"Only free men can carry on a democracy, and men who do not have economic security and power are not free. Neither are those free who are not educated to the limit of their abilities, or whose education has been purposely made narrow or one-sided, or, worst of all, who have been deliberately taught that which is not true. That sort of thing is conditioning, which is only a part of the process of education, and it may serve well enough for a totalitarian state governed by a 'leader' for his own megalomaniac ends. A democracy must forever guard against letting itself be strangled by leaders with few or limited ideals." Dr. Louis C. Jordy, professor of chemistry in Brothers college of liberal arts, Drew University, warns that each generation must not fail to pass on to the succeeding generation the hard-won fruits of its experience.

"All this super-organization which has developed in the past few years is bound to collapse soon or later under its own weight. I can't see any advantage in having all these leagues, one for every sport. What it amounts to is that instead of our arranging our own schedule as we see fit we are told by the central office in New York whom we will play and when. It takes the thing out of our hands and about all that we get out of it is some unnecessary, and usually undesirable, publicity." Dr. Clarence W. Mendell, Yale's new athletic boss, takes a powerful poke at the "league instinct" in college athletics.

From our exchanges--

We find that neighbor, Omaha University, through the medium of its weekly GATEWAY, is doing something about putting enthusiasm into its student cheering sections at football games.

Thirteen students, one from each sorority and fraternity on the campus, and two bars were appointed to a committee to "study the laxity of student support of campus activities."

Hope we don't run into this problem at Nebraska after the Indiana game this weekend.

Note that fraternities and sororities on the University of Washington at Seattle campus pledged more freshmen than ever before in the school's history. 529 men and 395 coeds took pins. Male Greeks now number 25 percent of campus men. Sigma Chi pledged 37 and Gamma Phi Beta 33 to lead. While Nebraska's figures decrease annually, the coast schools gain.

Maybe our Interfraternity Council should inquire and see how they work things out there.

Minnesota Daily's female feature writer, Dellabelle H. Pudge, (sounds like an alias) appears in the Viking Saturday paper along with three Husker footballers . . . Bob Kahler, Leonard Muskin, whose arm encircles her shoulder; and one grizzer whom we can't identify.

If any footballer happens to read this and thinks he may be the romantic one whose eyes are gazing into Dellabelle's, we have the picture in the DAILY office.

Note: In case the Huskers fail to win more than six games this year, perhaps Frederick Ware might use this picture as a bit of evidence to warrant using the old expression "Giggling Boys."

And in Iowa State's Daily Student, we find a story telling of the completion of "The Collegiate Press building, housing student publications and the printing plant." Besides the press building, a library storage building was erected; and plans for a women's gymnasium to be constructed starting Nov. 1 were completed.

Yessiree! There still is no place like Nebraska! Anyway, we'll take all bets on the Iowa State football game.

On The Side

What sounded like a menagerie inventory to outsiders was explained as just a college enrollment list by a "Daily Californian" reporter who explained that the one Beetle, seven Wolf's, and 15 Foxes listed were the names of students enrolled at the University of California.

In addition the enrollment list revealed that there were 12 Becks in and one Cail. There were 27 Kings as balanced against only five Queens. To everyone's relief it was revealed that there were only two cutters and three students who answer to the name of Wild. Other investigations disclose only one Moon, one Sun and eight Rays.

Because he has grown too big and because experts have proclaimed his cage as unsafe, Mike, the tiger mascot of Louisiana state university will not on the sidelines this year when the Louisianans take the field against their foes. The "Daily Reville" has initiated an editorial campaign to get back their mascot by way of a larger and stronger cage.

That everything is judged in degrees was borne out at Northwestern university recently where a professor told his class, "Copying from three books is reference. Copying from five books is reference."

Brilliant record. This achievement is added to an already brilliant record. Last year in Boy's State he rated number one in the scholarship exam. His high school record includes accomplishments in both athletics and scholarship.

In a special interview with 9 year old brother Bobby he was asked this question: Did you help your brother build this house? Responded Bob without a moment's hesitation: "Sure I did, I held the screws."

Huskers--

(Continued from page 1.) such as the Huskers did not have last week with the frosh team. From the Star Journal: "A tip off on which team was in the best condition--during the time outs in the second half, it was Nebraska lying on the field.

Kuklin starts dancing classes in Union today

Social dancing classes, open to all students free of charge, will open Tuesday evening at 7:30 in the Union ballroom, and will continue for a period of six weeks. Each of the six lessons will be repeated on Thursday evening for the benefit of those students who cannot attend the Tuesday classes. Irving Kuklin, professional dancing instructor, will teach the classes.

Another expert had more praise for the Huskers. This man was Bernie Bierman, "I think Nebraska is a tougher proposition by quite a little bit than Washington." It is well to remember that Washington is rated one of the strongest teams on the west coast and that Minnesota won by only one touchdown.

Huskers play clean.

And last but far from least comes the opinion of the players themselves. Those burly Gophers who won by the margin of a desperate pass in the fourth period. "The best gang of kids we have met. They hit hard but clean. Yes, they hit harder than Washington and had more drive."

And that, Cornhusker fans, is the best praise a Nebraska team could receive. They hit hard but clean. In other words there was an absence of dirty playing in that all important, hard-fought game with Minnesota last Saturday. Win, lose or draw, Nebraska has a reputation of clean playing and good sportsmanship that means ever so much more than being the winner. Remember--it is not whether you won or lost but how you played the game.
