

By June Bierbower.

Snatchings from the gridiron: An unidentified Husker Wednesday afternoon varied the usual pepping-up line which footballers use to spur their mates on to greater things. Instead of saying the usual, "Get in there and fight, you.... (censored)", a member of one of the defensive teams came thru with, "All right, converge, you stooges!"

At Iowa U., Bob Wilson, a colored boy, whom they've nicknamed "Yeah Man," came up from a defensive right half position in a recent workout, to smear the ball carrier at the line of scrimmage.

Coach Eddie Anderson said: "That was a good tackle. But how in the world did you manage to get up there so quick?" "Ah's a fast man, Coach," Walker replied.

Then there's the time Elmer Hubka, former Husker football man, got to wear the famed brown derby in law college for a week, after this incident:

"Suppose," said the professor, "a man courts a girl and becomes engaged to her. At the same time he seeks the hand of another girl and they become betrothed. Now if this man goes ahead with his plans to marry the first girl and on the day of the wedding turns up at the church to find the second girl and her attorney there also, what kind of defense could he plead if brought to trial for the apparent misunderstanding?"

Hubka's answer, which got him the derby, was "Well, I think it would be a good case of double jeopardy."

Around the conference: Norris Holstrom, Kansas State basketball guard, is suffering from high blood pressure.... he is unable to report for spring drills and will not be permitted to play next year unless his condition improves.... tackle Harold Lahar is one of Oklahoma's golf team members, and a good one, too. Jack Horacek, K-State's sophomore basketball star, is a member of the Wildcats' tennis team.... Iowa State's starting baseball lineup will include four sophomores against the Iowa State Teachers this weekend.... Bob Allen of KU is debating whether to play varsity or intramural baseball.

Maurice Tillet, or The Angel, recently put on a leather harness and hauled a 300,000 pound locomotive 25 feet along the tracks. All right, you strong men, who's next?

thick, wet mud. Face first, too. See 'im throw his hands above his head just before he fell? Givin' thanks tu God fer sumethin'. What?

"Johnny, look out! Johnny, boy, what's the matter? Yer face is all blood, lad, and yer eyes are gettin' all glassy. Does it hurt, boy? It won't fer long. That bullet went right through yer forehead, Johnny, and out the back o' yer head. Can't understand why yu ain't dead, Johnny. Wish yu were? I'll bet yu do. Well, Johnny, looks like we're partin' here. Wuz good tu see yu again. Tell yer Ma hello fer me. Remember that yu gotta lead a peaceful life up there, Johnny."

Sigma Nu, SAM in handball finals

Sigma Nu and Sigma Alpha Mu went into the intramural handball finals yesterday, as the ATO's bowed to the Sigma Nu's, 3-1, and the SAM's blanked the Kappa Sigs 4-0.

The two teams will play for the championship Saturday afternoon, while the Kappa Sigs and ATO's will meet each other for third place.

Hunt, Grote, Wibbels among leading contenders at KU

LAWRENCE, Kas., April 11.—One of the finest fields in the history of the Kansas Relays will compete in the individual events at the 18th annual running of the meet, April 20.

Relay races comprise a large part of the program at the big track and field carnival, but eight individual events occupy a prominent place in the meet.

In three of those eight events, the men who will compete at the Relays have made marks better than the meet records. They are Elmer Hackney of Kansas State in the shot put, Don Boydston of Oklahoma A. & M. in the high jump and Ed Wibbels of Nebraska in the discus throw.

In addition, Beefus Bryan of Texas' mark in the pole vault is the Relays record which he established here last year. Men in the other four events have almost as remarkable records.

The three best marks in each event by the men who will compete at the Kansas Relays are as follows:

|------------------------------|------------|
| 100 Yard Dash. | |
| Piker, Northwestern | 9.5 |

Student essay contest opens

First prize $1200 cash, trip to Orient in plane

Announcement of an essay contest on "Our Stake in the Future of China" was made by Dean Oldfather today. The contest is open to all students in the U. S. and offers cash prizes totaling five thousand dollars. Emphasizing the interest of the United States to have a strong, free independent China, the contest should revive interest in the Far East.

