Well worth your time and money

Red skirted Tassels this morning open the annual sale of University Theater tickets. Formerly the University Players, the Theater deserves all the support it can get.

One of the most arduous tasks an activity man or woman can take on is membership in this dramatic group. Every year there are jeers and hoots thrown at this student group. Those who throw them are usually ill mannered and representative of an unusually discourteous critical that some students take. The Theater has never claimed to possess Broadway talent, it never expects to stage plays worthy of comparison with professional performances.

No one working in the University Theater, except the faculty advisors and sponsors receives any pay. Until this year, membership in the group counted nothing in either men's or women's activities. The Student Council is slated to hear argument upon this point and we shall see what action it takes. Certainly the only logical move would be to recognize this activity as one well deserving equal rank with most other student activities.

The Theater belongs to the students, and the only support it receives is from those students. Life here in the university is made just a little more pleasant because the Theater operates. Again, it deserves all the support it can get.

130 organize Church of Youth at Westminster

One hundred and thirty students signed the charter of the new Church of Youth organized at Westminster Presbyterian church at its Charter Day services Sunday night. Kenneth Longman, senior in bizad, is moderator.

The youth church has its own board of elders, board of deacons, board of trustees, board of deaconesses and board of ushers. Official clerk is Betty Gene Lang, sophomore in teachers college.

Each board has specific duties in directing the activities of the church, which, when the fall program is formally inaugurated Oct. 6, will include a Sunday evening fellowship supper, worship service, and discussion groups. The church has its own Chapel choir, under the direction of Minister of Music D. D. Ketting; maintains its own budget and social activities.

Members of the Church of Youth will meet again Sunday, Sept. 29, at 6:30 p. m. for worship service and recreation.

Mike Howard, University of Iowa's wrestling coach, was once national A. A. U. heavyweight champion for five consecutive years.

LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD.

Our bedtime tale which you will undoubtedly read at breakfast today is written in the famous style of Time magazine.

Waddled sometime last week, through the rocco door of No. 114 Suxxes. St., confused, buxom Bertha Paisley Hickingbotham, beloved gay babe of London cafe life, where she is titled "Little Red Riding Hood." Reason for her visit; ostensibly to bring her grandmother, aging, toothless, Lady Edoise Scaw, tasty goodies in the form of cakes and cookies. Official Russian communique discount this, say that under the lid, and hidden in the wicker panier, Red bore, not cookies, but cannons, of the Johezyec type, jewel of the Russ artillery, smuggled by Droshinsky out of Muscova a fortnight ago.

"Little Red," no sylph she, had brought the guns to London, where Grandmother Scaw, one of his Majesty's suaver spies would have found them tasty goodies indeed. Foiled was Hood, however, for at Suxxes St., address was no suave, toothless, and grateful Grandmama, but tall, snaggle-toothed Comrade Wolf of the OGPU. Agent Wolf demanded return of the swiped arms and, sparring for time, Hood made talk with him about his features. No aid arrived, however, and at 4:30 p. m., Greenwich time, death came, as it must to all, to Bertha Paisley Hickingbotham, belle and debutante of London's current season. Eaten was Bertha apparently by OGPU's Wolf—"an honourable and worthwhile demise" reported the staid, stodgy, archpatriot London Times.

Aftermath of the incident was the lodging, with characteristic Anglician celerity, of a complaint against the Russians charging "wanton devouring of an unarmed debutante." Moscow, report reliable sources, will countercharge "Malnutrition of spies" and hold Britain responsible for the death last Tuesday of Agent Wolf. Cause: Congestitus Guttum.
