

Greek cagers . . . Farm House, Delta Upsilon clash tonight . . . in frat final

Farm House and Delta Upsilon meet Wednesday night in the finals of the class A championship basketball game of the fraternity intramural leagues, Theta Xi and Phi Gamma Delta clash in the class B title match, while Alpha Tau Omega and Sigma Phi Epsilon battle for consolation prize in class A.

Other games to be played Wednesday night in the coliseum but have no bearing on the race are these postponed matches: Class B, ATOs vs. Phi Deltas, 7 p. m.; Sig Nus vs. ZBT, 7:20 p. m.

The class A final starts at 8:30

Husker grid call finds 68 men on hand

After a two month vacation following the Rose Bowl game, Husker footballers returned to spring practice under the east stadium Monday.

Sixty-eight gridiron contenders checked out uniforms, worked out lightly and took plays Monday and Tuesday. Missing from the workouts were players whose positions will take a lot of filling, stars like Hermie Rohrig, Harry Hopp, Butch Luther, the Kahler boys, Forrest Behm, Ray Prochaska, Warren Alfson, Bus Knight and Ed Schwartzkopf.

Missing for the present is Allan Zikmund who won't be out for practice for at least a month more due to his broken leg which he sustained at the Bowl game. Ralph Whitehead, guard, is due to join the forces of Uncle Sam soon.

Among the 68 out for practice, however, are many a star of the past season and aspirants from high schools across the state.

Barb cagers . . . Angels upset Dark Horse 23-14 for title

BY BUDD WALKER.

With a 23-14 win over Dark Horse, defending champions, the Angels won the 1941 barb basketball championship in the coliseum Monday night. Behind 9-8 at half time, the Angels surged to victory with a late scoring thrust that could not be stopped in a rally featured by one-handers by Tay Lewis and Clair Miller.

The Dark Horse quint led through the first half, as neither team could develop a consistent scoring punch. With free throws predominating, Dark Horse assumed a 5-3 lead, when Al Canfield's free throw and Tay Lewis's one handed archer sent the Angels ahead. Here Robb Robinson dribbled in twice for setups to end the half with the Dark Horses clinging to a narrow margin.

Tale of a nail— 'Red' Littler may lose one

"For want of a nail—a battle was lost." For want of a nail a meet might be lost. The nail belongs on the right foot of Gene "Red" Littler. Due to an injury during practice last week which has bothered him since, "Red" will probably lose a toenail.

Ralph King, who has been out with the mumps, and Don Morris, who has a cut foot, will return to practice, however, late this week.

Dual meet March 22.

Members of the Cornhusker indoor track team are working out lightly before intense preparation for their next home appearance, a dual meet with Oklahoma A. & M. in the stadium March 22.

Freshmen track aspirants are carrying on a telegraphic meet with Iowa, the results of which will be announced next week, according to Weir.

Angels come back.

The Angels came back fighting, as Tom Rice's free throw and Den Jackson's two handed scoop shot from the corner sent them into an 11-9 lead. Two free shots by Dean Stackhouse tied it up again, but then the Angels broke loose in a flurry of pretty shots to sew up the game.

Jackson, on a dribble-in, Lewis from way over his head, and Miller, with a one-hander, a la Don Fitz, put the challengers out front by 17-11. Howie Sykes came thru with a beautiful onehanded archer that started way down around the knees as he ran into the corner to overt disaster momentarily, but by this time the Angels had the one-handed technique mastered.

Lewis, Miller star.

Lewis tipped one in from near the basket after a missed free throw, after which Miller potted one from back of the foul circle and Rice followed with another beaut from near the sidelines to complete the scoring, except for a few nondescript free tosses.

The Angel scoring was divided with Tay Lewis and Clair Miller sharing the honors with six. Robinson contributed a like number for the losers. Lewis was spectacular all around, as he held star center Bob Anderson of Dark Horse to three free throws.

The box score:

D'k Horse f	fg	ft	!l	Angels f	fg	ft	f
Robinson f	2	2	1	Miller f	2	2	3