Considering the interest the U. S. holds for the largest country in the Orient, the essay should be comparatively easy to assemble material on, said Oldfather. The essay will be judged on the arguments, skill in evaluating them, discrimination shown in indicating their significance, and pleasing style.

Closes on the 30th.

Closing June 30, the essays should contain not more than 1,500 words and should be typewritten. Copies of the rules and regulations are available in the office of Dean Oldfather, SS112. A bibliography of suggested reading material is given in the copy of rules.

Judges of the contest include such famous names as Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, Director American Museum of Natural History; Pearl Buck, author; Theodore Roosevelt, Lowell Thomas, Alexander Woolcott and others.

First prize of $1,200 in cash and a round trip to the Orient via "Clipper" if conditions for travel are favorable is offered. Thirty-two other cash prizes will be given.

Seemann to play with Green Bay team

George Seemann, Husker end, signed a 1-year contract to play football with the Green Bay Packers, national professional football league champions last weekend.

Seemann, star defensive end for Nebraska, underwent a knee operation this winter, and went to Chicago where he signed with the Packers.

Weather plays hob with spring sports workouts

Indoor practice still holds sway for the tennis team in the coliseum as the cold weather continues. Thursday, the double elimination tournament for the number three and four position was narrowed down to five candidates.

In the upper bracket, Johnny Huston and Don Schulz are paired against each other, while Charley Eberline will meet the winner of the Dick Smith-Chuck McNurlin match for the semi-finalist victor in the lower bracket.

Freshman netters showing promise are Bob Hulbert of Lincoln, Wayne Kellogg and Keith Howard of Omaha, and Dick Herman, who attended Washington university last year and has to have a year of Nebraska residence because of the transfer.

Baseballers inside

With the advent of cold weather, Coach Wilbur Knight played teacher Thursday afternoon, as he had a regular chalk talk for his ball nine. After the skull session, Knight had games of "pepper" warming up of the pitchers in the basement of the coliseum.

Friday afternoon, Knight plans to pit the players who are vieing for open team positions as a group against certain pitchers to see which prove to be the strongest hitters facing different pitchers. The test will also work in the same manner for the pitchers in judging their ability to pitch to certain batters. Saturday, a regular game between the varsity and the freshmen is scheduled, the weather permitting.

Frosh meet cancelled

Coach Ed Weir cancelled the scheduled freshman track meet for Thursday afternoon due to the cold weather, exams, frosh out for football, and the footballers working out on the indoor track.

However, Weir has slated the frosh meet to be held on either Tuesday or Thursday of next week. Weir, along with Bill Smutz, hurdler and Red Littler, sprinter,

Five men win all-uni titles in wrestling

McNutt, Anderson take outstanding bouts of afternoon

University wrestling champions were crowned in five divisions last night, as two finals matches furnished some of the best grappling ever seen in the annual meet.

Roger Anderson took the 145 pound title as he eked out a 14-12 decision on points from Ernie Lauver in one of the matches, and freshman football star Bob McNutt of Colby, Kas., won the other outstanding clash as he gained a 16-11 victory over Herb Jackson in the heavyweight finals.

Roy Shaw of Omaha pinned Dale Hunt in 2:03 with a body scissors and double arm lock to win the 136 pound title, while Ken Husemoller pinned ag college man Prestegaard in 5:51 with a half nelson-reverse arm for the 155 pound crown.

King wins 165 pound title. Another finals bout was in the 165 pound class where Floyd Ring nipped ag champion Foster Smith on points, 12-9.

Three championships will be decided this afternoon as L. Rickey and Borg wrestle for the 121 pound title, and Marvin Brogen and Donn Curtright go for the 128 pound championship.

Bob Cooper, freshman griddler, and Bill Klester are paired in the 175 pound finals.

Other results: 155 pounds: Prestegaard decided Buchholz; Husemoller pinned Crawford in 4:22 with a cradle lock.

Heavyweight: Jackman pinned Rumbolz in 4:51 using half nelson-body lock; Ferguson pinned Liedtke in :27; McNutt pinned Ferguson in 1:33.

are tentatively scheduled to go to Columbus today where Smutz and Littler are to give exhibitions, provided the weather permits, at a high school meet in Columbus.

Gridders stay in

The football team worked under the stadium after yesterday's scrimmage. Another game is scheduled Saturday.
