers included Tom Schaffer, Dr. Paul Ludwick, Ellsworth Du-Teau, and Rex Smith. Initiation was held preceding the banquet.

SMOOTH SAILING

doesn't seem to be the rule in the affair between Lois Friedebach, Theta, and Bill Fox, Phi Delt, according to her sorority sisters. At any rate, they haven't been seen together quite as much as they were in the pre-vacation era.

CELEBRATING

at the Towne Club party at the Cornhusker Friday night were Betty Ann Duff and Bill Aeschbacher, Jean Wochner and Lester Ringenburg, Dorothy Filley and Kent Vifquin, Laurel Morrison and Robert Loebs.

And you probably ought to know that the reason Towne Club's Lois Hammond is wearing an extra special smile is that she has just received a ring from Will Reedy.

'Bargain' drama and dance make ag double feature night

Ag campus held an unusual double feature last night in Activities building when the ag dramatic club sponsored a three-act drama entitled "Bargain" followed by a dance with Billy Keister's music. Over two hundred students and visitors attended.

The three-act play by Tom Kronk lasted little more than an hour and was a departure from the tradition of the dramatic society to present three one-act plays instead of one full length one. Because the club is a non-profit organization, the admission receipts will be used only for expenses.

The usual triangle.

"Bargain" combined several common themes such as a middle-aged widower marrying his secretary, spoiled and headstrong children taking offense at their father's second marriage, and the young wife's lover turning up at the psychological moment to complete a triangle.

Dale Theobald played the part of the father, Henry Adams. Genevieve Wild portrayed his secretary-wife. His two grown children were Elsie Tomich and Orville Indra. Kenneth Bain was cast in the part of the young wife's lover and Lenore Alma, Hildred Godtel, Irene Jensen, and Bob Rupp had supporting roles.

Christine Hoffbauer was the student director, Eddie Klostermeyer served as stage manager, Hazel Sautter was pianist.
