Dies agents pin four profs as communists

Investigators claim Le Rossignol, Swayzee, Gregory, Werkmeister, head ring of 30 teachers

By Chris Petersen.

Investigations by Dies Committee Investigators L. E. Wilson and Edward Molina, conducted in secrecy, during the past month has revealed today what they call "a clique formed among the leading professors for the purpose of furthering communistic doctrines among students on this campus."

The charges were made official Saturday night in a complete report to Chairman Dies on the activities of the professors during the past two years. Those men who are implicated include Dean R. E. LeRossignol, dean of the college of business administration; Prof. C. O. Swayzee, instructor in labor relations and personnel management; W. S. Gregory, instructor in psychology and special advisor to freshmen, and W. H. Werkmeister, instructor in philosophy.

In a special interview with a DAILY reporter, Investigator Wilson declared that these men were the "ring leaders" of the organization on this campus. He said that their investigations revealed that there are about thirty professors and instructors on the Daily to install new morgue in Union basement

At an approximate cost of $562.78, a new morgue for the DAILY Nebraskan will be installed this afternoon in the Union basement, built at the instigation of Gayle C. Walker, chairman of the publications board.

One-half column cuts of all university students except Phi Beta Kappas will be made from photos to be taken at the campus studio beginning Wednesday, and to be (See MORGUE, page 4.)

Business manager announces... Radical changes in Daily staff policies, conveniences... effective tomorrow

New policies and changes, according to Arthur Hill, business manager, which will be effective in the DAILY NEBRASKAN from tomorrow until nobody knows when are listed below. These changes have been made after considering the March financial report of the paper.

Teletypewriters of the major press associations have been installed in the news room to bring latest stories and bulletins to DAILY readers.

A paper of no less than 16 pages will be published. Each page is to be a front page to enable the DAILY staff to place every story on the first page for which there is a request to do so.

campus implicated. Their names were not revealed.

The report carried specific accounts of the four men's activities in the classroom and privately. It revealed that each of the four prominent professors were in "key positions" to guide the activities of other members of the clique and at the same time spread communistic beliefs where they would do the most good.

Dean LeRossignol was described as being "connected with the com- (See COMMUNISM, page 2.)

Pharmacy tomcat dies of old age! Do you have one?

If there was a flag on the Pharmacy building it would be flying at half-mast today, for Calico, well-known tomcat and father of many experimental cats, died last night of old age. Calico had been in the Pharmacy laboratories for five years, and had given rise to many generations of martyrs who were killed in the interest of science.

In an effort to save money the Pharmacy college had been breeding their own cats in many instances and Calico was the chief male to be used. Now that he is gone laboratory assistants are at a loss as to where to locate another.

Despite chorus strike Klub to stage first world premier

Celebrities will attend 'Ski Stealers'

Studios give permission for stars to come here; Fidler will cover event

Spotlights! Celebrities! Excitement! Autographs! are on the way for the World Premier of the Kosmet Klub's "Ski Stealers," April 8.

After long negotiations with Hollywood studios, the Kosmet Klub has succeeded in getting such famous cinematic celebrities as Greta Garbo, Gypsy Rose Lee, Clark Gable, Charlie McCarthy, Mortimer Snerd, Vivien Leigh and others here for opening night of "Ski Stealers." Jimmie Fidler, ace Hollywood columnist, will cover the event for his newspaper and radio audience.

Prominent alumnus makes dream reality

Daily efforts in conjunction with alumni office brings $305,000 towards new structure

The long-hoped-for library will be a reality next year.

Word was received this morning from C. Y. Thompson, president of the board of regents, that a prominent university alumnus whose name was not revealed had made a gift of $305,000 for the purpose of building a library.

According to L. E. Gunderson, university finance secretary, the amount is not sufficient to complete a building. However, he indicated that the remainder of the money, $258,000, would be raised from other university funds and through bonds.

From present plans, work on the new building will begin about the 1st of July. The building will be situated at the north end of 13th street between social sciences and Ellen Smith hall. Both the men's and women's infirmaries will be torn down. Their new location was not indicated in the plans.

Contracts for the different units of construction such as excavation, plumbing, building, furnishings, etc., will be closed in May.

A DAILY project.

Long agitated for on this campus by both student organizations and university officials it is a dream come true. One of the foremost leaders in the fight for the new library was the DAILY. It has long cried for new library facilities in its editorial columns. It was the DAILY'S work, in conjunction with the Alumni office which brought on the donation from the alum.

A new library is the most essential need on the university campus today. Surveys and inspections by the DAILY have shown its readers the cracked and weakened supports, the books heaped on damp floors in the basement of the library and the poor lighting facilities. It was through these reports to the alum, drawn up from university officials' and the DAILY'S statistics, that the donation was given specifically for the purpose of building a new library.

One of the finest.

The new $563,000 structure will be one of the finest in the country. In size, it will be surpassed only by libraries at Harvard, Yale and the University of Southern California.

Architects will have complete plans drawn up and ready for the bidders by the middle of April. At that time, the DAILY will publish a complete set of the plans, showing both the outside structure and the floor plans along with statistics as to the number of books that it will hold and the facilities that it will afford students.

The donor refused to have his name known saying that the students of the university should not be interested in who gives the money so long as they were going to have their new library. His only statement was "I saw an immediate need and realized that my money could do a great deal more if I put it into the library. Its value will never be lost in that manner."

Dancers balk at expert strip-teaser

Compromise relieves sit-down by men who feel integrity hurt

The pony chorus of the Kosmet Klub's latest production went on strike Sunday because of the reported invasion of a professional strip-teaser into the opening night performance. The chorus and RAG—APRIL FOOL Producer-Director Armand Hunter negotiated and conferred for 29 and one-half hours before a compromise was finally reached. (See STRIKE, page 4.)

Union board makes $1000 appropriation for installation of beer bar in Corn Crib

The Union board yesterday appropriated $1,000 for the installation of a beer bar in the Union's Corn Crib, after weeks of deliberation with university officials and local pastors.

The deciding argument was stated by a local dry leader, who said: "Students will drink. It is far better to let them drink in the Union instead of chasing them to roadhouses where they might become entangled with the wrong kind of people. Also, there is no need for them to drive cars when they can spend a "beerfully" good time right on the campus. This would relieve the traffic situation."

Sanctioned by Regents.

After the appropriation was sanctioned by the Board of Regents, Kenneth Van Sant, director of the Union, said: "There are obvious advantages in having a Student Union bar. The profit will relieve students from paying the $3.00 fee. Law students could practice passing the bar; the gymnasts, crawling over it. Likely the traffic would be less heavy going north on 14th street also."

It was decided that "coke" would still be served but ice cream and the shakers would be re-

It Can't Happen Here

Regular readers of the DAILY may experience some shock when they start looking over today's issue. However, the explanation lies in the date-line—April 1. In this special April Fool edition members of the DAILY staff have cast aside the bonds of routine reality and let the chips from their imaginations fall where they may. Some stories represent wishful thinking, some burlesque true conditions, some obviously aim only to be ridiculous. Some of the events described possibly may come to pass in the future—although probably not exactly as related here. Most of them will not and could not happen. All of them are alike in that they are presented in the spirit of fun. We only hope that you may be half as amused in reading this issue as we are in putting it out. If you are not, then just bear with us while the DAILY takes its annual one-issue spree. Spring and stuff, you know. —Ed.
