Summer session opens June 9

Educators solve problems in workshop

School administrators, teachers to work out individual difficulties

A workshop in which school administrators and teachers may work on their own professional problems will be conducted from June 9 to Aug. 1 as part of the university's 1941 summer school.

Dr. Frank E. Sorenson of teachers college has been appointed co-ordinator of the workshop program by Prof. R. D. Moritz, dean of the summer school.

Individually or in small groups, workshop participants will work on problems they have encountered during the school year in such fields as vocational training, curriculum revision, improved methods of evaluation, securing of more adequate guidance records, and special teaching programs concerning such subjects as reading, health and modern problems.

Arrangement of course.

"Participants may send all their time in the workshop and earn nine hours of college credit, or they may spend only two-thirds of their time in the workshop and register for one of the regular university courses," explains Dr. Sorenson. "Insofar as possible, all materials produced will be mimeographed and distributed to interested educators throughout the state."

Nebraska school teachers who take advantage of the workshop will be aided by a special consultant. (See WORKSHOP, page 3.)

those given during the regular school year, the University of Nebraska summer school sessions will begin June 9.

As in former years, the summer school has been organized in a short and a long session, running concurrently. The short session closes July 16 and the long session ends Aug. 1.

Sessions are based on a desire to make the summer school serve (See SCHOOL, page 2.)

Music course will be offered on city campus

High school students are eligible for instruction in orchestra, band, theor

The university department of music again will offer the all-state music course for high school students from June 11 to July 2 on the Lincoln campus. Courses of instruction will be offered during the three weeks in orchestra, chorus, band, music theory and appreciation. Private lessons will be offered in piano, violin, organ, cello, voice, harp, brass and percussion, and woodwinds.

Each student will participate in two of the three musical organizations as well as classes in appreciation and theory and private lessons. Membership in the course is open to all high school students including those who will graduate in 1941.

Parties, sports part of program.

Parties, sports and a complete social and recreational program will be directed by David Foltz, supervisor of choral music in the Mout Carroll, Ill., schools, and Miss Constance Cruickshank, choral supervisor in Alliance. All university facilities will be open to the students—swimming pool in the coliseum, tennis courts, and the air-conditioned Union with its opportunities for reading, ping-pong, coking, and dancing. Thus vacation pleasure will be combined with the best musical training.

A fee of $35 covers all expenses (See MUSIC, page 4.)

Students tour South America

tour, being sponsored this summer from June 28 to August 25 by the university as a part of the regular university's summer session, will do. The tour, open to everyone, is being sponsored by the university (See TOUR, page 4.)

Reading clinic conference set for July

Nerve center of the university during all sessions is the administration building. Centrally located on the campus, it houses the offices of the Chancellor, Registrar, Dean of Student Affairs, University Purchasing Agent and other administrative departments.

The building also houses the university editorial and publicity departments. Through departments housed here all credits and grade records are permanently filed, and news of university events is released to the newspapers of the state.

"Progress and plans in a comparatively new educational field, a program for reading problems, will be discussed by Nebraska educators at a summer school reading conference July 7, 8 and 9. Dr. D. A. Worcester, chairman of the department of educational psychology and measurement, has announced.

Altho detailed plans for the conference are now tentative, Dr. Worcester has announced that Prof. W. S. Gray of the University of Chicago, well known in reading work, will be the principal speaker of the three day meeting. He will talk on the first day.

Consider all levels.

The reading problems that occur in all levels, elementary, secondary and college, and what can be done in the way of prevention and combat will be dealt with. In addition, attention will be given to a program of promoting reading possibilities of students who have no visible difficulties but who can improve their reading habits.

Also being prepared is an extensive exhibit of reading materials including tests, questionnaires and other literature used in the reading laboratories of the university.
