Military shift puts reserve men on staff

ROTC office announces 13 instructors to fill positions in three units

New appointments to the military science department announced by the office of the ROTC follow the transferring of several of the regular army officers from university training positions to assignments in the army.

This shifting of army officers to army training camps is in co-ordination with national defense and conscription plans. Many of the new officers who are to teach military science are reserve officers called to duty in the present emergency.

The new officers are as follows: Field artillery: Lieut. Colonel Wm. Mirchener; and reserve officers Major Walter Garner, and Captain Whiting. Engineering: Major R. E. Cruse, C. E.; and reserve officers First Lieut. Edw. Richardson and First Lieut. R. E. Johnson. Infantry: Colonel Thuis, professor of military science, Lieut. Colonel O'Donoghue, Lieut. Colonel John U. Ayotte; and reserve officers Captain Chatfield, Captain Matschullat, First Lieut. Chase, and First Lieut. Crabill.
