

THE CLOTHES LINE

Society Calendar

for the weekend spot lights the Sigma Kappa "Mother Goose" party, the ROTC Sponsors' tea dance at the Cornhusker Saturday and the DU house party on Saturday night which follows initiation.

'A present for the teacher' is an old gag but it worked the other day when Mr. Tilche walked into his class and was given a great big box. Inside of it were several other boxes and finally in the last one, was an ashtray and a package of cigars. The girls who wished to polish the apple in this rather unique manner were Kappas Betty Hohf and Kady Wells. More power, or maybe I should say, better grades to you, girls.

Slack Suits

are being currently featured at Rudge & Guenzel's . . . slack suits made and styled in California in cool materials of gaberdine, shark skin, poplin, and spun rayon, and Luana cloth. In two pieces tailored by Graff of Hollywood is an effective number—four buttons on the fitted jacket . . . short sleeves . . . flap pockets. It was especially good looking in rose beige. The price of these newly-arrived slack suits at Rudge's is 3.95 to 7.95. You'll like Rudge's for clothes that are smart and prices that are moderate.

Initiating

are the Betas and the Phi Gams. While on the subject of the Phi Gams, we learn that Gus Swanson will get his picture in the trophy room as the man who had his pin to himself the shortest time of any Phi Gam on record. Seems he plans to leave the after initiation celebrations early in order to give his badge to Theta Phil Anderson.

Towne Club

will hold its weekly invitation dinner tonight. Conspicuously absent will be Barb leader Elaine Sloane who has a heavy date with the measles. This seems to be a continuation of the contagious diseases which have struck the campus.

It's color for spring in the new hats at Nancee's, 133 So. 13th. Cheerful spring flowers covering a straw base are among the most charming hats of the season. You'll also find padres—small boat styles; Mexican sombreros with a below-the-border touch . . . in navy, beige, black; feminine cartwheels in new shades such as toast; red felts with distinctive silk ribbon trimmings. You'll see these hats in Nancee's window, and we think you'll want to try them on. Nancee's will treat you courteously and give suggestions to make your hat selections especially stylish this Spring.

Of course you looked at the legs first . . . but there's some interesting news in the rest of the column.

Theta officers for the coming year are: president, Eleanor Elliott, vice president, Wanda Seaton, secretary, Louise Temple, and treasurer, Lou Reed.

Your Picture

is you as far as the school board or personnel manager is concerned, so be sure it's flattering. Skoglund Studio guarantees such application prints.

Early April

fooling will take place at the Barb Council dance Saturday night. Beginning with a grand march, the climax of the evening will come with the presentation of four new popular records (no foolin') to the four prime suckers of the evening.

Your Silverware

is an intimate part of your home furnishing, and for those fortunate individuals contemplating married life, we present two striking silverware patterns. The first is the lovely "Pendant of Fruit"—plain handle forming an ideal background for a distinctive, cameo-like pendant of fruit suspended from the conventionalized shell tip . . . you'll like the moderate price as well as the design. Second, rich in design in a heraldic motif is the "King Richard," exclusive at Gardner's. The style of the English Renaissance is excellently carried out in beautiful carved scrolls. You'll see these as well as other distinctive patterns at Gardner's, 1220 "O" Street.

Kappa Nancy Bell

looks forward to inevitable Spring rains with her "Station Wagon" raincoat from Hovland Swanson's. It's of a very light colored gaberdine, light weight, with a bright red plaid lining and a zipper in front. Sorority sister Helen Cather will be wearing under her coat, should rain come this week-end a Navy blue sailor suit of twill, also from Hovland's. The jacket has a large saucy collar with gold stars at the corners, as well as gold stars for buttons.

'We want candy'

screams of the AOP's finally brought results in the cases of Maisie Imig, Pat Rosenbaum, Dorothy Latsch, Jane Pratt and Ruth Yourd who passed the sweets in the form of all day suckers to the girls.

It's Barbara Stanwyck

and Henry Fonda engaging in one of the screen's wildest and funniest romances, as Fonda falls in love with Barbara twice without knowing she's the same girl, in "The Lady Eve," opening Monday at the Stuart. It's a show of sure-fire interest to Nebraska students.

Alpha Chi Omega

Marge Stewart who hits bulls-eyes . . . and men's hearts, selected these flattering styles at Ben Simon's yesterday.

Marge's dress with gored skirt is rich chocolate brown rayon crepe with a trim belt and white pearl buttons running down the front—very smart this season. Accenting the dress is crisp white linen trim along the collar and a white bow of the same material. Also of white linen is the bolero jacket with wide turned up cuffs, this season's feature style touch. To complete the ensemble Marge chose snowy buck with smooth brown calf spectators from the fourth floor of Simon's. They have the foot-shortening "booms toe" and are elasticized to really fit.

Heartiest congratulations to the new members of the scholastic honoraries. If our count is accurate, we note that out of thirteen Innocents, five have been elected to scholastic honoraries while the Mortar Boards follow a close second with three of their members recognized for their scholastic ability.

Rumor has it that big things are afoot for the Union cafeteria, in fact Spring vacation may be the time for said transformation. But then Spring is usually "dress up" time for everything and everybody—even Union cafeterias.

Coeds only witnessed the Coed Follies last night. Highlight of the evening was the presentation of Best Dressed Girl Sue Woodruff. Sue sped to Des Moines shortly afterward to attend the Kappa province convention. Accompanying the Prexy were Kappas Clara Louise Marcy and Kady Wells.

You won't risk losing your watch if you buy a new band before the old one is completely worn. Your old band is worth 25c on a new leather or gold one at Lowell's Jewelry Store, 143 So. 12th.
