It's a foul rumor...collitch convenes and the other folks can cheer for Miss Bishop...

That Porky Nuremberger's DU pin that Gamma Phi Louise Eppinger is carting around is just keen and indubitably true love, but what about the lass in Illinois that we are creditably informed Porky is still thinking a thought about. And then, too, Illinois plans on breezing into town in the future. Well?

Clifton Bloom, blossom of the Sigma Nu's, is having all sorts of difficulty. The lad has one of the most beautiful big cow-hand hats you've ever seen, a pale job with lots of class you understand, and the brothers are addicted to hiding it. Cliff just packs it away in a grip and locks the grip in his trunk now—keeping it nice so he can wear it to another Kappa formal.

Norman Hibbard, Sig Ep, is scarcely speaking to his little ChiO chum, Barbara Lee since that cagey little deal whereby she was in the shower when the phone rang for her and she sent Ruthie Brickell to chat—Hibbard was foxed and he can't recall what he said...

Definitely a queen seems to be Sig Chi Kenny Miller's opinion of Pi Phi Sayre Webster...and there's competition in the offing. Edsel Wibbels is no longer on the steady list if seeing the Sigma Kappa with other people is indicative...

Still exchanging a meal now an again are the Alpha Tau Omegas. Wednesday night will see a get together with the Tri Deltas.

Union sketchers to portray music as they hear it

To most of the students enrolled in the university a Beethoven sonata is only a piece of music. Some can recognize one by its melodies, but most of them would never know one if they came face to face with it.

That is, no one but some members of the Union sketch class which will go interpretative today at 4 p. m. in room 315 of the Union when it attempts to follow Walt Disney and put music into pictures.

The class, conducted by Mr. Thealtus Alberts of the art department, will listen to both popular and classical records and transfer them into ideas on paper. The class is open to everyone. Materials are provided by the Union.

which has reached the point of hysteria in New York, but is something, he says, midwesterners are comparatively undisturbed about.

"New Yorkers," he said, "are convinced that if England loses, there will be no more United States as a democracy. I was in the Ritz-Carleton hotel on New Year's eve, and when the band played 'Aud Lang Syne, at midnight, men kissed their wives, shook hands with their friends, but no one made a sound in what had been the gayest place in New York."

Hendricks, Oklahoma prof write article on examinations

"Better New Examinations from Old" is the title of an article by Dr. B. C. Hendricks of the chemistry department in the December number of the Journal of Chemical Education. The article, written in collaboration with Otto M. Smith of Oklahoma A. & M., was presented last April before the American Chemical Society in Cincinnati.

The paper is a fuller exposition of a previous paper, "New Examinations from Old" which appeared in the Journal in 1939. The examination plan has four points: 1) collecting from many institutions their best exam questions, 2) assembling them, 3) determining their difficulty, and 4) classifying them for use by teachers.

The article in the January issue gives the authors' answers to questions that have been raised since the plan was first presented.

directly effects the movie industry, taking about 40 percent of its market. He characterized the South American market as merely a soap bubble on the foreign market. Most of the pictures sent to South America are musicals and westerns, but no "A" pictures because the people can't understand them.

Speaking before a small but attentive convocation, using the lingo of a director on the set, Garnett traced the making of a motion picture from the adaptation of a book to a scenario to the final movie.
