While taking in the sights of Los Angeles over the holidays, this corner watched the Chicago Bears-Professional All Stars in action. The best team in the National league of professional football team played the pick of the "play-for-money" boys.

During the season's play, the Bears won the western division and the Washington Redskins won the eastern league of play. In the playoff for the championship, the Windy City lads rode over the injured Indians by an overwhelming score of 73-0.

FLAHERTY VS. HALAS.

Coach Ray Flaherty of the Redskins took over the bossing of the All Stars for the game and faced his old rival chieftan—George Halas of the Bears.

Again Halas got the best of Flaherty. The drubbing this time was not quite so bad as the play-off had been. The Bears won 28-14 after the game was tied at 14-all at halftime.

BURLY BOYS.

And do those big babies play ball. A fellow can be tackled, reclining on the ground and still get up and advance the ball. The play isn't stopped until the referee blows his whistle.

And, color, say, those burly boys weighing up to 285 pounds (Jack Torrance, blood-sweating behemoth, ex-Louisiana State tackle) have all the colors in the rainbow and manufacture a few extra hues in their own right.

HIPPER-DIPPER PLUS.

On one particular play, a Chicago back passed from deep in his own territory. The pass was blocked and the original thrower caught the ball on about his 10 yard line. Bottled up, he again let fly with a pass which was intercepted and returned by Don Looney, ex-Texas end of the All Stars, for a touchdown.

Charlie Brock, former Nebraska center, played center for the All Stars and replaced the great Mel Hein of the New York Giants who has been named the all-professional center for the past eight years.

GOOD OLD BERNIE.
Another Nebraskan to participate was Bernie Masterson, quarterback of the Sauer, Bauer era. Bernie played in the last quarter and directed the Bears to their final score.

Speaking of Masterson brings us to recall that it was he who instructed the Stanford backs in the intricacies of the "T" formation as employed by the Bears and now by Stanford. Bernie was just recently named the head backfield at U. C. L. A. for next fall.

Warren Alfson, Nebraska's All-American guard, may take a fling at old Hollywood!

The Wisner senior graduates at the end of this semester and has had an offer to take a screen test in front of the Paramount cameras by Casting Director Mickeljohn.

Alfson stayed over a few days in Los Angeles to confer with Paramount officials and will return to Hollywood for a test in February.

Alfson first gained attention after winning a 1939 Awgwan Beauty Contest for the Cornhusker football team.

How (and how not) to be a good date at a cage game

By Ned Eastlack

For men:

1. Don't be on time to get her if you possibly can.
2. Wear your hunting clothes including boots, sheepskin coat, fur cap, and over-size gloves.
3. Suggest sitting on the front seats where the players will be close.
4. Step on the seat where she is going to sit with your wet boots.
5. Tell her that you forgot your billfold so you don't think she will need any refreshments. She's supposed to be on a diet anyway.
6. Forget your cigarettes and smoke all of hers.
7. Suggest going to a dance after the game (you've told her to wear any old clothes).
8. After this has all happened call her up sometime within the next two months for another date. You'll get it, maybe!

For women:

1. Be at least 15 minutes late when he comes for you so the game will have already started by the time you get there.
2. Try and sit with some girl friends in the center section top row so you and your date can climb over everything to get up there.
3. Be sure and wear a snow-suit, hat, gloves and galoshes so you won't leave your date empty handed during the game.
4. Have him hold the snow-suit, hat, gloves, and galoshes that you brought along.
5. Forget your own cigarettes and smoke all of his.
6. Insist on eating enough apples, popcorn, and candy to get a stomach-ache before you go home.
7. If he still thinks you're human after all this, then tell him that you never spent such a disagreeable evening and don't wish to see him again.

splashing Sigma Alpha Epsilon, most impressive victory in out-the score was 22-0 in favor of the former. Alpha Tau Omega took a close one from Sigma Phi Epsilon by a 10-9 count.

Sigma Nu shut out Beta Theta Pi by a 5-0 score. Phi Gamma Delta and Acacia won from Farm House and Theta Xi respectively by defaults.
