

Not 'Remember the Maine,' but Columbia-Stanford in '33

By Shavenau Glick
(Daily Californian.)

Already the drums have started beating out the rhythm of Nebraska to stir up the football-minded of the Pacific Coast.

Each year at this time the newspaper boys begin to grind out their background about the Eastern team in Pasadena's Rose Bowl classic. This season Stanford has pulled its old trick of inviting some virtually unsung eleven as its opponent in the New Year's game. This makes the job a little tougher, but it can be done.

The formula this year will be much the same as back in 1933 when Stanford invited Columbia to the bowl after the Lions had been beaten badly. This year it's Nebraska with a 13-7 defeat at Minnesota's hands. Usually the old cry and hue about two undefeated, powerhouse teams sparked numerous All-Americans is all that is needed to create the spark that makes a million people clamor for the 94,000 tickets which fill the Bowl.

Can you do it?

Stop and think, could you name even a single member of the Nebraska team before they received the invitation this year? We'll wager in most cases—No! But already you've been hearing about Coach Biff Jones' "twin halfback," Herman Rohrig and Harry Hopp. You've read how the Nebraska team is "home grown" and how all the players work their way through the Cornhusker institution—how the team is composed of nearly all seniors, real Nebraska athletes and how they come to school to get an education. Then you learn that the Nebraskans are three deep in every position and will wear the poor little Indians to death.

That's a lot of dough.

And if you read on, you'll hear how school was closed at Nebraska and giant rallies were held when the bowl invitation was accepted. What school wouldn't declare a holiday for $120,000, the visitors' share from the Rose Bowl split?

Yes, you'll read all this, and more. By game time, anybody who can't rattle off the Nebraska starting lineup, with weights, ages and einch-notices of the team, won't be considered a true football fan.

Remember the Lions?

But perhaps all this will be a good thing for the game. For once again the Indians from Stanford have delved deep into the national rankings for their Rose Bowl rival. This annual propaganda wave will make those people who lobbied for Boston College forget that the Eagles haven't lost a game; it'll act as a tonic for those who stormed when the Indians overlooked Texas A. & M. merely because of a fluke defeat at Austin; and it will cover up the importance of the Sugar Bowl game which has two of the nation's four major undefeated, untied elevens.

But don't forget what happened when the Vol Boys laughed their way into the game with Columbia, only to have the New Yorkers walk off with a 7-0 victory.

Indirect build-up of Huskers after Sooners Santa Clara ball game

Although Oklahoma lost to the Santa Clara Broncos, 33-13 on Nov. 30, the playing of the Sooners out there on the west coast caused Californians to raise their eyebrows in wonderment.

The Sooners put on such a battle the first half of the game in San Francisco's Kezar stadium to tie the Broncos 13-13 that a writer in the San Francisco Chronicle wrote, "Oklahoma gave Santa Clara a manhandling the like of which no team of Buck Shaw's ever has received."

"At the end of that period the 7,000 fans who turned out for this intersectional, were wondering what kind of football was being played in the Big Six if this Oklahoma team could finish no better than second..."

Good for awhile.

"When the teams left the field at the half tied 13-13, it was obvious that a Santa Clara victory was only a matter of time. The Sooners were plenty tired and their reserves weren't equal to their first team which was very, very good while it lasted."

A San Francisco Call-Bulletin writer said, "Those giants of tackles and guards, who weighed over 210 pounds each—the four of 'em—apparently tired under their own size and weight...for after a great first quarter they seemed to be breaking apart with every play...The Broncos use the two-unit system. And fresh opposition and plenty of it may have been the answer to the Broncs big score over the visitors."

In other words, this is roundabout way of building up the Big Six and Nebraska; tearing down Stanford by de-emphasizing Santa Clara's showing. The Indians played the Broncos earlier in the

Nebraska swamps Marquette, 35-20, after slow first half

After a baseball-scoring first half, Nebraska's eagers came back after the intermission to blast the visiting Marquette five, 35-20, on the coliseum floor Saturday night.

As cold as the night the first half, the Huskers finally started rolling to pull away from a 7-5 halftime advantage. Pacing the Scarlet attack were Don Fitz and Sid Held, with 11 and 10 points, respectively.

Union plans Xmas party for Thursday

Vaudeville show, free food, caroling head entertainment schedule

As its Christmas gift to the students, the Union will hold its annual Christmas party next Thursday evening in the gaily decorated lounge and ballroom. The main event of the party will be the vaudeville show in the ballroom at 8 p. m. featuring Johnny Cox and his orchestra and student entertainment.

Following the show, the guests of the Union will join in Christmas caroling, and to complete an evening of pre-Christmas and pre-Rose Bowl celebration, free refreshments will be served to all.

Two huge beautifully decorated Christmas trees, sprays of evergreen and wreaths already bring a Yuletide atmosphere to the lounge and Pat Lahr, social chairman, promises more gala decorations and an even better party than last year.

season and escaped with a tight 7-6 decision.

The west coast writers who covered the Oklahoma game gave the Sooners full credit. Tom Stidham, Oklahoma's hefty football coach sighed with relief after reading those reports and perhaps Biff Jones, Nebraska's mentor, sighed once or twice deeply too.

The Hilltoppers had a 3-0 lead and the game was 6½ minutes old before the Huskers connected for a single point—that a free throw by Les Livingston.

Held and Livingston comprised the whole of the Husker scoring in the first half to give the Nebraska five its margin after the first 20 minutes of play.

Sophs shine.

Coming out for the last half, Fitz and Held along with fielders by Hartmann Goetze, Livingston, John Thompson, and Charlie Vacanti rolled up a lead that was never headed.

Held and Fitz shared the scoring honors while sophomores Thompson, Max Young, and John Fitzgibbon rounded out the former two to spark the quintet.

Bill Rogers, Jim Reavley, and Bob Von Bereghy all came up with four points apiece to pace the Blue and Gold while Bill Komonich starred in floor work. The summary:

Elsewhere on the sports page is a story dating from Berkeley, Calif., by a writer in the Daily Californian. He asks his readers to recall how back in 1933, Stanford went far down the list of national ranking teams and came up with Columbia.

The California writer seems to think that this may be the year for the underdog (Nebraska) to pull the same stunt the Nittany Lions pulled on the Indians when they upset the Cardinal appercart and came up with a 7-0 upset win over the men from Palo Alto. Could be.

It will sure be grand to watch the Nebraska band perform in the Tournament of Roses parade and in the Pasadena bowl on New Year's day. What an impression this 100-strong group will make on the California natives.

Heading the list of sports upsets of the year is the "fifth down" defeat of Cornell by Dartmouth in a poll conducted by some of the nation's leading sports editors. The rise of Stanford rated a tie for third while far down the list came the act of accepting the Rose Bowl bid by the Huskers after 12 years of opposition to post-season football games.
